CRATER LAKE. Picturesque Body of Pure Water in the Chimney of an Extinct Volcano. Crater Lake, in southern Oregon, was discovered by a party of twelve prospectors in July, 1852. It had long been regarded by the Indians as the home of the spirits of sea devils, called by them Uias, and it was considered death for any Indian brave to look upon it. Capt. Dutton of the United States' army, visited the lake and surroundings in 1860. His survey and report first made known to the world one of the most interesting, grand, awe-inspiring spots on earth. W. G. Steel, founder of the American Geographical Society, was one of Capt. Dutton's party, and has published some intensely interesting papers on the lake, and the lake and surroundings in 1860. JOHN NEWSON. Solemn Jerusalem. Trade and Commerce are Confined to Life's Necessities. Jerusalem is a city of surprises. It is, apart from its sacred associations, an intensely interesting spot, even to travelers who are already saturated with the hitherto unfamiliar and surprising charms of Cairo, Athens and Constantinople. Its size can best be expressed by the statement that the journey round the outside of its walls may be made by an ordinarily rapid walker in the space of an hour. Its houses are small, irregular in shape, squalid and mean. Its streets, if streets they can be called, are not named or numbered; they are never cleaned, and in many instances are steep, crooked, narrow, roughly paved; and they are vaulted over by the buildings on each side of them. Never a pair of wheels traverse them, and rarely is a horse or donkey seen within their walls.

MONEY IN THE DUMP. The Cans Melted Up and Old Shoes Cooked into Lampblack. On every dumping ground where the city contractors of Brooklyn place their ashes one may see constantly Italians working hard leveling the heaps, as load after load is deposited, and carefully placing the tomato cans and other cast-off pieces of tinware in piles of themselves. The contractors do not object if the householders put old cans among the ashes, for this insures a careful leveling by the Italians at the dumping grounds at no expense to the contractors.

HOOD'S Sarsaparilla. The shrewd advertiser is the one who knows how, when and where to advertise. The merchants who advertise in THE EXAMINER are not the men to make mistakes, as you can see for yourself. But you may get the benefit of their experience by watching how, when and where they advertise. Some papers pay advertisers, and they can be picked out by the large amount of advertising they do.
