Alvin Roth, of Washington, D C., is the great experimenter in the upper strata of the bridge world. He has come forth in recent years with more new theories of bidding than anyone else active in bridge today.

An individualist of the first order, Roth has campaigned at length against many principles which are universally regarded as basic tenets of bidding procedure. That his efforts have not been entirely in vain is attested by the gradual adoption of some of his radical ideas by many of the top players.

Roth, partnered with Tobias Stone, is playing on the American team that will clash with Italy and Argentina in the world championship match which starts at Lake Como on Saturday.

An example of Roth's strategy in actual combat is furnished by this hand which was played in the international match between Great Britain and the United States in 1955. Roth held the South hand.

Of course, many a bridge player would sooner have his throat cut than be caught bidding merely two clubs with the South hand but Roth thought he could best size up who had what at the table by taking it slow and easy.

No one can quarrel with his tactics, in view of the result achieved. Six clubs doubled was made with ease. The English East - West pair were sold on the idea, in the light of Roth's bids, that he was simply sacrificing against a vulnerable game contract.

They discovered their error too late, but were the first to congratultte Roth on the deceptive tactics he had used to bring about a 1,090-point plus score for the American team.

By way of contrast, here is how the bidding went at the other table, where the British pair, with the North-South cards, went down 100 points.

Doukhobors Get "Welcome" In Soviet Union

By ROBERT ELPHICK

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russian authorities have been "very sympathetic" to a proposal for the mass migration of Sons of Freedom Doukhobors to Russia from Canada, visiting representatives of the sect said Friday.

The four sect leaders travelled here from British Columbia to discuss the proposed migration.

The Sons of Freedom number about 3,000 within the larger orthodox group of Doukhobors, of whom there are about 25,000 living in Canada.

Fleeing before Czarist repression, the Doukhobors left Russia long before the revolution and many have lived in Canada 50 to 60 years.

MOST HAVE INTEGRATED

The bulk of the sect, though preserving their religious beliefs, have integrated into Canadian society and thousands now are successful farmers in the interior of British Columbia.

Others, particularly the extremist Sons of Freedom have fought a continuous battle with Canadian authorities and with other Doukhobors, whom they regard as "backsliders" in the faith.

William Moojelsky, spokesman of the four Sons of Freedom visiting here, said Friday he has found Soviet authorities "very sympathetic" to his mission.

Sitting around the radiator in their Moscow hotel, the four explained their grievances against the Canadian authorities.

SAYS NO TOLERANCE

"We can no longer live in Canada as a religious group," he said. "Religion is not tolerated there."

He said the group will spend the next few days trip into the interior of the Soviet Union.

They hope to complete their mission before their visas expire in 30 days.

Duplessis Gives Blast To C. P. R.

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Duplessis said Thursday the Canadian Pacific Railway uses its best cars in Ontario and "anything that's left in Quebec."

He made the statement in the private bills committee of the legislature when a representative of the CPR asked that study of a bill in behalf of the town of Cote St. Luc, near Montreal, be adjourned until Jan. 28.

The bill would have Cote St. Luc declared a city, and the municipality would have the right to determine the number of taxis, to license taxis and to name streets and public places.

There was no general discussion and further action on the bill was adjourned to Jan. 28.

TAXES UNSETTLED

Counsel for the CPR said adjournment was sought because a question of taxes arising between the company and the town is still to be settled and would be included in the bill. In its present form the bill does not mention any agreement with the CPR. The CPR's proposals were not outlined.

Counsel for Cote St. Luc said he favored the adjournment because it would give time for CPR officials "in Toronto" and the civic authorities to get together for discussions.

This was where Mr. Duplessis remarked that the CPR's head officials are not in Toronto although, he said, the CPR uses its best cars in Ontario.

CLAN CHIEF ON TOUR

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
