

The Daily Examiner

OCTOBER 14, 1885.

The Jewel Consistency.

In Parliament and at his meetings in the country, Mr. L. H. Davies enlarged greatly on the "enormity" of having Revising Barristers, and the "propriety" of having Revising Judges; and now the Toronto Globe, the great exponent of Mr. Davies' political views, attacks Sir John Macdonald for appointing Judges in the following style:—

"The details of Sir John Macdonald's plea against the liberty of the people are now revealing themselves. He is aiming not only at control of the voters' lists, but at still further control of the judiciary. He is appointing county judges and junior judges with a view to their fitness as revising officers. He is appointing junior judges where they are not wanted, and he is doing this especially in order to provide himself with revising officers in judges' clothing."

The good people who heard Mr. Davies and who read the Globe will, no doubt, be able to reconcile the views, on this point, of those "leading exponents" of Canadian Criticism!

The Herald states that the case arising out of Judge Alley's decision against our franchise voters was argued before the Supreme Court "at the instance of the Government." "The Government" referred to by the Herald is the Government led by Mr. L. H. Davies, who now pretends to be fearfully and wonderfully anxious about the preservation of the rights of Franchise voters! Mr. Davies authorized the expenditure of public money in order that Franchise voters might, on a mere technicality, be prevented from voting in 1878; and his eloquent tongue knows no restriction when he is decanting on the wrongs which he alleges have been inflicted upon Franchise voters by Sir John Macdonald!

The Globe, Mr. Davies as Leader of the Government and Mr. Davies the agitator on behalf of an Opposition anxious for Office, are it will be admitted, not very consistent with each other. In the language of a gentleman who was born in Lot 49, "there is hypocrisy somewhere."

Educational.

WHETHER or not Classics are beneficial, is a question beside the mark, though it is somewhat surprising that at this age of the world the question should be raised. The taxpayers want to know whether or not classics should be taught at the expense of the State, and what is the limit beyond which State aid should not be given in the education of children. These are the points practically in dispute.

At present we have no guiding principle in the education of children at the expense of the State, and the results are that the children of wealthy parents are aided by the State to a much greater extent than the children of those who are in moderate or poor circumstances—which is unfair, and that the tendency of the education in public schools has been to divorce the youth of the Province from the farms—which is inexpedient.

Yet a right guiding principle could easily be obtained. Let it once be settled that education provided at common expense shall be such only as is of common utility, and the rest is easy. There will then be no questions about the duty of the State to fit young men to be doctors, lawyers, manufacturers, men of business or farmers; for as soon as the limit of common utility has been reached, the aid given by the State towards the education of each person will cease. All that will remain to be done will be to fix the limit of common utility; and in view of the circumstances of the Province and the means at the disposal of the Government, this would not be a work of very great difficulty.

How Not to Do It!

THE St. John Sun notes the fact that when Davies and Charlton were supporting their reciprocity resolutions in Parliament in 1884, Sir John remarked that the prospects of an arrangement were not likely to be improved by such statements as were made by these members; and the Sun remarks that:—

"Affairs in the United States have taken a turn which abundantly justify what the way premier said. The Boston Fish Bureau favors a renewal of the fishery treaty, while parties connected with the fishing interests of Gloucester and other ports oppose the project. E. E. Small, of Provincetown, is one of the leading writers against the contention of the Fish Bureau. The Fish Bureau asserted that the duty on fish would increase the price and limit the importation of fat mackerel. Mr. Small replied by citing the following from the speech of L. H. Davies in the Canadian House of Commons: 'We shall be obliged to send our large, fat mackerel to the United States whatever the duty imposed, as it is the only market we have for them.' Small pronounced this to be the declaration of 'one of the leading Canadian statesmen,' and he argues that the duty on fish will be no injury to the American consumer. This argument will have much weight when the question comes up for discussion in Congress, and it has already been published in several United States papers."

If the efforts of Sir John to obtain reciprocal trade relations with the United States should prove abortive, the people will know who it is that is largely to blame.

A CHEESE that will weigh 3,300 pounds, and will be one of the largest, if not the largest ever manufactured in America, is now being made in East Aurora, N. Y.

Late Publications.

