

Yanks Knot Series 3-All; Spahn Loses Tough One

By JACK HAND
MILWAUKEE (AP)—Gil McDougald's 10th-inning home run ruined a magnificent pitching effort by Warren Spahn Wednesday as a 4-3 Yankee victory sent the New York-Milwaukee world series into a seventh game.

Through nine innings the 37-year-old Milwaukee southpaw, working with only two days rest, duelled with three different Yankee pitchers only to lose in the 10th. Singles by Elston Howard and Yogi Berra finished him off and the Yanks added the all-important extra run on Bill Skowron's single off relief man Don McMahon.

Ryne Duren, who followed Whitey Ford and Art Ditmar to the mound, fired his blinding fast ball past the Braves from the sixth to the 10th when he suddenly lost his stuff.

FANS EIGHT, FALTERS
The big fellow with the thick glasses struck out the side in the sixth and ninth, fanning eight in 4-2-3 innings before he faltered with two out in the 10th.

Johnny Logan, who had walked and taken second while Duren wound up making Eddie Mawletz his eighth strikeout victim, scored when Hank Aaron singled.

Out came grizzled old Casey Stengel to talk with his pitcher, as Joe Adcock grabbed a bat. Casey decided to stay with Duren but when Adcock pumped a single to centre, moving the potential tying run to third base, Stengel did not hesitate.

With one wave of the hand, Stengel summoned Boo Turley from the Yankee bullpen. Turley, who brought the series back to Milwaukee with Monday's shutout, had to face Frank Torre, a left-handed batter hitting for Del Crandall.

MCDUGALD ENDS IT
Torre connected with Bob's third pitch and the ball sailed toward short right field with second baseman McDougald in full pursuit. For a split second it seemed it would fall safely for a hit. McDougald had it all the way, as it turned out, gloving the ball for the game-ending out.

Thus ended the last gasp effort of the Braves to save Spahn who deserved a better fate. All through the dreary afternoon he had fought off the Yankees although he hadn't worked with such a short rest since 1956. Four Milwaukee errors kept him walking a tightrope all day.

With the score tied at 2-2, Mc-

Dougald led off the Yankee 10th. He had one of the six hits off Spahn up to that time. Spahn got one called strike on him. But the next pitch did it.

McDougald rode his field bleachers—a 375-foot blow.

Spahn settled down to retire the next two batters. But when Howard and Berra singled, manager Fred Haney decided his ace had taken enough.

CHEERED OFF FIELD
As Haney trudged from the gloom of the Braves' dugout to replace his pitcher, the crowd of 46,367 rose to give Spahn a deserved ovation.

The scene was packed with drama for the crowd realized that Spahn had hoped to match the 1957 feat of his room-mate—Lew Burdette—who humbled the Yanks three times last October.

Burdette will get his chance to wrap up a second straight world series for the Braves in today's seventh game. The Yanks will decide between Don Larsen and Johnny Kucks, depending on the status of Larsen's sore right arm.

Braves continued to strike out all over the place. Wednesday's 12 victims gave them an unwanted series record of 33, surpassing the Chicago Cubs of 1929.

Eddie Mathews also moved to a record. He struck out twice, a total of 11 for the series. No series batter ever had done that badly. The previous high was 10.

FORD FADES EARLY
Both managers gambled by starting their ace pitchers with only two days rest. It soon became obvious that Whitey Ford, the Yanks' chunky lefty, didn't have it.

It seemed that Spahn also was going to have to struggle. Hank Bannum homered over the left field barrier, about 360 feet away, with two out in the first inning.

Spahn escaped further damage despite an error by Red Schoendienst in the first, and a pair by Johnny Logan in the second and third. Milwaukee quickly tied the score against Ford in the first on Schoendienst's lead-off single, Logan's sacrifice and Hank Aaron's single.

With one out in the second, the Braves ripped into Ford. Wes Covington singled to centre. Andy Paiko hit the first pitch to right field for another single. Spahn, who took a .375 batting average into the game, also hit the first pitch—a single to centre scoring Covington.

HOWARD SAVES DITMAR
After Schoendienst drew a walk, Stengel made his first of many trips from dugout to mound. He called for Art Ditmar, the right-hander he had considered as a possible starter.

Ditmar got out of the jam when Logan fled to Howard in short left and Paiko tried to score. Howard's fine peg, in the air all the way, nipped Paiko about eight feet from the plate for an inning-ending double play.

Spahn needed that 2-1 lead, fighting off the snapping Yankees and his own sloppy defenders.

The Yankees never had more than one man on base in the first five innings. Suddenly they lit into Spahn in the sixth.

Mickey Mantle lined a single over Logan's head and Howard singled to centre. When Bill Bruton, who had just entered the game for defensive purposes, fumbled the ball, Mantle went all the way to third.

