

Activities Of Rivard Voted Top Canadian News Story

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
 Jean Rivard's fantastic activities were voted the top Canadian story of the year by news editors participating in a Canadian Press poll.

The doings of the chunky 50-year-old dope smuggler from Montreal — jailbreak, recapture, trial and attendant political touches — easily beat out the November federal general election in the annual survey. The Dorion inquiry into the political side of the Rivard case rated third on its own.

On the world scene, the No. 1 story in Canada was the death of Sir Winston Churchill on Jan. 21, which edged a pair tied for second — the March 18 "walk" in space by a Russian cosmonaut and the Los Angeles race riots in August.

The selections were made by editors representing CP member newspapers and radio and television stations served by Broadcast News, a CP subsidiary.

They were asked to pick the top six in Canadian and world events.

The judicial inquiry by Mr. Justice Frederic Dorion into the way federal authorities handled a bribery allegation in the Rivard affair was the only story in either category that carried over from 1964 to stay among the leaders — third place in the Canadian list each time.

KEPT AHEAD
 Rivard personally did not make the 1964 selections, but this year his spectacular March 2 jailbreak at Montreal and subsequent stories kept him continually on the front pages until his sentencing Nov. 12 in Texas to 20 years for directing a ring smuggling huge quantities of heroin into the United States.

Here are the selections:

CANADIAN

1. Lucien Rivard's continuing story.
2. The Nov. 8 federal election in which the Liberals narrowly failed, for a second time, to get a parliamentary majority.
3. The Dorion inquiry with its June 29 report critical of the way then Justice minister Guy Favreau handled the allegation that a ministerial executive assistant offered a bribe to ease Rivard's way out of jail.
4. The Feb. 18 avalanche at the British Columbia mining camp of Granduc in which 28 men died when snow and ice thundered down a mountainside.
5. The mystery crash of an explosion-torn Canadian Pacific Airlines plane over central British Columbia July 8 with a toll of 32 lives and a persisting question mark as to whether it was accident or mass murder.

6. The death of 28 persons in a natural gas explosion that ripped open an apartment block in the Montreal suburb of Ville LaSalle March 1.

BLACKOUT FOLLOWS
 Behind the scene came the unfolding story of Quebec's arson-bankruptcy-murder links and the great northeastern North America power blackout of Nov. 9, the latter also just failing to make the first six in world news.

WORLD

1. Sir Winston Churchill's death.
2. Soviet walk-in-space and Los Angeles race riots.
3. Rhodesia's assumption of independence from Great Britain on Nov. 11.
4. The escalation of the war in Viet Nam.
5. Pope Paul's historic visit to the United Nations Oct. 4 with his plea for peace before the General Assembly.

Right behind came history's greatest power blackout, traced eventually to a relay on the Ontario side of the Niagara Falls hydro installation, and the India-Pakistan dispute over Kashmir, where Canadian airmen are serving with a United Nations mission.

TRAFFIC DEATH CASE MAY BE RE-OPENED

Wrong" to use this figure as a fixed estimate.

Liberal sources feel that the Opposition heat will diminish when the fair is referred to the standing committee on finance, trade and economic affairs. At this stage, they say, fair officials can be questioned in committee, and the pressure will come off the minister.

TRAFIC DEATH CASE MAY BE RE-OPENED

MONTREAL (CP)—A spokesman for Justice Minister Claude Wagner said justice department officials are examining testimony of a coroner's inquest to determine whether further proceedings will follow a car crash involving the Roman Catholic bishop of Trois-Rivieres.

The coroner's jury exonerated the bishop, Most Rev. Georges Leon Pelletier, whose car and another collided head-on Dec. 13 on the Trois-Rivieres bridge in which the driver of the other car, Jean-Jacques Bisailon, 26, a salesman, was killed.

Mr. Wagner said in an interview his department is not legally bound by a coroner's court verdict.

Asked to comment on reports that the case will be reopened, the minister said: "All are equal before the law. A bishop is no more beyond the normal course of justice than a minister is."