"THE RURAL HOME," published at the new Star office, Kentville, N. S. Vol. 1, No. 1. This is a new publication, opening with an extract from the Hon. D. Ferguson's lecture on "Agricultural Education," full of hints for the farmer. How to fatten a horse; How to catch a horse; Pure-bred stock; How to utilize bones; The effect of guano; Wasting manure—are among the topics discussed.

THE DOMESTIC MONTHLY: Illustrated Magazine of Fashion, Literature, and the Fine Arts. Published by Blake & Co., 853, Broadway, New York.

The first number of the twenty-fourth volume of this very interesting periodical is enlarged, and exhibits several improvements. With illustrations of the latest fashions in dress, and full explanations how to cut and fit, it gives excellent articles, racy sketches, stories, notes, comments, etc., and is altogether instructive, readable and pleasing. This excellent magazine is only $1.50 per year. From the fact that it is prospering, it must be highly appreciated in the United States; and it ought to have lots of subscribers in these Provinces.

HEADS AND FACES: HOW TO STUDY THEM. OCTAVO, pp. 185, paper 188 illustrations. Price, 40 cents. Fowler & Wells Co., Publishers, 753 Broadway, New York.

This very interesting and readable book, written in a clear and vigorous style by Nelson Sizer, one of the oldest and best known character readers in America, and Dr. H. S. Drayton, Editor of the Phrenological Journal, appears to be a successful endeavor to present the subject of human character and how to study it in a plain, comprehensive and attractive light.

The demand for standard publications of low price has increased greatly with the tendency of many book makers to meet it. Popular editions of the poets, historians, scientists have fallen in line with the hundreds and thousands of the cheap editions of the better classes of novels; and now, in response to the often-expressed want of the studious and curious, we have this voluminous yet very low-priced treatise on "Heads and Faces" from the point of view of Phrenology, Physiognomy, and Physiology. Although so low-priced, as we have noted above, it is no flimsy, patched-up volume, but a careful, honest work, replete with instruction, fresh in thought, suggestive and inspiring. There are nearly two hundred illustrations, exhibiting a great variety of faces, human and animal, many other interesting features of the much-subject that is considered. Taken at length it is one of the most complete books on face-study that has been issued by its publishers, and is the book that must create a demand wherever it is seen. The style in which it has been produced, the excellent paper, good-press work, numerous illustrations, and elegant, engaging cover, make it a phenomenon even in this cheap-book day.

THE OVERLAND MONTHLY, devoted to the developments of the country; published by the Overland Company, 129, Sutter Street, San Francisco.

The October number of this excellent periodical is worthy of careful perusal. "Thoughts towards revising the Federal Constitution" is an article which shows very clearly that perfection has not—as some of our politicians would have us believe—been reached in the Constitution of the United States. Among the suggestions discussed in this article are:—

1. Extend the powers of Congress, so as to authorize Federal legislation on a number of civil relations now exclusively legislated on by the several States. Such are marriage, divorce, inheritance, probate proceedings, modes and subjects of taxation, education, the tenure of real estate, and the collection of debts. Give to that body more clear and mandatory jurisdiction over interstate commerce and communication, and the exclusive regulation of banks, insurance companies, and all other corporations which transact business in more than one State or Territory.

2. Increase the judicial power, so as to give to the Federal Court jurisdiction over all claims against the United States, whether in law or equity, and allow the government to be sued, as well as to sue, in said courts. Give also to the judiciary, State and Federal, respective jurisdiction in all cases of contested elections, or cases involving the qualification of members of Legislature, instead of leaving each House to be the judge of such questions.

3. Require that Cabinet officers should be appointed from the leaders of the dominant party in one or both Houses of Congress, without causing them to vacate their seats, or else, if appointed from outside, that Congress entitle them to seats therein, with the right to initiate measures and take part in debates, even if no vote be given them.

4. Add to the qualifications of members of all legislative bodies, professional education in statecraft.

5. Change the source of the authority of Senators in all legislative bodies, so as to make the Senate the direct representative of capital, by conferring the power to vote for United States Senators only upon those individuals in each State (and for State Senators upon those in each Senatorial district) who shall have paid taxes during the previous year on at least $100,000 of their own property in such State or district.

