

Wildlife Renewal Is Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada should take steps to manage wildlife properly "as a renewable natural resource of great value," Jack Roxburgh (L-Norfolk) told the Commons.

Lumbering firms, pulp and paper companies and mining groups that have become wealthy by harvesting Canada's resources should be pressed to help in the campaign, the MP said during Commons study of spending estimates of the northern affairs department.

Too many Canadians are willing to forget their heritage, Mr. Roxburgh said. They drained wetlands, cut timber and used chemical sprays that had drastic effects on wildlife and its habitat.

He praised the government for its recent decision to purchase wide areas of prairie pothole country used by ducks. There were wide areas where co-operation between Ottawa and the provinces could result in better wildlife management.

H. W. Herridge (NDP-Kootenay West) said a federal-provincial conference should be held to draw up a code of ethics for relations between farmers and hunters.

Farmers were willing to co-operate with hunters on their land but hunters too often invaded without permission and caused damage by carelessness.

In his area tails had been shot off steers and broken beer bottles left lying around where cattle cut their feet on them. Some hunters insisted on shooting everything that moved.

The veteran British Columbia MP supported the northern affairs department's policy of maintaining national parks area in a wilderness state.

Fear U.S. Free Trade Deal As Step To Customs Union

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que. (CP)—The federal government opposes free trade between Canada and the United States because it would probably lead quickly to a customs union, Finance Minister Sharp said here.

Mr. Sharp also threw cold water on the concept of an Atlantic free trade area at least until members of the European Common Market and Japan as well as ready to come along.

The finance minister spoke to the closing session of the week's international trade conference of the Private Planning Association of Canada, which has been studying implications of trade liberalization.

The idea of free trade between Canada and the U.S. had advocates at the conference and Mr. Sharp's own party voted for it concept last month at the Liberal policy conference.

Mr. Sharp said advocates of U.S.-Canada free trade tend to put the case in its best form, leaving out the possibility that the logic of the arrangement would turn it into a customs union.

A free-trade area is generally regarded as a force to preserve political independence at the same time as it raises living standards and encourages economic efficiency.

In a customs union the countries set up common economic policies toward other countries and closely integrate other aspects of government policy.

Prime Minister Pearson traced a few of these implications in addressing the association earlier in the conference. He said "far worse things could happen to Canada than a customs union with the U.S.A."

"But it would be difficult, if not impossible in our continental circumstances of today, with so much U.S. ownership of our resources and our industries, to have such a union without a close assimilation of foreign, defence and fiscal policies."

"Add to this the other influences, cultural, non-cultural and anti-cultural, already pressing hard on us from the south, add all these forces together and a continental free trade area could easily and speedily lead to a continental no-Canada area."

The finance minister found several political reasons for opposing an Atlantic free trade area, at least for the time being.

He said it would make the economic division between the common market countries and North America even more intense, and might isolate Japan. He was concerned about how Commonwealth, other European and Latin American countries would fit into the arrangements.

To maintain the world momentum to freer trade, he repeated the federal government's interest in agreements to develop free trade in specific commodities? He mentioned only pulp, paper and base metals, but he has previously listed others.

BRISTOL

Mrs. Dan MacDonald, the former Celia O'Brien daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M.J. O'Brien remains in serious condition in the Charlottetown Hospital over the weekend after being struck by a car a week ago in the eastern section of the Island.

The vicinity of Bristol, was left without light power or heat for most of the day on Sunday recently, while crews from Maritime Electric relocated the power lines across the new bridge at Morell.

The man who invented the machine for the fast removal of skin and bones from fish, half a century ago, was one Dr. J.J. Barry, a native of Bristol who resided in the Harbour District, where he attended the old harbour school.

Dr. Barry began his study of fish and ways of processing them in the Bristol Packing Plant as a foreman. He later went to New York to continue his study and it was here that he invented the machine, still in use today. After receiving his doctorate degree he went to New Brunswick to carry on his work. He died three years ago. Dr. Barry Gerald Barry, a brother of the doctor still resides in Bristol.

A new foreman and new snow plow operators are awaiting the first snow fall of the year. All old hands were dismissed after the election.

Rabbit hunting season is underway in Bristol but few if any rabbits, are to be found unlike many years ago. However there are lots of skunks about.

Fiddling contests are soon to be getting underway which brings to mind some of the old-time fiddlers of years gone by. Some of the more renowned greats who are still residing in Bristol, are James Conohan, Roddie McAdam, Aeneas McEachern and Hector MacDonald not to forget the great Skully Brothers. Cecil, a son of Aeneas is at present with the Don Messer Show.

OBITUARY

MARGARET ISABEL COLWILL

Insered by the family. The death occurred at the Prince Edward Island Hospital on August 21st, 1966 of Margaret Isabel Colwill, widow of S.H. Colwill of New Haven, P.E.I. Mr. Colwill died in September, 1946.

The deceased, the daughter of Charles MacKinnon and Bessie Rogerson was born in New Haven, P.E.I. in 1883. She leaves to mourn her passing one son, Charles with whom she resided at New Haven.