Berra's sacrifice fly to Bruton was so deep that the throw came to second base instead of the plate, Mantle scoring easily.

Still in trouble, Spahn walked Skowron on a full count.

GETS SLAUGHTERED, LUMPE
Stengel sent up 42-year-old Enos Slaughter, a lefthanded batter, to hit against Spahn. Enos grounded out to second.

Once more Stengel went to a lefthanded pinch-hitter. This time it was Jerry Lumpe who went down swinging on a high hard one.

Duren took up the burden at that stage because Lumpe had batted for Ditmar.

Adcock and Crandall each looked at a third strike in the sixth. Covington singled but Bruton went down swinging.

In the seventh Duren whiffed Spahn and got the next two on liners to left field.

Nobody struck out in the eighth when Duren lost Adcock on a 3-2 count and walked him. He was back in strikeout form again in the ninth when Covington, Bruton and Spahn all wiffed.

After McDougald's homer and the extra run that proved to be so important, Duren went out for the 10th.

Billy Herman Haunted By Incident In Earlier Game

By CHUCK CAPALDO
MILWAUKEE (AP)—A "last-second decision" spawned by the fleeing memory of an incident in the second world series game haunted third-base coach Billy Herman and the Braves after the sixth game Wednesday.

The play that cost the erstwhile fallen Herman and the Braves so dearly came in the second inning with one run in, one out and the bases loaded. The slow-footed Andy Paiko, who had singled, was on third.

Shortstop Johnny Logan sent a looping fly ball to medium left field. The Yankees' Elston Howard caught the ball and then—the surprise of many—Herman sent Paiko home where he was doubled. The double play killed a promising rally and left Herman open to one of the biggest second-guesses of the series to date.

"I wasn't going to send him in at first," a dejected Herman said in the Braves' clubhouse minutes after the Yankees' 4-3 victory in 10 innings.

"Then, at the last second, I thought of that throw Howard made in the second game here, the one that went over Yogi Berra's head," Herman continued. The throw he referred to came in the Braves' seven-run frame of a game they won 13-5.

"That's the way it goes, I guess."

Said Paiko:
"Billy told me to go. I was sure that ball wasn't hit too far so I yelled, 'Billy, what should I do?' He said, 'Yeah, go,' or something like that. I didn't have a chance the way he threw that ball."

Haney stalked around his cubicle, muttering under his breath. "I've had plenty of chances to score. What'd we leave on base—nine?"

"We should have won it in

SPORTS FRONT

By PIUS CALLAGHAN

THOSE OF YOU who expect us to really gloat over yesterday's victory of the New York Yankees are in for a surprise. We're in no such mood after that 10 inning thriller that knotted the 1958 world series at three games each and makes this afternoon's tussle, strictly a sudden death affair.

LIKE THE OPENING GAME in Milwaukee one week earlier, that affair yesterday was anybody's game. The breaks very often decide the issue and we think that the double play the Yankees executed in the second inning turned the tide in this crucial contest. When Art Ditmar strode to the mound in that frame, the bases were loaded and only one was out. The Braves had already garnered a run in the stans and led 2-1 in the half game. They were threatening to break the affair wide open and had already chased the Yankee ace, Whitey Ford.

JOHNNY LOGAN, always a tough customer, was standing there ready to greet Ditmar when he made his way from the bullpen. Johnny caught hold of Art's first pitch and sent it soaring to left field. Elston Howard broke the back of a Brave rally on Monday flew after the ball and after the catch sent a long strike to Yogi Berra at home plate. Andy Paiko was coming from third but Berra was waiting with the ball to greet the veteran outfielder. The Braves never scored from then until the tenth when they all but overcome the two run margin the Yankees had built up in the top of that frame.

AND SO THIS IS it this afternoon. There are no more chances for either team after this one. Regardless of who wins it's been an exciting series, if not a brilliantly played one. The Yankee defence has looked bad in the early stages of the series and the world champions were a jittery lot yesterday, making four miscues. You would imagine the tension would have been greater on the Yanks but if it was the Bombers didn't let the secret out.

FRED HANEY will undoubtedly send Lew Burdette at the New Yorkers and Casey Stengel likely will select Bob Turley, who was terrific in the fifth game and who put out the fire in the sizzling battle yesterday. But the bullpen will be crowded, make no mistake about that. Casey and Haney won't hesitate to make changes today. The chips are right on the line and both managers will give it all they got to pick them all up.

THIS YEAR will see a renewal of the football feud between Prince of Wales and Saint Dunstan's.

In the past these get-togethers were great sport entertainment and students of both institutions looked forward to their annual clashes. With the death of English rugby here, the annual series waned by the boards but the rivalry will be back in real earnest, only this season on a Canadian football basis.

The team that will oppose the Welshmen will be the Junior Varsity and to date this squad is a bit shy on practice sessions. It's a costly proposition outfitting a team and so far Saint Dunstan's has only enough equipment for the Varsity boys who are competing in the Maritime Intercollegiate League.

