Paine's Celery Compound a Boon to Business Men

J. C. FROST.

Legislators, judges, doctors, lawyers, bankers, merchants and all prudent and wise people now use Paine's Celery Compound when sickly, weak, run-down, nervous, sleepless, bilious or dy-peptic. The virtues of this great healer of disease are known everywhere, and many of our ablest physicians are prescribing it daily, because they know it to be a medicine of wondrous power.

Mr. John C. Frost, of the well-known firm of Francis, Frost & Co., Toronto, was speedily cured of biliousness, headache and severe neuralgia.

Mr. Frost writes as follows:—

"I have been subject to severe bilious attacks and headaches for the past fifteen years. During that time I have been doctoring, and have also tried patent medicines, but nothing seemed to give me relief. Last winter, after suffering with neuralgia for about two months, I started to take Paine's Celery Compound, and before the first bottle was finished my neuralgia was completely cured. I have now taken six bottles, and I am very pleased to inform you that my old complaint has entirely disappeared, and I feel like a new person.

PREVENT PNEUMONIA.

HOME REMEDIES TO USE IN THE ABSENCE OF THE DOCTOR.

The Causes of the Disease—The Temperate Climates the Real Stalking Ground of the Disease—The Part Absolute Quiet Plays in Securing Recovery.

Conditions of weather and climate are probably the most important of all known agencies in the causation of pneumonia. The influence of the cold and dampness in increasing the liabilities to acute inflammatory diseases of the chest are well known. The disease is also more common in temperate climates than in regions characterized by great heat or extreme cold.

Pneumonia is a trouble which falls so quickly upon one's system that it is hard to discover the precise moment of attack.

"Wear a chamois skin jacket lined with flannel next the skin all winter, if one has any predisposition or inherited tendency toward this weakness," advised one physician: "I find this an excellent preventive."

"It is also a good idea," he continued, "to keep the blood well nourished. Strong food is a formidable foe to pneumonia, for it puts the tissues in such condition from its effect that they throw off the cold."

Pneumonia goes harder with men than women, all doctors agree, the reason being that the latter are more constantly exposed.

As soon as the rigor comes on, which is as significant of approaching danger as the shrill rattle of a snake, go to bed. Do not temporize with the disease. Discretion is the best part of valor, and a quick surrender makes the enemy less implacable.

Take an effective laxative, 20 grains of quinine, a hot lemonade, and get a good sweat. Stay in bed for 36 hours, and in six cases out of ten the symptoms will pass.

In children the rigor is often displaced by a convulsion or violent fit of nausea.

In amateur treatment to prevent what inclines toward pneumonia, care should always be taken about the heart. Failure of cardiac power is the great source of danger, and, therefore, digitalis, which is such a help in uncomplicated cases, to depress the circulation, has to be sparingly used where any heart weakness is discernible.

But quinine remains good in all cases and stages. It can be taken in large doses, 20 grains or more, repeated at intervals of 24 hours. A full dose of brandy is an excellent accompanist to this.

Cold baths are given at once, abroad, but it is not a safe thing to try without the aid of a physician, and would be classed more as a cure than a preventative. So the old-time remedy of a good hot mustard foot bath with a blanket wrapped about the knees and a few blankets over the body stands still a favor at the beginning of the invasion.

Absolute quiet should be maintained from the start, for the nerves play a great part in the development of pneumonia. The room should be at a temperature of 68 degrees. Milk, soup or lemonade, quite hot, should be the only food. If the fever rises, cold sponging is the thing to do, except in the case of weak children, when tepid baths should be substituted. Turpentine inhalations assists expectoration, tone up the system and are pleasant for the patient. Some of the physicians now favor a hypodermic injection of borax; claiming that it is an excellent arrester.

If there is a pain in the side or lungs, which generally accompanies the rigor, mustard plasters should be used, and wet or dry cupping according to the intensity of the pain. Some physicians are using choloroform soaked in cotton, with a dry layer of the cotton protecting it, to alleviate the distress. But, again, this deserves professional treatment.

If one has any tendency toward lung or throat trouble it is well to remember that the ankles and arms should be kept well covered. These parts are very sensitive, and the woman who wears a short-sleeved, high-necked shirt is more imprudent than if she exposed her throat. For this reason high boots should be unvaryingly worn in cool days outside of the house or inside, if there is no furnace heat.—Jocelyn Davies, in St. Louis Republican.

The Bicycle for Women.