6. Prohibit further immigration into the United States, except of such foreigners as shall have a certain degree of education, and some art or profession, or sufficient property to insure them a living. Limit the right of suffrage to persons born in the United States.

7. Abolish the present Indian system, and provide for Indians on precisely the same principles and conditions as are provided for all other races.

8. Extend the Presidential term to eight years, and provide for the election of two or three Vice-Presidents instead of one. Abolish the electoral college, extend the term of Representatives to six years, of Senators to ten years, and forbid the reelection of all executive officers having patronage to be bestowed.

The article on the youth and education of Napoleon Bonaparte is very interesting, and "Recent Social Discussions," "Free Public Libraries," with stories, sketches, recent poetry, book reviews, etc., make up a capital number for reading in the long October evenings.

Boston Markets.

BOSTON, Oct. 10. EGGS.—The market continues firm, with a good demand for fresh lots. Eastern extras command 22½ to 23c, New York and Vermont 21 to 22c, Canadian 20½ to 21c, and P. E. Island 20½ to 21c per dozen.

POTATOES, &c.—The market is well supplied with potatoes, and prices continue low. Sales of Arrowroot Rose at 50c, other Eastern at 45 to 48c, and Northern at 35 to 43c per bushel.

CHEESE.—There has been a fair demand in cheese and last week's advance is maintained, but buyers do not respond to the high rates paid in the country. For the best September factory 9½c per lb is a top selling price, and fine late August stock rules principally at 9 to 9½c, but at the close holders are asking 9½ to 10c per lb for the finest factory. Common grades move slowly. Liverpool quotation has been steady the past few days at 43c.

FISH.—Receipts of Mackerel at Boston for the week foot up 7,142 bbls, of which 4,418 bbls were from the fleet and out-ports, and 2,724 bbls from foreign ports. Comparatively few Mackerel were landed by the fleet. High winds prevented vessels from doing any work, and the outlook for the remainder of the season is not encouraging. Total quantity landed at out-ports and here was 6,465 bbls against 13,402 bbls last week and 20,364 bbls for the corresponding week last year. The total catch for the season, as made up by the Boston Fish Bureau, is 278,767 bbls against 374,389 bbls, a deficiency of nearly 100,000 bbls. The tendency of the market on Mackerel is to still higher prices, but the jobbing trade is rather slow and dealers are holding back as much as possible, expecting that the catch may increase before the season closes. Sales of Shore in cargo lots rule at $4.50 to $5 for No. 3, $6.50 to $7.50 for No. 2, and $17 to $20 for No. 1. Fares out of pickle command $6.50 to $7.12 per bbl., according to the quantity of large sizes. Nova Scotia and P. E. Island Mackerel have been in better demand this week, and prices are firmer. Nova Scotia extra large No. 2 are worth $7 to $10; medium No. 2, $5.50 and $6; and medium No. 3, $4.50 and $5 per bbl. Island Mackerel are difficult to quote, as they vary so much in quality, but large fat fish command full prices. Cod fish have not been arriving so freely this week, and prices are higher. Large dry Bank are now firm at $4, and medium at $3.62 per qtl. The latter are scarce and wanted. Pickle cured Bank are steady at $3 for large and $2.50 for medium. Shore are selling at $3.50 for large pickle cured and $4 for dry. Hake are easier, with sales at $2 per qtl. Haddock command $2.25, and cusk $2.25 per qtl.

SUMMERSIDE.—The Moncton Times correspondent says:—"Business men of Summerside pretty generally agree in saying that, notwithstanding the collapse of ship-building, in times past an important industry, their town is to-day in a better position than for a decade. One of the leading business men of the town, interviewed on the subject, said they were just now in that happy condition that nothing bad could be said about them. Everyone appeared to be satisfied, and although prices were low and caution was necessary, a hopeful feeling seemed to be abroad. Another business man thought he could see a decided improvement, and as an illustration said that while up to within a year or two there had always been a surplus of small tenements, at the present time there were very few, if any. He said he had occasion, during the present summer, to secure one or two residences, and found the greatest difficulty in securing eligible places, while rents were considerably higher than they formerly were."
