IN MEMORIAM

CAMPBELL — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Elmer J. Campbell, who passed away four years ago September 8th.

When we are sad and lonely
And everything goes wrong
We seem to hear you whisper
Cheer up and carry on.
Each time we see your photo
You seem to smile and say
Don't cry I'm only sleeping
We will meet again some day.

Lovingly remembered by his wife and family.

MacGILVRAY — In loving memory of John MacGilvray, who passed away September 13, 1953.

Time cannot fill the vacant chair
That holds an empty space.
Time cannot make our home the same
Without you in its place.
The flowers we place upon your grave
May wither and decay.
But the love for one who sleeps beneath
Shall never fade away.

Sadly missed and deeply mourned by wife and family.

MacKENZIE — In fond and loving memory of our dear son and brother, Sandy MacKenzie, who passed away twelve years ago September 9th.

Deep in our hearts there is a picture.
More precious than silver or gold.
A picture of our dear son and brother,
Whose memory shall never grow old.
Though the tears in our eyes do not glisten,
And our faces do not always look sad,
There is never a night or a morning,
But we think of our dear son and brother.

Lovingly remembered by his father, mother, sisters, and brothers.

TIMELY NOTES ON FUR FARMING

A figure "8" Arcturus mink scarf, designed by Norman Rogul furs, Toronto, was presented to Queen Elizabeth in Halifax just before Her Majesty left for London following her six-weeks tour of Canada.

Mr. Rogul was commissioned by a group of senior Canadian Royal Tours since 1939. The scarf, of single width, required four skins. It ties at the front.

New York City's fabulous fur market was given a television once-over last Sunday on a CBS-"Eye On New York". It is believed to be the first time the fur industry has been the subject of coast-to-coast television coverage. More than sixty CBS-TV stations carried the show which originated in New York.

In Mr. Leonard's talk about the City of New York, he described it as "The Fur Capital of the World". He also discussed various aspects of the fur industry with Walter Schwartz of Fredericka Furs. A film-clip on mink marketing, made by Hudson's Bay Company Fur Sales of New York, was shown, and a variety of furs were modelled with Cynthia Marks as commetator.

STORING FURS

One of the new, modern cold storage systems for the preservation of furs consists of a method which blows cold air into the vault. At intervals, the storage vault temperature is lowered rapidly to about 18 degrees Farenheit, in order to kill moth larvae, and then it is maintained at 40 degrees.

The relative humidity is maintained at 50 to 60 percent, to prevent drying out of the skins.

The United States authorities are very active in seeing that furriers do not deceive the public with representations regarding the goods they sell. Recently the fur trade commission challenged the price advertising practices of six Philadelphia furriers, and also charged five of them with deceiving buyers as to the animals that produced the fur, its natural color, and the country of origin.

The six F.T.C. complaints said the firm's advertisements had misrepresented, by stating that retail prices for their furs were "wholesale prices". They were also charged with failing to disclose the names of animals used in the fur products; failing to disclose that products contained, or were composed of bleached, dyed, or otherwise artificially colored fur; and failing to disclose the country of origin of the furs contained in their products.

MINK HATS

Mink hats are headlined by Filene's of Boston in a two-thirds page an illustration six styles ranging from $9.98 to $175. The ad advocates "A look of magnificence in mink hats. To give your costume great charm, as one spot of elegance, or to match jackets, collor, or muff".

Styles sketched include ranch mink toque—$175; mink-sides checia—$38; ripple-brim cloche of natural mink sides—$55; and white mink bleached mink tail shell—$15.

HOME GROWN

Great Lakes Mink Association, largest producers of ranch mink in the United States, last week launched an advertising program on the virtues of "North American mink, as opposed to the imported product".

The program's copy, suggests that mink raised in climates other than North American will develop "characteristics which are highly undersirable in a good fur The Great Lakes schedule includes two pages in several magazines, also in newspapers.

In Montreal last week a variety of fur designs and furs—the collection of M.S. Shuchat Fur Company, Ltd.—was shown at the Ritz Carleton Hotel. Among the forty garments, 15 types of fur were seen, used either single or in novel combinations.

Of particular interest was the showing of reversible coats; these ranged from a full length Majestic Canada dark mink coat, lined with scroll-weaved silk, to the more ordinary minded combination of hamster and black-dyed muskrat (formerly known as Hudson seal).

As to length, the return to popularity of the shorter styles was evident. Striking effect in shading is seen in an EMBA mutation stole. The straight piece consists of tiers of four shades of mutation mink: autumn haze, stewart autumn haze, desert gold and diadem.
