A FEW OF THE DISEASES TREATED

THE HEART AND CIRCULATION, WITH COMPLICATIONS.
I. Functional Heart Disease. II. Organic Heart Disease. III. Dropsy. IV. Varicose Veins.

CIRCULATION.—The circulatory organs include the heart, the arteries, and the capillary vessels. Their diseases, though not numerous, are extremely serious in their nature.

HEART.—It is impossible to glance through even the smallest newspaper without seeing notice of a sudden death—of a man or woman, apparently in the full flush of health and strength, being snatched away to an untimely grave. As there is no organ more important than the heart, so there is none in which diseases may be so suddenly fatal, and the appalling frequency of deaths from this cause, and their terrible nature, force the subject upon our notice and demand our attention.

DISEASES OF THE STOMACH.—Indigestion, Flatulence, Sour Stomach, Weak Stomach and Chronic Constipation are the common heritage of the people of America. We cure them certainly and speedily.

THE LIVER.—The largest organ in the body, and one of the most important, is more often diseased (in this climate) than any of the vital organs. Few people are completely free from some form of Liver Complaint. The symptoms are too well known to everybody to demand special mention at our hands further than to call attention to the weary feeling, sleepy, dull feeling after meals, sallow, green skin, pain under the shoulder blades, and dull pains in the right side, with alternation of costiveness or looseness of the bowels. See our reports of cases cured.

CHRONIC DISEASES OF THE NASAL PASSAGES AND RESPIRATORY ORGANS.

I. Catarrh. II. Hay Fever. III. Laryngitis. IV. Bronchitis. V. Asthma. VI. Consumption. VII. Emphysema. VIII. Pneumonia.

ONE IN FOUR.—When it is known that twenty-five per cent. of the human race perish from diseases of the respiratory organs, it will be evident to the most careless that such death may be the lot of any. The question of real importance to those suffering from any form of the above mentioned diseases is: "Can you cure me?" We answer: "Our record in the past is the best evidence we can offer."

CHRONIC DISEASES PECULIAR TO WOMEN.

I. Retarded Menstruation. II. Amenorrhoea. III. Dysmenorrhoea. IV. Menorrhagia. V. Change of Life. VI. Chlorosis. VII. Leucorrhoea. VIII. Displacement. IX. Prolapsus Uteri. X. Flexions and Versions. XI. Inversion. XII. Ulcerations. XIII. Cancer. XIV. Inflammations (Uterus and Ovaries). XV. Tumors. XVI. Pruritus. XVII. Vaginitis. XVIII. Barrenness.

Our success has been very marked in the treatment of the diseases peculiar to women and girls. Over two-thirds of our patients are ladies. Old, young, married and single, can consult us on matters peculiar to their sex, however delicate, in perfect confidence.

CHRONIC DISEASES PECULIAR TO MEN.

BROKEN DOWN.—It is a sad but unavoidable reflection that thousands of men, who should be the bone and sinew of the country, pillars of society, of the church and of the State, are broken down both physically and mentally before they have reached the zenith of their usefulness. Early indications, the result of ignorance and folly; over-exertion of mind and body, induced by inordinate ambition; dissipation and exposure, are continually working the ruin of thousands, whose ability, energy and integrity the world needs to preserve its equilibrium of civilization.

THE DAILY EXAMINER.

MARCH 3, 1890.

Notes and Comments.

Nineteen and a half tons of embalmed cats, from Beni Hassan in Central Egypt, recently reached Liverpool and were knocked down at auction to a local fertilizer merchant and to farmers at about £3 13s 3d per ton. The lot included 180,000 felines, each one separately embalmed and dressed in cloth after the burial manner of the ancient Egyptians, with whom the cat was a sacred animal. The date of the interments of these pussies is supposed to have been at least 2000 B. C. Strange that the sacred relics of the Nile, so carefully preserved, should at last find their way to a distant and then unknown land, to become an agent in securing bigger yields of turnips.

A new cotton field, which is certain to produce a marked effect on the cotton market, is opening in the east. Last year the new Trans-Caspian railway, built by the Russian government, carried to Russia sixty-one million pounds of raw cotton grown in Russia's Asiatic possession. The production of cotton in Central Asia is rapidly on the increase. In the Province of Sarghasia alone 150,000 acres are to be planted in cotton this spring, while large tracts around Merv and Marghab are to be devoted to the plant. As the supply—some 400,000,000 lbs.—annually required by the Russian mills has hitherto been obtained from America, India and Egypt, the prospective change of supply to Central Asia possesses interest for cotton growers and mills the world over.

Commenting upon the financial position of Ontario, the Empire says: "There was indeed, a surplus when Sir John Macdonald went out of power, but the influence of the Grit rule acted upon it like the sun upon the morning clouds and the early dew. It was exhausted that it might fall in grateful if not particularly fruitifying showers upon the arid wastes of a hungry party that had been some time out of power. That surplus was a substantial reality, a tangible entity—something that the Government could lay its hand upon in any time of need, and not a merely constructive surplus, the result of a vicious and tricky style of bookkeeping. Instead of this, however, it appears we have now a surplus resembling those marvellous cities out in the western States that exist only on paper."

