BITS OF INFORMATION

About the Useful Arts and Various Applications of Modern Science.

False teeth are now made from parer, and are said to wear well and last a lifetime.

Diamond cutters in Holland have succeeded in cutting stones so small that it takes 1500 of them to weigh a karat.

In Mexico there is not one wagon factory. Every man makes his own, or gets it from a neighbor or another country.

There is a little town named Markneukirchen in Saxony, where nearly every inhabitant is engaged in the manufacture of violins.

The electric railway has penetrated even the fastnesses of the Tyrol mountains, a road twenty-seven miles long being projected between Riva and Piazzi.

A new glass for thermometers is unaffected by a heat of 1000 degrees, and the ordinary glass being unreliable above 750 degrees on account of its tendency to soften.

A pneumatic tube connects Paris with Berlin. It is used for postal purposes, and makes it possible for a letter to travel in Paris to be delivered in Berlin in thirty-five minutes.

A new California way of forcing an express car to bore holes in the wood and fill the car with fumes from some chemical compound. In the reported experiment the agent was able to signal the engineer before being overcome by the smoke.

Scientific journals in England speak approvingly of new remedies in Great Britain and will presently extend their operations there, as well as move extensively to the United States.

About the middle of this month Thomas Rankin, who so successfully introduced the Hawker remedies in Newfoundland last spring, will start and traverse the western part of Canada, from Montreal to Vancouver in the interests of the company.

Wish such a reward as that of their first six months now closed, the Hawker Medicine Co. are evidently destined to achieve a great success.

Their control standard remedies, which have received the endorsement of leading physicians in Canada and the United States, as well as the fervent praise of sorely afflicted people who have by their means been restored to health.

Their place of business is at 104 Prince William Street, St. John, N. B., where they have the most extensive and elaborately fitted up premises of the kind in the Lower Provinces.

William Hawker, the original inventor of the remedies, has been a druggist in St. John for 30 years, and had long proved the value of the different remedies before the present company was organized.

It is with pleasure that this journal records the company's wonderful success.

Worse Than Dynamite. Hardly a month passes but we read of terrible explosions and loss of life from natural gas.

One writer has raked up Chinese history wherein it appears that away back in the time when the famous Chinese wall was being built, before the use of gas wells was discovered, a terrible explosion took place.

The big wells in some way got the start of the little ones, so that enormous volumes of air were sucked down into those subterranean magazines. When the air reached certain proportions the whole thing went off like a leaky gasoline stove.

The result was horrible in the destruction of lives. The same writer proceeds to state that in this country, from Toledo, through Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky, whereby that whole vast region might be tipped up to the depth of 1,500 feet, leaving a plain for the waters of the great lakes to pour down into, blotting out every living human in this now densely populated valley from the face of the earth.

That article might easily have shown further that throughout our whole country, not only in densely populated regions and cities, but in country and village houses as well, natural gas is far more dangerous than dynamite in their explosions.

Fortunately this latter danger can all be averted by the use of a simple old fashioned remedy, Johnson's Anodyne Linctus, used internally, as explained in a pamphlet for sale by I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass.

No matter if you have used this remedy before, it will pay you to get a bottle and read the directions, or send for the pamphlet just to learn how to use it occasionally.

Experience Has Proved It. A triumph in medicine was attained when experience proved that Scott's Emulsion would not only stop the progress of Pulmonary Consumption, but by its continued use health and vigor could be fully restored.

In a recent article Mr. Archibald Forbes tells the famous story of the Prince Imperial's sad death in Zululand. When the Prince's appeal for help was made, a spirited grey and difficult to mount, started off. The young man ran by his side, holding the stirrup leather with one hand and the reins and pommet with the other, trying to mount the creature.

"He made one desperate effort, trusting to the strength of his grasp on the band of leather crossing the pommet from holster to holster. This band tore under the strain. I expected it next day and found it no longer at all, but paper-faced—so that the Prince's fate was really attributable to a shoddy saddle."

Had he mounted a creature as probable, the Prince's sword—taken by Napoleon I. from Arvola to Waterloo, was recovered from Cetewayo after the victory of Ulundi. There can be little doubt, so far as probabilities go, that had the Prince Imperial escaped and lived till now he would be reigning over France to the head of a new empire and one in friendly alliance with England.

Upon such trifling things as a shoddy piece of leather do the thrones of nations and the peace of the world depend.

F. G. BLACKLOCK, of Cape Spencer light station, tried all kinds of remedies for rheumatism, that had left him almost unable to walk, and at last got Dr. Manning's German Remedy. Before he had finished a bottle he could walk without a cane.

This marvellous pain-killer is a positive cure for rheumatism, neuralgia, sprains, strains, bruises, colds, chills, cramps and all pains and aches, either internal or external. An invaluable household remedy. Sold everywhere. Price 50 cents.

Other cough medicines have had their day, but Putner's Emulsion has come to stay, because it is so nice and so good.

A SPLENDID RECORD.

A Provincial Industry Teaches Its Business in the Last Three Months.

Some three months ago this journal informed its readers that a new provincial industry, that of the Hawker Medicine Company, of St. John, had completed its first quarter's business, and that its book showed a development of trade and a record of sales that was not only gratifying but really astonishing.

Another three months has now elapsed and the company have balanced their accounts for the six months. The results show that in the last three months they have tripled the business of the first three; they have almost doubled their working staff and work has been carried on in the packers room till 11 o'clock every night in order to fill orders promptly.

From all parts of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and P. E. Island, from Newfoundland and parts of the United States, for over a year, orders have been coming in, and they are not likely to stop.

The experimental success of the standard remedies are all that they are claimed to be. Indeed, this last might readily be assumed without a trial, and judging solely from the character of the gentlemen who form the Hawker Medicine Co., as they are numbered among the leading citizens and most honorable and successful business men of St. John.

The Hawker Medicine company are now exporting their remedies in Great Britain and will presently extend their operations there, as well as move extensively to the United States.

About the middle of this month Thomas Rankin, who so successfully introduced the Hawker remedies in Newfoundland last spring, will start and traverse the western part of Canada, from Montreal to Vancouver in the interests of the company.
