Aberton Sealers Plan to Move To North Rustico

By JACK BOND
Guardians-Patrol Staff Writer
A vast and wild modern seal hunt, based at North Rustico, is being carried out about 35 miles off the north coast of Prince Edward Island.
Helicopters, the most modern tool to be employed on the local seal hunting scene, are shuttling seal pelts to land as fast as 21 hairy Magdalen Islanders can supply them.
It appears that the hunt may immediately grow to greater proportions as more hunters from Magdalen, more helicopters and a hunting party from the Aberton area, equipped with airplanes prepare to move into the Rustico area.

Magdalen Dr.-Arneaus said he and the hunters are similar to the one that settled on the ice and later sank at North Cape during the early stages of the hunt.
The helicopter is similar to the one that was used to land the sealers on the ice. The helicopter is a Sikorski HO4S, and is being used to land the sealers on the ice. The helicopter is being used to land the sealers on the ice. The helicopter is being used to land the sealers on the ice.

ASSEMBLY LINES
The hunt from the Rustico base is almost on an assembly line basis. Hunters armed with clubs and skimming knives walk among the seals, killing and skinning the animals with great speed and skill. The skins are stockpiled and then picked up by a helicopter.

The largest copier, a Vertol, can carry 25 pellets each.
The pellets are tied in bundles, the copiers drop down to within about five feet of the ice, and the bundles are suspended on slings underneath. They then fly shoreward to the drop zone located near the base camp. The base camp is set up in the farm house of Cornelius Sampson, a boatman from North Rustico.

Magazine and Measure Draws IAPA Criticism
SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — The Inter-American Press Association lashed out Sunday at a proposed Canadian tax law and a magazine and newspaper tax law in effect in Mexico.

HERD HEADS SHOREWARD
There is estimated to be some 200,000 seals in the herd. It is located about 35 miles from shore and seems to be coming slowly shoreward although the pattern could change. To date, some 2,500 have been taken.

Jarvie Kennedy Receives Award
VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John received Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy warmly Sunday, giving her one of the largest private audiences he has ever held.