A telegram from Point DuChene, published in another column, shows that the people of that place are moving in respect to means of communication between Prince Edward Island and the mainland. We are particularly glad to notice that people are waking up to the fact that this is not merely an "Island matter,"—that it is one which concerns materially the Maritime Provinces and the whole of Canada. The Moncton Times remarks:

"We need not say that in this matter the people of Shediac and Summerside will have the hearty sympathy and co-operation of Moncton and Monctonians. Our people cannot fail to be deeply interested in everything affecting the interests of those towns. The Steam Navigation Company's service, though somewhat improved in recent years, is not what it should be. The accommodations for passengers should be improved, and a greater prompt carriage of freight offered in the busy season, especially in the fall. There is no reason why communication should not be opened up earlier and maintained some weeks later than at present. This is a matter that should have the earnest attention of our representatives and the government at Ottawa."

A Winter Trip.

LETTER FROM PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The following letter from Mr. Theo. L. Chappelle was received some days ago, but was crowded out owing to the pressure upon our columns:

MR. EDITOR.—Why this State is known as Rhode Island is a conundrum. The original name was Rhode Island and Providence Plantation, but the Island proper is that small tract of land on which the city of Newport is built—the rest of the State is joined to Massachusetts. The city of Providence contains a population of 130,000, and is a flourishing place. Its industries are great in number and diversified in character. Located at the head of navigation on the northwestern arm of Narragansett Bay, the city is built in the valleys of the Moshasset and Woonasquatucket rivers. Its history is romantic. Roger Williams, a clergyman with six companions settled in the spring of 1636. Afterwards he preached in Plymouth and Massachusetts Bay colonies, but was tried and found guilty of holding certain opinions distasteful to the leaders of the latter colony. To avoid being sent back to England he fled to the wilderness and soon settled Providence, in whose institutions he caused to be embodied the principle of the right of private judgment. This spirit is characteristic of the people. Roger Williams has been given a high place in the temple of fame. A number of public buildings date back to those early years, viz., the State House, built in 1759; Friends' Meeting House, built in 1727, and other edifices. The growth of the city has been mainly owing to the cotton industry. There is much to interest and instruct the visitor. The city is kept in better condition than most American cities. The drainage is good, which assists materially in the work of cleanliness. The streets are well paved, clean, well lighted and many of them lined with trees. Altogether Providence is a delightful place. The entire length of the horse car track in the city and suburbs is fifty-four miles, number of cars 280, and the routes fifteen. It is also an important railroad centre; six distinct lines enter the city. Roger Williams Park is the only public ground deserving the name. It is located on the southern border of the city adjoining Cranston, and contains about 110 acres of land and water, and contains a fine bronze statue of Roger Williams. There are in Providence 93 church edifices and more than 120 societies. The city of Pawtucket (it was never known why Paw-tuck-it) is situated four miles north-east of Providence, and it is a bustling manufacturing centre. Its name is derived from the Indian and signifies a fall of water. As I only passed this city on my way here I am unable to give a description of it. Arriving this morning I was met at the depot by Mr. Robert Sneeston, formerly of Charlottetown, who appears to be thriving and fully contented in his adopted home.

Shediac Active.

IN DEMANDING IMPROVED COMMUNICATION—STRONG ARGUMENTS TO BE ADVANCED.

POINT DU CHENE, Feb. 28.—The following notice of a public meeting is posted in the town:

"A public meeting of the inhabitants of Shediac will be held in Tai's Hall on Tuesday, 4th March, at 7 p. m., for the purpose of taking action to have an improved steam service between this port and P. E. Island, and to have the harbor dredged."

The people of this section are thoroughly in earnest in this matter, and, as the saying is, "mean business" in regard to harbor improvements. Two years ago engineer Shewyn was sent here to make surveys, and it is generally believed that his report was in effect that with one season's work of a good dredge the channel could be straightened and deepened for vessels drawing from 19 to 20 feet. It is well understood by all coasting captains that this is the most convenient harbor of refuge on the North Shore, apart from its importance as a shipping point for lumber and in fact all the products of the country. No doubt the meeting will be large and influential. Moncton has considerable interest in this direction, and no doubt will give us a hearty support in our demands.

The steam communication between this port and P. E. Island has been most shamefully conducted in the past, and it is refreshing to notice that the people of Summerside are energetically aroused and demand a better service. A small, swift passenger boat, making the trip across in 2 or 2½ hours, and nothing less should satisfy the public.

A short distance from the wharf the harbor is as clear as in summer, and reports from Cape Bald and Shemogue are that scarcely any ice is to be seen, although the wind has been blowing from the eastward some 36 hours. This has been the case for the past three winters, and it is about time that this end of the Island should have a trial of winter communication. Some say that if the Island people are satisfied, we have no right to interfere, but we hold we are one Dominion of Canada, and when public money is expended that we have a perfect right to say where it can be most judiciously used.
