Supply Ships Make Progress In Heavy Ice In Arctic Area

OTTAWA (CP) — Five ships of a coast guard supply convoy, blocked by heavy ice in Arctic waters for the last week, have reached Resolute Bay, N.W.T. Two other vessels were expected to get through Monday and Tuesday while an icebreaker is staying with a crippled coast guard ship trapped by ice in Redstock Bay, some 2,000 miles north of Ottawa. A chartered aircraft was scheduled to fly a repair crew and parts to Resolute from Montreal Wednesday to patch up the depot ship Nanook, damaged by ice Thursday in Lancaster Sound. Meanwhile, five other ships bringing supplies to Distant Early Warning (DEW) line are engaged in a heavy battle against ice off the north coast of Baffin Island. Capt. E. S. Brand, director of the marine operations branch of the federal transport department, said no one was in any danger. Heavy ice blocked the convoy last week in the western end of Lancaster Sound, about 75 miles east of Resolute. The freighters Helga Dan and Thora Dan reached Resolute Sunday night. Lying off shore are the coast guard northern patrol ship C. D. Howe, the freighter Federal Pioneer and the tanker Edward Simard. The coast guard icebreaker D'Urville was expected to reach Resolute Monday and icebreaker N.B. McLean today. Ships fighting ice off Baffin Island include the coast guard icebreaker Labrador, coast guard ships Narval and Auk, the freighter Eskimo and the tanker Dealbrook.

WEST GERMANY JOINS TREATY SIGNERS

West German Ambassador Heinrich Knappein signs the limited nuclear test ban treaty for his country Monday in a ceremony at the State Department in Washington. Under secretary of State Averell Harriman witnesses the signing. Similar ceremonies were held at London and Moscow. At the same time the Bonn government issued a declaration stressing its continued refusal to recognize Communist East Germany, a signatory in Moscow. West Germany was the 66th nation to sign the treaty, drawn up by the United States, Russia and Britain. Fifty-one countries have signed in 13 days and more signatures are still to come. Drilling In Arctic May Unlock treasure

OTTAWA (CP) — A billion years ago a mighty explosive upheaval beneath the earth's crust succeeded some of the earth's inwards close to the surface in the Canadian Arctic. Frey gases, liquids and suspended crystals shot to within three miles of the surface and then gradually cooled and separated into a fantastic variety of rock types and mineral forms. This summer federal scientists are diamond drilling near Coppermine, N.W.T., to learn more about this unusual material which comes from the earth's mantle, which normally lies some 25 miles beneath the surface in other parts of Canada. Their findings may point the way to future economic exploitation of valuable mineral resources in the interior of the earth now out of reach to man. The Muskox intrusion drilling project is one of the subjects in a progress report by Canadian scientists of the Federal Institute of Technology and technical surveys department, reviews such topics as mineralogy, meteorites, seismology and magnetism. It notes valuable information has been a speed-up to complete construction of a network of geophysical stations across Canada. FOUR PLANNED Work on a new standard station recently began at St. John's. The first of four new stations is expected before the end of the month at Fort Churchill, near Repulse, N.W.T. and Flin Flon, Man. The report also refers to a separate British Columbia array of seismic instruments at Yellowknife, whose primary purpose is to seek some way of distinguishing between earthquakes and nuclear explosions. The array, in partial operation since last December, is expected to be completed in October. It further mentions that several Canadian geophysical stations recorded the shock from surface waves caused by the Soviet Union's last series of nuclear atmospheric tests at Novaya Zemlya. A B.A. Gas & Oil Products company has destroyed a large quantity of the crust and upper mantle by setting off large explosions at selected places near the edge of the North American continental shelf in the Arctic.
