Little Theatre Guild Organized At Summerside

—A group of Summerside citizens interesting in the drama met at the High School library last night and organized a Little Theatre Guild. Mr. Norman Macdonald acted as chairman and outlined the purposes of the theatre movement.

A questionnaire was passed around to see what each member was interested in doing in connection with the production of plays. Election of officers followed, and Mr. Jack Cameron was elected president of the new group, and Mr. Gordon MacKenzie, secretary-treasurer. It was decided to have three other members on the executive but the election of these was deferred until a later meeting which is to be held on Friday, November 13th.

Miss JJessie Fraser, secretary-treasurer of the Prince Edward Island Drama Festival Association, briefly outlined the activities of that organization. The hope was expressed that all Summerside citizens interested in drama would make a real effort to be present at the next meeting.—S.

Dr. Morton Puts On Outstanding Show At S'side

—Surpassing every expectation, a capacity crowd at the Summerside High School auditorium last evening were delighted by an unusual and varied program featuring Dr. Robert Morton, a most versatile entertainer, who held the undivided attention of his large audience throughout the whole show, lasting about four hours. The program fully measured up to the claims made by advance advertising and covered a wide variety of entertainment including mental and memory training, demonstrations of psychometry, deduction, perception and observation, rifle sharp shooting and ballad singing, which preceeded the amazing demonstration of induced hypnotism in which about twenty local men and women were willing subjects.

At 11.15 yesterday morning, a very attractive girl, Miss Evelyn Condo of Saint John, N. B., who had appeared on the show in Moncton, N. B., was put to sleep in a bed in one of the windows of R. T. Holman, Ltd. store. Here she remained comfortably at rest throughout the day, relaxed and comfortable. In the evening, she was taken by ambulance to the auditorium, where, as the first item on the program, at the verbal suggestion of Dr. Morton she was immediately awakened by a kiss on the hand from Mayor Henry W. Wedge.

Audience participation was an important part of the program and, after brief initial hesitation until everyone was fully convinced of his or her complete courtesy and safety in working with Dr. Morton, volunteers were immediately available whenever needed. While every part of the program was highly entertaining, the last half of the program, which involved about 20 members of the audience was most interesting. The group was subjected to mass hypnotism and taken on a supposed bus and boat ride, during which the audience were kept in a continuous state of mirth by the actions of the men and women, in response and cooperation to the hypnotic suggestions of Dr. Morton.

This truly was a show enjoyed by everyone present. A similar show by Dr. Morton will be playing in the Summerside High School again this evening in which the program will be changed and varied from the one last evening and, according to Dr. Morton, will be equally entertaining as last night's performance. On Friday he will leave for an engagement in Bangor, Maine.

Pays Warm Tribute To Late Ernest Bevin

LONDON, (Reuters)—Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill hailed a former Labor party opponent, the late Ernest Bevin, as "one of the greatest foreign secretaries" in Britain's history at the unveiling of a bust of Bevin in the foreign office. Bevin was considered one of the principal architects of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Let's Talk It Over

by "d"

The Creator of the universe moves in a mysterious way His wonders to perform. Up to the present He has seen to it that freedom, from very meagre beginnings, has grown and flourished throughout the centuries until now a pretty substantial bulwark for the common man to shield himself behind when tyranny and oppression spring to the attack. Can anyone doubt that freedom will continue to grow, and broaden slowly but surely, as Tennyson puts it, "from precedent to precedent"? In spite of our faith in the steady progress of freedom, and its power to uplift higher and higher the lot of man, it must be admitted that the blight of Communism has dealt a grievous blow to honest reform.

The exponents of Communism claim they are dedicated to the cause of reform, but, if you can judge by fruits at all, they must be condemned as being among the greatest tyrants and oppressors the world has seen. Part of the strategy that underlines their attack consists of aligning themselves with honest reformers who have real grievances to be redressed, and this action, which they hope will wrap around their wolfish limbs the sheep's clothing of respectability and honest intentions, has an opposite and unfortunate effect on the people whose allies they pretend to be. The spirit of oppression and reaction is not slow to take advantage of this apparent alliance, and the denouncing cry of "Red" is often hurled at people whose only desire is to promote the interests of true reform.

Canadian workers trying to gain a larger measure of rights and privileges should ever be wary of these "friends" whose allegiance is given to the evil machinations of the "hammer and sickle" but who would have us believe they are true champions of the oppressed. The rest of us should not be too ready to brand as "pink" every struggle waged on behalf of the laboring man.

Consumer Price

a point to a record 124.5.

Another record was created by the household operations column, creeping up by one-tenth of a point to 117.5, reflecting scattered advances for coal, electricity, floor coverings, ice and telephone rates.

Cheaper Clothing

Reaching its highest point since last January, the "other commodities and services" column also crept up by one-tenth of a point to 116, with increases for most health care costs outweighing small declines in a few personal care items.

Clothing was the only column to show a drop, slipping by one-tenth of a point to 110.3—lowest since last June—as prices for a few women's and children's wear declined.

Thus, in the space of five months the consumer price index has jumped by a total of 2.3 points, paring the buying power of the housewife's dollar.

Meanwhile there was some indication of some possible future consumer price slackening with wholesale prices showing continuing weakness during October. Eventually this weakness may find its way into the retail stream.

The Canadian farm products index, also based on 1935-39 prices, slipped to 209 from 210.7-a 22.4-point drop from 231.4 a year ago.

Index losses showed for potatoes and a number of eastern coarse grains, outweighing advances for rye, western flax and eastern wheat and hay.

Quotations were lower also for steers, lambs, eggs in eastern Canada and calf and hog prices in western Canada, overbalancing advances for calves, hogs fowl, butterfat and fluid milk in eastern Canada and eggs, butterfat, fluid milk and raw wool in western Canada.
