THE DAILY EXAMINER.

AUGUST 27, 1891.

Notes and Comments.

—"The cohesive power of plunder" gave the grits their increased strength in Quebec, and, as the Halifax Herald remarks, their increased strength in Quebec is all that gives them hope of ever being able to loot the Dominion treasury.

—Commenting upon the rascalities of the Murphy-McGreevey gang, and the irregularities in the civil service, the London Free Press remarks:

"The government knew nothing of the these misdeeds. An analagous case would be that of a large merchant who found that two or three of his clerks had conspired to rob him. No one could ask in justice that the proprietor should suffer with his dishonest clerks; and, in this case, the government stands in the position of the merchant. The public sense of justice should be satisfied with the punishment of the guilty. If it could be shown that either the civil service system or the laxity of administrative measures was in any way responsible, there might be some grounds for carrying the retribution still further; but while it is clear that the conspiracy was cleverly planned and skillfully concealed, in the face of reasonable precautions to prevent such acts of malfeasance, the government will be held to be innocent of blame."

—The number of railways in the United States which prohibit the use of liquor by their employes is increasing. We are told that the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway is one of the latest to adopt this rule, having recently issued an order very similar to that issued by others, which requires immediate discharge of every employe who is known to frequent saloons or to make habitual use of intoxicating liquors Commenting on such regulations, the Railway Review says: "The only thing to be regretted in this connection is that a similar rule cannot be at once enforced on all the railroads of the country. Human life is too precious to be endangered by being placed under the control of those who knowingly put 'into their mouths that which steals away their brains,' and no managing official of any road can on account of sentimentalism afford to retain such persons in his employ. It is not too much to say that any official who knowingly retains such persons in his employ is morally, if not legally, accessory before the fact to any loss of life or property occasioned by the use of liquor by such persons."

Literary Notes.

Star gazers will read with interest the August number of the Sidereal Messenger, which is edited by Wm. W. Payne, director of the Goodsell Observatory, Northfield, Minn. Our knowledge of astronomy is not sufficient to enable us to criticize the learned and scientific articles which this magazine presents, but we must confess that we read with interest an essay on the history of the telescope which goes thoroughly into the question, from the time of the discovery of the toy telescope to the immense Lick telescope of the present day. A perusal of some of the short articles describing the wonders of the starry sky, leads one to realize the truth of the extract which adorns the title-page of the periodical: "The works of the Lord are great, sought out of all them that have pleasure therein." The Sidereal Messenger is printed by Mr. John Lawson, formerly of Charlottetown.

Notes.

The fertility of a bare soil burns up.

Use lime liberally around fruit trees.

Remember plaster is good for clover.

Frequently give your pigs a clean nest.

Don't allow weeds to sow their seeds.

Be merciful to your team in hot weather.

The smaller the weed, the more easily killed.

"Fat more mutton." Yes, but first grow it.

You can't get out of the soil what is not in it.

The properly pruned tree is the most vigorous.

Cucumber vines will climb if they have a chance.

Be sure in going into the sheep business that you do not prepare the way to go out of it.

The city man who cannot tell rye from oats is usually the man who can tell you best how to make money off a farm.

Good advice from the Horseman. Never let your horse acquire the habit of jumping out of the shafts as soon as you unwrap the last strap. Many an accident occurs in this way.

The best imported English sheep will run down unless fed roots. Says the Farm Journal: "The turnip instinct comes over the water with them, and corn and timothy hay cannot kill it; but they will kill the sheep. Paste this fact on the wall."

Allow the flies free access to your dining room and then make no effort to keep them from the table when you are eating, and you will have a better idea how they annoy your horses when you provide no means for preventing these pests from annoying the dumb beasts, which naturally nave not as good opportunities to free themselves as you have.

At this season of the year one should never bring a strange fowl into the yards, for by so doing you may bring lice, cholera, roup and other ailments or drawbacks. Keep a strict quarantine against all new comers, as appearances may deceive you, and a single mistake may cause you much annoyance and labor.

Dyspepticure—Is not a palliative, but a cure; it first relieves, then controls, and finally entirely subdues the irritation and inflammation of the stomach that causes ndigestion and dyspepsia.

