

Singular Soul

Debilitate my will and make me unsure, break it again, my ability to endure.

Preoccupy my vision, with loneliness so cold,
Steal away mine eyes, which once were quite bold.

Disarray my mind, throw me into confusion,
machinate against my thoughts, transformed into illusions.

Chorus

I'm left singular in my efforts, with none
by my side.

My soul has been deserted, yet there R shadows all around.

On the purlieu of love, I thought I had found,
the one I was seeking, to her I'd be bound.

But no whisk of emotions, or overflow of feelings,
had rushed my heart, or quickened my breathing.

I hadn't any fore knowledge to guide me home,
I'm now in a bizarre state, all alone.

Chorus

I'm left singular in my efforts, not a soul is by my side.

I'm sole and I'm deserted, yet there
R shadows all around.

Shawn

What did you really say?

Go, go! Who said I wanted you to stay?
I never really like you much, anyway.
I never could find the right words to say
So maybe I'll just say "Stay Away." Don't even ask me for the time of day even though I'm crying on the bed I lay
and even though my voice was once so happy and so gay
I told you to go, and I really meant it, OK?
(Oh, Lord, help me. If he leaves, I'll go insane!)

by Laura DeYoung

Reflecting

Outside the window, all is foggy,
it seems to reflect my mind as I wait.

The chandelier's flames reflect in the glass,
in turn reflecting her fiery eyes, she seems la

I am somehow lost for vocabulary,
in her presence, other thoughts R passe.

But now she is far away, unreachable,
my mind is fixed, but I've still none to say.

Shawn