The Juniors get the equipment when the seniors are not using it but that's not too often these days as A. J. McAdam is working his charges daily in an endeavour to have them in top condition for the strong St. Mary's team which plays here Thanksgiving Day.

OF COURSE everything can't be done in a day. The Junior Varsity will in a short time have their own equipment and won't have to worry about depending on their seniors. But it takes about $2,000 (so we are told) to outfit a squad and that kind of money isn't always found in a hurry. It will come, of course, but hardly this year at St. Dunstan's.

We are sure, however, that the officials in charge of football at S.D.U. won't be a bit embarrassed if some sport-minded person 'come across' and equipped this Junior Varsity team. They are certainly not making any such appeal but we feel safe in saying that they would be mighty glad to meet up with such a benefactor.

WHAT'S THE MATTER with hockey around these parts? Perhaps, there's something going on that we haven't been able to find out about, but we must confess we have absolutely nothing to report on the prospects for the coming season.

It's true we are not ready for the actual action on the ice but the time is past for the planning of the winter operation. Of course, it's not too late to get rolling but if much more time is allowed to slip by, we are going to find ourselves without any organized league at all.

We had great rivalry in the Island league for a couple of seasons and there doesn't seem to be anything to prevent a renewal of such rivalry. Last year's Summerside-Amherst-Charlottetown affair proved a dismal flop so there doesn't appear an likelihood of a repeat performance along those lines. Our only hope lies in competition among Island teams. And there must be somebody anxious to see such a league formed around these parts.

How about some action before it's too late?

ROLLIE'S ARROWS, with Willis Hennessey at the helm, leave Friday evening for St. Stephen where they will play the St. Stephen-St. Croix club for the Maritime Intermediate baseball crown.

The Arrows won the Island championship by downing Peakes Bombers in two straight games, then were awarded a bye in the Maritime finals. The New Brunswickers won the N.B.-N.S. championship by defeating the Antigonish club in both ends of a doubleheader in Antigonish.

All games in this best-of-three final will be played in St. Stephen. Saturday will find the outfits compete in a doubleheader and if a third game is necessary it will be played on Monday.

This St. Stephen-St. Croix club is a strong team and the Arrows will be decided underdogs in the series. That won't stop the boys from giving their best and that best may prove a bit annoying to the border town boys.

Best of luck, Arrows.

ST. LOUIS CARDINALS were a bitter disappointment this season in the National league. The Red Birds showed little signs of life and those who had predicted great things were really let down.

What about next year? Well their deposed manager, Fred Hutchinson was asked what he thought about the Cardinals chances in 1959. Fred didn't hesitate in his reply.

"Last year the club wasn't expected to go so well but it got a combination effort and things jelled. No one individual can carry a club. This year when we made our one move in late June, two kids, Gene Green and Curt Flood, did a great job. If those two kids can come back in the critical second year and play as they did at their peak performance, then the Cards could do very well next year."

Umpires Miss One Every Year

By JERRY LISKA
MILWAUKEE (AP)—"We finally got tough and broke up that one-man show of theirs—that Spahn fellow."

That was manager Casey Stengel speaking in a Yankee dressing room surprisingly calm and dignified after squaring the world series with a 4-3, 10th inning victory Wednesday. The "Braves" Warren Spahn was the losing pitcher.

"I feel better now for my club and myself," said Casey. "We bounce back after a poor showing in this series and now it goes to the wire."

Speed-balling reliever Ryne Duren, who struck out eight Braves, was mobbed by writers and photographers.

ANNNOYED AT CALL
The bespectacled Duren said "I just don't remember doing it" about a choke-up gesture he made at plate umpire Charles Berry after a fourth ball call on Milwaukee's Johnny Logan in the 10th inning.

"I was hot, all right," said Duren. "The ball was high enough to be called a strike. But I can't say what I did with my hands."

Duren said he didn't think he was as fast as usual. "I think my fast ball looked faster, though, and probably was helped by the heavy humidity."

Stengel said the pitcher for today's decisive seventh game would be Don Larsen or John Kucks. "You might consider Bob Turley, also," said Stengel. "And maybe Duren will be in there again."

Whipper Watson Wins on Early Tag

The Whip claims that "in this annual match with winter, I'm ahead of the game right from the start 'cause I get an early Green Tag." Whipper is referring to the Green "Prestone" Anti-Freeze Tag that's attached to his radiator. It's proof that he has "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze in his car's cooling system. And that's protection against frost, corrosion, rust, clogging and foaming.

"What's more," says Whipper "with 'Prestone' Anti-Freeze I also have magnetic film going for me—the extra protection of a coating all through the cooling system. This magnetic coating effectively seals off rust—actually prevents it from forming." Follow Whipper's lead... get an early Green Tag this winter.