Bishop Pelletier testified at the inquest he did not realize until too late that in passing he was in the wrong lane.

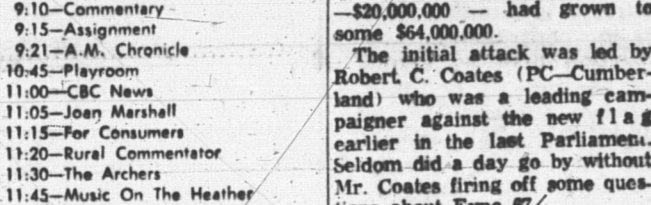

At the inquest, District Coroner Jean-Luc Bellemare instructed the jury to decide whether Bishop Pelletier committed a criminal act or merely made a driving error.

A verdict of accidental death was returned by the jury.

EDITOR SWITCHES OVER

LONDON (CP)—The new editor of the Shooting Times, Peter Brown, was for 17 years secretary of the Royal Society for the Preservation of Birds.

WINTERS TO FACE QUESTIONS OVER EXPO 67 PREPARATIONS

Mr. Winters, soon to be sworn in as minister of trade and commerce, will have the job of answering all Opposition questions about the fair, and there are indications that he will be on his feet a great deal during the first few weeks.

Already, Conservative members are submitting written questions which will appear on the order paper when Parliament meets Jan. 18. And party sources say there will be a barrage of oral questions for the new minister.

Expo 67 began creeping into many Conservative speeches during the late stages of the last Parliament after it was disclosed that the original estimate of federal spending on the fair — $20,000,000 — had grown to some $64,000,000.

The initial attack was led by Robert C. Coates (PC—Cumberland) who was a leading campaigner against the new fair earlier in the last Parliament.

Mr. Coates firing off some questions about Expo 67.

And with the new Parliament still nearly a month away, the Nova Scotia member has 14 questions on the order paper for Mr. Winters.

CHECKS COSTS

He is asking for information on total federal expenditures on the fair, including a breakdown of costs, the names of all fair employees receiving more than $15,000 a year, information about a fair calendar, including the name of the designer, the cost of bridges and tunnels, and details of the regulations governing expense accounts.

Just before the last Parliament recessed, plans were being made among Conservatives for an organized assault on the Expo issue. They were going to press for the establishment of a special Commons committee to study all expenditures.

When this question arose in the Commons, Jean-Luc Pepin, then parliamentary secretary to Trade Minister Sharp and now to become the new minister of resources and energy, said it was a misunderstanding that any fixed amount of money had been allotted to the fair.

He said that when the figure of $20,000,000 was mentioned by the previous Conservative government, no one had the necessary information to arrive at any estimate. It was "quite

Opening lead—eight of hearts

The nature of the game is such that sensational plays come few and far between, but when the occasion does arise, you try to meet the challenge.

Take a hand like this one which occurred in a rubber bridge game. South got to three trumps on the bidding shown and West led a heart.

Dealer covered the eight with the nine and took the ten with the king. He then played a club to the king, returned a diamond which he won with the queen and returned a diamond which he won with the queen. When he now played a low diamond, East was forced to win the trick with the ace and the outcome was that South made four trump.

No one noticed it at the time, but the fact is that East could have defeated the contract if he had elected to discard the ace of diamonds at the point when declarer entered dummy for the second time with a club.

This sensational play would have put an end to South's chances of making the contract. Declarer would have been unable to cash more than two diamond tricks without letting West come into the lead, and a heart return from West in that case would have defeated the contract.

If declarer elected to take a spade finesse instead at trick five, he would still have found himself unable to score more than eight tricks.

Discarding the ace of diamonds would certainly have been an extraordinary play for East to make, but it was by no means an impossible one under the circumstances.

South's overall of one no-trump had indicated 16 to 18 points and almost every missing high card was therefore known to be in South's hand. East's only real hope was to break West with the jack of diamonds, and he could consequently have discarded the ace on that basis.
