Visitors will be welcome regardless of their religious beliefs.

The Morell Village fire department has secured a ten thousand and gallon water tank for their department and a mighty hole has been dug by a bulldozer on the site of the old skating rink to hold the tank. When this is put into operation the department will be able to fight a fire in practically any part of the village with a good water supply, and this is good news for all and a credit to those who are always working out something for the village.

News has been received from Miss Mabel O'Brien and her two companions, who are enroute to the teachers' convention in Winnipeg through the United States. Montague Stores Have Face-lifting

Main Street in Montague presents a new appearance since several stores have been repainted, and others have had new alterations completed.

Clark Bros. presents a very attractive appearance with its new yellow and black combination, which catches one's eye on pass-new white front and trimmings of. Almost directly across the street is Cudmore's Feed Service with its red and white squares. A building which was once passed by almost unnoticed, it now adds immensely to the colour of the town.

On the north side, the store of T. M. Llewellyn and the Bison Quick Lunch have each received attractive face-liftings. The front of Mr. Llewellyn's store has been completed in green arbutus with yellow trimmings, while the Bison has been completed with black masonry and white trimmings. At the large one will also notice the three large plate glass windows replacing the former smaller ones.

These improvements add immeasurably to the appearance of the town, and have been favorably commented on by many visitors. Such good work is worthy of praise in helping to keep Montague known as "Montague, the Beautiful."

One Man Continued from page 1 push the blaze, advancing at two miles an hour, into a lake.

Rain Needed Forestry officials said only a heavy rain could stamp out the fires. There has been no appreciable rain in the province for 22 days.

Three other major fires were burning out of control—at Vernon Lake on Vancouver Island, in the Bella Coola Valley 300 miles up-coast from Vancouver, and near Kelowna on Lake Okanagan, in the interior.

In all areas, wild animals ran in terror before the flames that swamps and waterholes.

A crew of 40 men was making a stand against the 1,000-acre Vernon Lake fire at the edge of green timber. Foresters were trying to get at the 1,500-acre Bella Coola blaze, spotted by plane in almost inaccessible country.

The Kelowna fire started in an apple orchard, possibly by the sun shining through a piece of glass on dry grass. Now covering 1,500 acres, it swept to the 3,500-foot level of Blue Grouse Mountain.

Federal Gov't Continued from page 1 The brigade is already there. Half the air division will be there this fall. A second three-squadron wing is slated to fly the North Atlantic in late September and early October to take up positions in France. The first wing will remain in England.

The highlights of the three-year program as announced in February, 1951, were a 40-squadron, 3,000-plane air force, a 100-ship navy, a total manpower of 115,000 including an army of 50,000.

The air force aim now is 41 squadrons, the manpower aim 120,000.

a few weeks ago along with his two sisters, who have not been here for years, and Father Owen McInerney, who was a school mate of Miss O'Brien, in the old St. Peter's Harbor School long years ago. Miss O'Brien is president of the Island Teachers Federation and two other teachers are also making the long trip as delegates. If time runs out they will fly home from the west.

Death Of Murray Harbor Resident

The death occurred at her home in Murray Harbour, August 12, of Mrs. J. W. Richards, in her 76th year.

Mrs. Richards was the former Bertha MacKay and the only daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thompson MacKay, Murray Harbour. Her husband predeceased her a number of years ago.

She is survived by two sons, Carl and Vere, Murray Harbour, and three daughters, Elsie, Mrs. Elmer Stewart, New Glasgow, N. S.; Margaret, Mrs. Frank MacFarlane, Murray Harbour; Bernice, Mrs. Llewellyn Soper, Cambridge, Mass.

Funeral arrangements were not completed at time of writing.

Anniversary Continued from page 1 deal he could from the occupation, helped negotiate the treaty and went to the United States to sign it.

His biggest struggle is within his own Liberal (Conservative) Party. There he is challenged for party leadership—and probably for the prime minister's post—by Ichiro Hatoyama.

Hatoyama led Yoshida's party until he was purged from public life by the occupation for his proaxis writing in wartime.

Yoshida took over the leadership of the Conservatives when Hatoyama was purged. Yoshida's men argue that Hatoyama has suffered a stroke and is in no physical condition to take over again.

Hatoyama's faction may turn for support to what probably will be the No. 2 party, the Progressives.

The Progressives are led by Mamoru Shigemitsu, who signed the surrender document, was convicted as a major war criminal, served his time and is again active in public life.

In return for supporting Hatoyama for prime minister, the Progressives probably would be offered several places in the cabinet.

Explosive Issue An explosive issue is the question of rearming. With the surrender, Japan was stripped of its army, navy and air force.

Now Japan has a national police reserve, an embryo army. Japan has borrowed warships and is planning to build some more. An air force seems likely to grow.

While there undoubtedly is much sentiment among the dominant Conservatives for rearming, every Japanese politician knows that it is political suicide to advocate full-
