

Prince Co. Exhibition. SOME OF THE EXHIBITS.

LITTLE remains to be done by THE EXAMINER except to give the prize list, which is the gist of the matter. The names of many other exhibitors might, of course, be mentioned as deserving of credit; but the regulations, at County Exhibitions, make this impossible for the Press. There are on the exhibits no distinguishing marks by which the reporter can tell who they belong to, there is no time in which to discriminate as to the relative values of the exhibits; and if mention is made of one exhibitor whose name is obtained by chance, it is more than likely that another just as deserving will be overlooked or forgotten, and injustice done. Therefore, the remarks of the Press are necessarily few and general.

Of the products of the skill of the mechanics of Prince County, those of Messrs. Pound, of Margate, Ramsay, of Tyne Valley, Pridham, of Wilmot Valley, Huestis, of Summerside, and the Hall Manufacturing Company of Summerside, were particularly noticeable. The people who can afford such beautifully finished and expensive carriages and sleighs as were shown by Messrs. Pound and Ramsay, must be in a flourishing state, though certain dyed-in-the-wool Grits will persist in declaring that they are not; and the improved machines of Messrs. Huestis and others suggest increased facilities for well-to-do farmers. It is pleasing to note that Messrs. H. A. Compton & Co. continue to hold the fort in the furniture line; and talking of furniture reminds us of pretty scenes from the easel of Miss Pope, fit to adorn the walls of the most highly furnished drawing room. Miss McNeill's pictures were creditable; and if Miss Hackett had chosen some less ambitious subject than the Madonna, her performance would no doubt have been passably good.

The show of roots and vegetables, though not large, was exceptionally choice, Mr. Seales' monster cabbages, weighing about thirty four pounds each, being specially admired. In grain there was a very weak competition. But the show of fruit was excellent, and included grapes grown in the open air, by Mrs. J. Walsh, of Summerside, and splendid specimens of apples from the orchards of Mr. Marcus Deacon and others.

A pleasing feature of the horse show, was the large class of heavy brood mares with foals. The following is the PRIZE LIST.