The mention of the bicycle for women opens a field of mild controversy which is only important because some of the objections to its use are taken from the hygeic standpoint as well as from the social. Many objectors contend that the wheel is as undesirable for women as the sewing machine, while the majority of parents seriously object to what they feel to be the unpleasant publicity of the exercise. As a matter of health, which is of the first importance, the writer has made many inquiries among women who use the wheel regarding the effects of the exercise upon them, and has failed to discover a single case of injury or poor health resulting from its use. On the contrary, the testimony to its exhiliarating and healthful effect is universal. Several other American physicians, qualified to speak from experience in their practice among women, have warmly commended its use. From the standpoint of a symmetrical exercise, the position is preferable to that on a horse. The movement is unlike that of a sewing machine in several important respects: Instead of being bowed over in a cramped position which restricts the action of the lungs, digestive and pelvic organs alike, the woman rider sits erect, with full opportunity for chest expansion, while the difference between the environment of the sewing woman and the riding woman as regards indoor and out-of-door life is most important.—Dr. Mary T. Bissell in The Popular Science Monthly.

When a Pumpkin Grows.

A. P. Anderson, a graduate student in the department of botany at the State University, has just completed some novel and very interesting investigations as to the growth of plants. In this series of experiments Mr. Anderson has been studying the growth of the pumpkin and its vine, making use of his new electrical device for measuring plant growth.

This work has been in progress for fully a week, and the interesting fact is revealed that the pumpkin itself does most of its growing after 7 o'clock in the evening and diminishes its activity as the sun rises and begins to act upon its leaves. From 9 o'clock in the morning until 3 o'clock in the afternoon the weight of the fruit diminishes, owing to the evaporation of water from the leaves of the plant. The general results show that when the fruit grows most the vine grows least, and vice versa.

The course of these experiments has been watched with great interest by the botanical department, as they cover a part of the science as yet very little known.—Minneapolis Times.

MME. EMMA EAMES.

The Great Soprano.

Very beautiful are the features of Mdme. Emma Eames, the great singer, whose art has delighted many thousands. Her presence is gracious, her intellectuality unquestioned and her voice a perfect delight. Praise from one so celebrated, then, has a high value, and this is what Mdme. Emma Eames says of "Vin Mariani," the famous tonic wine:—"Vin Mariani" is a most delightful and efficacious tonic, of inestimable value." All public characters, doing a great deal of brain work, feel the beneficial effects of this tonic-stimulant, which is a great nourisher of the brain, imparting at the same time to the body, debilitated or depressed, new vigor, so that it has been well called by Zola, the elixir of life. "Vin Mariani" is more tonic than iron or quinine, and does not produce constipation. Send your address to Lawrence A. Wilson & Co., Montreal, the Canadian Agents, and you will receive an album, containing the portraits of a large number of celebrities, who have spoken enthusiastically of this notable stimulant, prepared from pure grapes and coca leaves.

OPENING THEIR CELLARS,

Montreal Gazette says:

A very pleasant little affair was the inspection of the Bordeaux Claret Company's cellars by His Honor Lieutenant-Governor Chapleau. The manager has sent out invitations to several prominent citizens, who were in attendance to meet His Honor. Among those present were Hon. Peter Mitchell, Mr. Richard White, Lieut.-Colonel Hughes, Messrs. Henry Dalby, E. N. St. Jean, Q.C., J. P. B. Casgrain, J. M. Fortier, Geo. W. Stephens, jr., D. Z. Bessette, A. Terroux, S. S. Silverman, ex-Ald. Dufresne, Ald. Préfontaine, Hon. A. Archambault, M.L.C., etc. After the visit of inspection to the cellars had been paid and the different arrangements for bottling, etc., highly commented upon, toasts were in order. A mented upon, toasts were in order. A beautiful speech was uttered by the Lieutenant-Governor, who wished the Company success in their great enterprise. SIMPLY A SUGGESTION.

What's the use of sighing?
Just as cheap to laugh.
What's the use of crying?
Just as cheap to chaff.
Song will sweeten sorrow,
Sun will rise to-morrow,
And relief you borrow
For a guiding staff.

What's the use of fretting,
When the clouds hang low?
What's the use of getting
Left where'er you go?
Just step out and hustle
'Mid the din and bustle,
Brains and brawny muscle
Always stand a show.

What's the use of moping?
Doesn't pay your rent.
What's the use of groping
In your tenement?
Tho' the skies are grieving
And the birds are leaving,
Stand up for achieving,
Never be content.

Pleasant Debt We Owe to Dr. Holmes.