One sister, Mrs. Finlay MacFadyen, Riverdale, P.E.I. and two brothers, John Allan MacKinnon of Churchill, P.E.I. and Gordon MacKinnon of Clyde River, P.E.I. Two brothers, Daniel and Archibald predeceased her.

Maggie Bell as she was fondly known by a host of friends and neighbors, was the soul of kindness and hospitality.

For many years she assisted her husband in conducting a general store at New Haven. This brought her in contact with numerous people, old and young, and all became objects of her loving concern. She never forgot her friends and any news of their welfare or success seemed to gladden her heart and give her a glow of happiness to her truly beautiful countenance. She will be long remembered.

Her funeral was held on Tuesday, August 23rd, from the Cutcliffe Funeral Home where service was conducted by Rev. Frederick Lloyd assisted by Rev. Raymond Gillis. The hymns sung were Unto The Hills and Safe In The Arms Of Jesus. Mrs. Stanley Newman was organist. Flowerbearers were Foster MacKinnon, Louis Darrach, Charles Frizzell, Andrew Gass, Richard MacPhee, Seldon Drake, Thomas Devereaux, Ralph Newman, and Harry Boyle. The pallbearers were Edwin Johnstone, Lawrence Kicham, Watson MacNevin, Michael Murphy, Bud MacKinnon and Charles MacDougall. The interment was in Kingston cemetery.

Floral tributes were: Pillow — Charlie, Wreaths — John A. Waldron and Jenette; Kenison and Lulu; John, Stanley and Annie Colwill; Kitty Finley, Rae and Gordon MacFadyen; Elmer, Helen, Edna, Bill; Sprays — Lulu, Gordon, Nella and Warren MacKinnon; Harrison and Lennie Green; Randy, Vera and Glydon Nicholson; Rena and Edwin Johnston; Robbie and Hazel MacKinnon; Artie, Cassie, Judy, Lloyd and June; Ken MacNeill; Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart; Mr. and Mrs. Watson MacNevin; Katherine, Donald, Dot, Garfield, Ruth, Nelson and family; Mr. and Mrs. Richard MacPhee; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kicham.

Questionnaires Are Criticized

OTTAWA (CP)—Three Conservatives said in the Commons the government must do something about burdensome questionnaires sent to business firms by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Harold Danforth (Kent, Ont.) led off by saying the questionnaires impose "tremendous responsibility and cost" on the Roddie; Myron, Jannie, Bessie and Louis; Millie, Charles and Barbara; Cut Flowers — Emma and Albert; Freda, Ernie and Joanne; Homer; Alice, Connie, Doug, Elton, Joe and Nancy; Bibles — Etta, Golden and Golden Jr.; Stewart, Vera and Joyce; Mrs. Docherty and Ena; Johnie, Elvira, Elizabeth and Angus; Lois MacEachern; Hymn Books — Clyde, Hilda and Cindy; Donations to Cancer Society — New Haven Women's Institute.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank Dr. R.G. Lee, Dr. A.A. MacLeod, Mrs. Mary Maddigan R.N., Mrs. Florence MacCannell R.N., Mrs. Phyllis Frizzell and all nurses and staff of the Prince Edward Island Hospital, the Cutcliffe Funeral Home, Rev. F. Lloyd, Rev. R. Gillis, the pallbearers, flower-bearers, organist and all who sent flowers, card of sympathy and helped in so many ways during the illness and death of my mother.

answering firms. Some feel the whole thing has gone "beyond the bounds of reason."

Mr. Danforth said he recognizes the federal agency requires information, but firms now are "subject to a constant barrage" of questionnaires.

Trade Minister Winters promised to look into the matter. Sig Enns (Portage-Neepawa) added that several MPs had received similar complaints. One answer might be for the government to reimburse firms for their profit-less search for information to answer government queries.

Jack McIntosh (Swift Current-Maple Creek), a merchant, said he has personal knowledge of the nuisance value of such queries.

GM Planning Production Cut

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. said here it plans to cut car production by 3.7 per cent next month and by 4.4 per cent more in early January.

The announcement by the largest auto maker in the U.S. followed a report by a trade publication that GM, Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. already have trimmed 58,000 units off their November car production plans.

New car sales in the first 10 days this month have lagged five per cent behind the pace a year ago. GM said its scheduled production reductions will be made "to balance production plans for the near future with expected demands."

In Canada, GM officials at Oshawa said no plans have been made to reduce Canadian production. GM's Canadian sales increased in October and the company soon will have its Ste. Therese, Que., plant in operation now that a strike has been settled.

The CBC expects to have experimental stations operating at Yellowknife, N.W.T., and Lynn Lake, Man., by next summer, and if these two are successful, others will be built. A small, self-contained television transmitter using four-hour cartridges of taped programming would be used in several areas.

TV Stations Considered

TORONTO (CP)—The CBC may build about 30 television stations in the Canadian North within the next three years, a spokesman said here.

The CBC expects to have experimental stations operating at Yellowknife, N.W.T., and Lynn Lake, Man., by next summer, and if these two are successful, others will be built.

A small, self-contained television transmitter using four-hour cartridges of taped programming would be used in several areas.
