THE BOOMERANG.

A Verse Description of the Make and Use of This Weapon.

This novel weapon became an intensely interesting object to me very soon after arriving in Australia and for the purpose of studying it, I went persistently among the black fellows, whose friendship I cultivated in different ways, and so succeeded eventually in learning how to make and throw the boomerang. So far, well and good; but of its history I could learn nothing. Of the origin of the crooked stick I was so ignorant, one can only conjecture. It is possible it may have been born with the race itself from the accident of throwing a flint stick; for from childhood the black fellow shows a natural bent for throwing things, as you can see by watching him use his only other weapon, the spear-thrower, and bow and arrow, so common in other lands, is not used, except in the extreme northern portion of the great island continent, where there is a mixture of the race with the Papuan of New Guinea.

There is the war boomerang, hunting boomerang, and amusement boomerang. This last is used for light hunting, such as killing ducks, cockatoos, and parrots, and a half in length, the fighting and hunting ones being the largest and heaviest. The hardest and toughest wood is selected, and the form of the weapon follows the grain of the wood; thus, if the crook of the root or limb is little or much, so is the form of the boomerang. You will find that nearly every one is of a different shape. In my collection I have them varying from almost straight to a shape like that of the letter V.

Nearly straight, curved, plain, ornamented, some with strange carvings, and all varying according to different sections of the country and individual tribes, each having its own name or style, showing respectively roughness or considerable finish, and being especially characteristic in the ends or points—all of which a boomerang connoisseur will distinguish at once, and locate as to tribe and section.

In the black fellow's humpy, where he keeps his collection, I have seen in a corner with a pile of spears, clubs, rags, bark, and skins of kangaroo and wallaby, I have seen very rare and curious specimens.

The nomad black fellow makes his primitive humpy, or hut, in a location chosen temporarily, according to his necessities for the day, and he constructs it by cutting a young sapling half through about four feet from the ground, and binding it over to a horizontal position, thus forming a ridge or support which he covers with strips of bark or laid. The covering is always against the wind, and before the sun is high a fire is always burning or smouldering. The door, like the wind, and if it changes, presto! the humpy, too, is changed in a twinkling.

Down in this humpy corner, underneath the pile of bark, you will find a kangaroo like a rabbit when he goes to sleep, and from the same place he will provide himself with a weapon when starting off for a hunt.—Harper's Young People.

Sit Up Straight. Your backbone was not made for a barrel hoop; so do not curve it around, but rather straighten it out. God made man upright; he does not like the twisted, crooked, or bending over.

If you bend over too much in your study, get a lower seat. Saw the legs off an old chair, and put a board under it so low that your chin will come just above the table, make the hind legs a little shorter than the fore legs, and then read and write as long as you can, with your back to the wall, and you will find it will take out some of the crook from your back.

Some mother whose daughter was getting the habit of sitting slumped, had her sit flat on her back, without a pillow, for an hour each day, while she read to her out of some interesting book. In a little while she was as straight as an arrow, and a picture of health and strength.

In some countries the women carry pails, tubs and heavy loads on their heads—these keep them straight. Throwing is back, arms in another mode of keeping straight. Remember, you may add years to your life by standing up straight, and you may not only live longer, but be a happier, more useful, and more successful man.

Remember, "God made man upright." Remember, "God made man upright."

Stimulated Life Duty. Some trials have just been made at Kiel on board of the German war vessel Wurtel with an electrically lighted life buoy, the invention of Capt. Meiler. The buoy was thrown overboard, and the vessel was proceeding at a speed of about sixteen knots. For a space of about twelve seconds it was lost in the darkness, and then it was picked up by the crew of the vessel, but then reappeared. The new life buoy will be found useful at night, and the experiment is repeated as a lesson to the crew. It is probable that it will be adopted generally in the German navy.

Wages in England and Wales. At the latest hiring fairs held in various parts of England and Wales, engagements were made for the term of twelve months, beginning in 1894, at the following prices: Farm foremen, $90 to $120 per year; second hands, $80 to $90; plow boys, $50 to $60; lads, $30 to $50. Female farm servants, $10 to $12 per month; wages ranging from $80 to $100 per year for household girls; $30 to $50 for kitchen maids; women able to attend the dairy, $50 to $65.

Clippings. It takes a Spanish express train a day to travel 100 miles. The first iron mine in the United States was opened in Virginia in 1663. Five thousand words are daily sent over the cable connecting Australia and Europe. In foggy London one day brought into the pockets of one gas company $800,000. Pennsylvania has a greater railway mileage per square mile than Germany, France or Holland. In France the doctor's claim on the estate of a deceased patient has precedence over all other claims. In order to protect an invention all over the world 64 patents are required, at a cost of about $17,500. Insurance companies claim that cycling is more dangerous than traveling either by railroads or steamships. Odd and Interesting. Newspaper advertisements date from 1652. London theatres employ over 12,000 persons. A Russian does not become of age until he is 20. More accidents occur to the right leg than to any other limb. Finger-prints as a means of identification have been adopted in the Indian army. A Perfect Cure for Cold in the Head. "It cured me of a severe cold in the head," is what Mr. A. D. McDonald of Franboise, C. B., says of Hawker's Catarrh Cure. Sold everywhere, only 25 cents.