Among the titles of Dr. Holmes to gratitude and enduring remembrance, which recall themselves to us so numerously and forcibly at the moment of his death, there is one I hope no one will lose sight of, and which perhaps ought to be called his influence as a civilizer. He not only showed us, it seems to me—and I am thinking of some of his more didactic poems, of the opening chapters of "Elsie Venner," of countless passages in the "Autocrat" and the "Professor"—what a fine foundation we Americans have to build upon, but he was the means of inciting directly a multitude of readers to work toward ideals of real and sincere culture (not the sham article) which have never in our literature been put into such sane and comprehensive form. I should like to see a muster, and I am sure it would be a large one, of the men now in middle age whose mental tone has been, consciously or unconsciously, considerably influenced by the kindly castigation, until they seemed intolerable, of shams and half-baked pretences that otherwise they might have gone on tolerating; by the flashes of unmalignant wit in which even small boorishness and meanesses were suddenly shown up in so unmistakable a light that it seemed impossible ever to permit them again; by the numberless cumulative touches by which an ideal of the gentleman was built up, wholesome, sensible, unpriggish, attainable by every sincere sham-hating man, yet also full of quiet, high things, charity, consideration for others—"a man of gentle will."—From "The Point of View" in Scribner's Magazine.

Remarkable Literary Workshops.

Genius has frequently had remarkable workshops. Robert Burns once went galloping over a remote Scottish moor. His horse on this occasion was not much troubled with the guidance of the rider. Burns was busy, brooding over a glorious theme. His lyrical powers touched one of their highest points. The result of this journey was the impassioned national lyric, "Scots Wha Hae wi' Wallace Bled." J. S. Mill framed his "Logic" as he walked from his home to his office and back again. Sir Matthew Hale composed his "Contemplations" as he rode on horseback about country on his circuit journeys. While traveling in the same fashion on his numerous and prolonged preaching tours John Wesley contrived to accomplish a vast quantity of literary work. Byron composed the larger portion of the "Corsair" in a London thoroughfare, as he walked up and down Albemarle street, between Grafton street and Piccadilly; and states himself that he composed "Lara," not in the study, but at the toilet table. "The Revolt of Islam" took form in Shelley's brain as the poet apparently frittered away summer hours lying in a boat on the bosom of the Thames at Marlow.—Chamber's Journal.

German Women as Farmhands.

The utilization of women in Germany as farmhands, which so many moralists have considered their duty to censure, apparently meets with approval from Dr. Joseph Krauskopf, the Rabbi, for in a letter from Germany to his congregation he says: "Such farm work for women is neither degrading nor taxing. They have pledged to become helpmates to their husbands and they regard it as their duty to lessen the labors of their fathers, and being physically able to do their share they regard it wrong to permit the stronger sex to slave themselves to death while they are idling at home. Judging from their happy and healthy looks, they seem to be none the worse for taking their places alongside the men folks for the purpose of honestly earning their bread. Had we a little more pratical good sense and less sentimentality among our women at home, many a woman's life might be happier to-day, happier for being more useful, and many a man's life would be spared the necessity of slaving itself to death to indulge a wife's or a daughter's idleness and luxuries."—Philadelphia Record.

The Manna of Arabia.

In some of the Eastern countries, notably Arabia and Persia, a manna answering closely to that mentioned in the Scriptures is still naturally produced in considerable quantity. It comes from the tender branches of the tamarisk, and is shown to the Persians by the name of tamarisk honey. It consists of tear-like drops which exude in consequence of the puncture of an insect in June and July. In the cool of the morning it is found solidified, and the congealed tears may be shaken from the limbs. That, in fact, is one of the methods of gathering manna.

Herodotus alluds to the same nutritious product, so that there is no doubt it has been known in those regions from the earliest ages. It is easy to see how it might be produced in wonderful quantities without any special manifestation of the supernatural. It is a sweetish substance, pleasant to the taste and highly nutritive. Some students of the Bible have supposed the manna there mentioned to have been a fungus growth, but while the explanation would be a natural one, the modification which it would require is an unnecessary one.—Good Housekeeping.

Probing the Mystery of Ether.

The bequest of $115,000 which the late Robert Stanton Avery has left in his will to the Smithsonian Institution for "lectures and treatises upon and concerning those mechanical laws which govern ethereal mediums" might appear at first blush to be the testamentary whim of a very etherial personage. The value of this scientific legacy, however, may prove incalculable from the standpoint of America's position in the world of science. The mystery of ether—that unknown, hypothetical medium for all the waves of heat, light, sound, magnetism and electricity—lies at the bottom of the secret of nature, and the Avery endowment may yet be the incentive to original research which shall take mankind a step nearer to the sources of world energy and force transmition.—Philadelphia Record.

Scrofula in the Neck—Bunches All Gone Now.

Sangerville, Maine.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Gentlemen:—I feel that I cannot say enough in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla. For five years I have been troubled with scrofula in my neck and throat. Several kinds of medicines which I tried did not do me any good, and when I commenced to take Hood's Sarsaparilla there were large bunches on my neck so sore that I could