Reclamation of the Sahara.

The most remarkable example of reclamation by means of artesian well water is found in the desert provinces or departments of Algeria, under the French rule. The area, officially given, of French Algeria is 184,465 square miles. The outlying portion is put at 135,000 square miles, one-half belongs to the Sahara or desert. The European population in 1887 was abaut 250,000; the natives and naturalized were 3,328,549, making a total of 3,578,549. Cultivation by the means of flowing well waters has been sedulously fostered by the French colonial government for both political and economic reasons. Such wells as a means of reclamation began systematically to be bored in 1857, the French engineer, M. Jus, having demonstrated in 1856 that the desert was endowed with large supplies of under-ground water. The total number of wells that have been bored since that date in the departments of Algiers, Oran and Constantine is stated at 13,135. These wells range from 75 to 400 feet in depth, and the low pressure common to the majority of them forces the water over the small bored castings to a distance of about two feet above the ground. The waters are then collected in small ditches, which convey them to the vineyards, date trees and fields of durra, millet, wheat, etc., which comprise the chief products. In all, about 12,000,000 acres have been reclaimed in this way. The government bores are at least 1-10 of the whole number.

A Real Skalawag.

When Sir John A. Macdonald went to Washington in connection with the treaty with the United States, the Canadian party were treated to a boat sail on the Potomac. Sir John came early and alone, and while waiting for the others to come, a lady, the wife of a Senator, fell into conversation with him, when the following dialogue ensued:—

"I guess you are from Canada."

"Yes, ma'am."

"You've got a very smart man over there, the Honorable John A. Macdonald."

"Yes, ma'am, he is."

"But they say he's a regular rascal."

"Yes, ma'am, he's a perfect rascal."

"But why do you keep such a man in power?"

"Well, you see, they cannot get along without him."

"But how is that? They say he's a real skalawag, and——"

Just then her husband, the Senator, stepped up and said:

"My dear, let me introduce the Honorable John A. Macdonald."

The lady's feelings can be imagined. But Sir John put her at her ease, saying: "Now, don't apologize. All you've said is perfectly true, and it is well known at home."

What Keeps Women Young.

A woman is happy just in proportion as she is content, writes Edward W. Bok, in the September Ladies' Home Journal, The sun has a way of changing the spots upon which it shines. Especially is this true of our land, where one is up to-day and down to-morrow, and vice versa. The wisest woman is she who trusts in a to-morrow, but never looks for it. To sit down and wish what this might be, that they would be different, does a woman no good. It does her harm in that it makes her dissatisfied with herself, unpleasant to her friends, and makes her old before her time. Happiness is not always increased in proportion to enlarged success. This may sound like an old saw, and I think it is, but there is many a word of wisdom in an old proverb just the same. Contentment is a wonderful thing to cultivate. There would be fewer premature-old women in the world if it was given more of a trial and it became a more universal quality in womanhood.

Odds and Ends.

To be idle is the ultimate object of the busy.

Everything good in a man thrives best when properly recognized.

Happiness does away with ugliness, and even makes the beauty of beauty.

Women may not be deep thinkers, but they are generally clothes observers.

Justice is exalted, strengthened and honored by the judicious praise of merit.

Experience makes us see a wonderful difference between devotion and goodness.

The imaginations of men are in a great measure under the control of their opinions.

There is no better ballast for keeping the mind steady on its keel, and saving it from all risk of crankiness, than business.

In good company you need not ask who is the master of the feast. The man who sits in the lowest place, and who is always industrious in helping everyone, is certainly the man.

"You see," said the salesman "this coat contains a cigarette pocket." "But I don't smoke cigarettes." "Oh, well, then, the pocket can hold the money you save by not smoking them."

Good nature is worth more than knowledge, more than money, more than honor, to the persons who possess it, and certainly to everybody who dwells with them, in so far as mere happiness is concerned.

FOR OVER FIFTY YEARS Mrs. Winsloe's Soothing Syrup has been used by millions of mothers for their children while cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best-known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winsloe's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.
