

WINTER FAIR THRILLS

Amherst - The ultimate in aerial thrills is in store for Maritime Winter Fair patrons this year, when the two Mazurs present the outstanding high act of the year.

Working on a high trapeze, the split second timing and pinpointing daring of these two young men have made them outstanding favorites all over Europe. They came to this side of the Atlantic just one year ago. Flawless perfection in the most difficult acrobatic and gymnastic stunts high above the ground are evidence of the years of practice and unbelievable strength required to bring the two Mazurs to the top of their profession.

Suspended solely by the teeth of one as they hang high in mid-air, the two Mazurs display nerves of steel as they defy death or serious injury every moment of their performance. Officials of the Maritime Winter Fair are to be congratulated on securing this outstanding act, which will be seen nightly during the Fair, from November 2nd to November 9th inclusive.

Upholds Fee-Splitting Ban

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Court of Appeal Friday upheld a fee-splitting ban imposed by the trustees of London's Victoria Hospital.

The court dismissed an appeal by three doctors who complained the hospital had no right to regulate doctors' morals by refusing to let them split a fee without telling the patient.

Public confidence "would be weakened, and indeed, destroyed," if it became known that doctors in the hospital were permitted to indulge in a practice "that, for example leads to unnecessary surgery," the court concluded.

The three doctors, Harold Henderson, J. H. Spence and Donald B. Ferguson, said they did not support the practice of fee-splitting.

The hospital bylaws which they asked to have declared invalid also gave the board of trustees the right to refuse doctors the privileges and use of hospital facilities, and to inspect the books of medical staff members.

U. S. Senator Sees Canadian Foreign Policy As Unchanged

By GEORGE McNEVIN
 Canadian Press Staff Writer

FREDERICTON (CP)—United States Senator John F. Kennedy said Tuesday there is no indication that election of a Progressive Conservative government after years of Liberal rule in Ottawa heralds the beginning of a new chapter in Canada-U.S. relations.

Addressing the fall convocation of the University of New Brunswick here, he said Prime Minister Diefenbaker's government has "unquestionably received a mandate to explore means of renewing closer trade connections with Great Britain." But it was evident from the prime minister's recent statements that the "main outlines of Canadian policy are but little changed."

Senator Kennedy, along with Veterans Minister A. J. Brooks received an honorary doctor of laws degree.

NOT AN APPENDAGE

The Massachusetts Democrat denied that Canada faces a "closed option" between pro-British and pro-American approaches to foreign policy and trade.

"Canada has achieved a national strength and prestige which simply do not allow portrayal of the country as an appendage to either Great Britain or the United States," he said.

While Canada had some special links with each, it possessed a national destiny of its own that should be given foremost recognition.

Canada and the United States now share not only the Atlantic and Pacific coastlines but a long common coast along the St. Lawrence Seaway, he said.

"Natural conditions decree that we share common interests in hydro-electric power, natural gas and high sea fisheries."

The senator said fisheries have been a "classical issue" between the two countries, while methods by which the United States disposes of agricultural surpluses have become a new source of tension.

ASKS CAUTION

Penetration of American capital and business management into Canadian enterprises had aroused "natural fears" among Canadians. He cautioned against
