

"Lead Thou Me On."

Lead, kindly light, amid the encircling gloom, Lead Thou me on;
The night is dark, and I am far from home, Lead Thou me on.
Keep Thou my feet; I do not ask to see The distant scene: one step enough for me.
I was not ever thus, nor prayed that Thou Shouldst lead me on;
I loved to choose and see my path; but now Lead Thou me on.
I loved the garish day; and, spite of fears, Pride ruled my will: remembered not past years.

So long Thy power has blest me, sure it still Will lead me on O'er moor and fen, o'er crag and torrent, till
The night is gone,
And with the morn those angel faces smile,
Which I have loved long since, and lost awhile.

MIRIAM TOLBERT.

She Could not Yield to the Wrong.

(CONCLUDED.)

'Perhaps not,' said Miriam, her hand closing his arm, 'but we want you over on our side. We want your influence, your help, the power of your name.
When your friends hear that Major Dukehart has joined the good cause of temperance and humanity they will be influenced to do likewise.'

'They will laugh at me for a fool,' thought Dukehart, and the girl's bright eyes read the thought in his irresolute face. She came close to him, so close that her hair rippled across his shoulder.

'You are a soldier and a brave man,' she said, her eyes flashing. 'Do you fear the ridicule of those whom you should labor to save? It is a little thing I asked you to give up for my sake; I would sacrifice much more to please you. Do you really love me?
Are we to walk side by side and hand in hand all the rest of our lives? Then you must decide now for all coming time.
Which will you give up, the wine or the hand of the woman who loves you?'

'I'll give up the whole world for you,' he said, hoarsely, and caught her to his heart.

She let him hold her thus a minute and then she drew back, and disengaged the blue knot from her shoulder.

'May I fasten it on your breast?' she asked, looking up at him with quivering lips and tear-filled eyes. He stooped down and kissed her. 'You have conquered me,' he said. 'Yes, fasten it on.'

And with shining eyes, she fastened it on his breast.

'Boys, look at Dukehart will you?
—He wears the blue badge of the order! Every man in the club room leaped to his feet as the major entered with the blue ribbon in his button-hole.'

'Dukehart, old fellow, what does this mean? Didn't I tell you how it would turn out? I said Miss Tolbert would reform you. You've lost your wager. The young man smiled in his old, goodhumored fashion, as those exclamations mingled with uproarious laughter, assailed him.

'Yes, boys, I've lost my wager,' he said. 'Estham's words have come true.
The woman I love has reformed me.
She would not come over to her. And now, comrades,' he added, his fine eyes growing misty, with tender feelings, how is it to be with us?—We've spent many pleasant hours together, but we have come to a division in the road of life just here. Will you come along with me, or must we shake hands and part?' They laughed at him, and he shook hands and went his way.

A month later he made Miriam his wife. A year later found him an eloquent and energetic leader in the cause of temperance, with all his old club companions clustering about him. And all this came about through the influence of one brave woman.

Sir R. Cartwright is an educated man.
He is also in certain lines an able man, but he is unfortunate in his style of debate; and never more unfortunate than in his speech the other night in the great contract debate. What the country wants from its representative in Parliament opposed to the ratifications of the contract is everything that can be honestly said against the contract, that comparing what is said against the agreement it may draw the balance properly. But the country does not want any indulgence in malignant personalities, nor any display of party venom in the shape of insulting allusion or slanderous innuendo. Sir R. Cartwright's speech was not of the sort required. It did nothing toward the elucidation of the subject debated. It was simply nasty—in execrable bad taste.—News.

A despatch from St. Petersburg says that an American journal publishes an account of a sanguinary fight between the inhabitants of a village in Turkish Armenia and the Turkish troops. The

IMPORTANT SALE

VALUABLE PROPERTY.

THE Directors of the CHARLOTTETOWN WOOLEN FACTORY COMPANY offer for Sale their Valuable Property situated on Spring Park. The property consists of One Acre of Land, with the Buildings thereon, Engine & Boiler, Shafting, Bolting and complete Heating apparatus throughout the whole building. The size of the Main Building is 80 x 50 feet, three stories high, besides basement, Engine House of Brick 50 x 30 feet together with a large Building attached and used by the Company as a Dyehouse. The Engine is 30 horse power and was built by Messrs.
Montgomery & Sons, of Halifax, in 1871, and cost there about $2,600. The Engine and Boiler are in a complete state of repair and almost as good as new. There is about 60 feet of 3 inch Shafting together with the Hangers.
The Main Driving Belt cost about $300 and is quite as good as new. The Steam Pipes for heating extends throughout the entire building and cost upwards of $1,000. There is a never failing Spring of water within a few feet of the factory, where a sufficient quantity can be obtained for any purpose required.
