"I have sold your medicines for the last seventeen years, and always keep them in stock, as they are staples. 'There is nothing so good for the youthful blood' as Ayer's Sarsaparilla."—R. L. Parker, Fox Lake, Wis.

"Ayer's Sarsaparilla gives the best satisfaction of any medicine I have in stock. I recommend it, or, as the Doctors say, 'I prescribe it over the counter.' THE HALIFAX CARNIVAL.

The Firemen's Procession.

MANUFACTURERS' DISPLAY, ETC.

(Staff Correspondence of The Examiner)

The torchlight procession last night was one of the most interesting and successful events of the carnival. Halifax out-did herself, and that is saying a good deal, for I am told there have been many excellent demonstrations of a similar character in the city before. But then Halifax always goes one better every time.

The procession was between two and three miles in length, and took about an hour to pass the Halifax Hotel, from the balcony of which I witnessed it. Many, in fact all, the exhibits showed great taste and skill in their arrangement, and some of them must have necessitated the expenditure of a good deal of money.

The displays made by the different fire companies were grand. No 6 division, U. E. C., had their reel decorated to represent the King of the Carnival and fish, flesh and fowl. The design was exceedingly pretty, winning the prize. It would take much more space than I have at my disposal to give anything like a minute description of their display (or, indeed, of any of the displays) so I must content myself with saying that the many dazzling attractions in it were all of the highest order, the shooting and revolving stars and huge gilt dragons being worthy of special mention. No. 1 division, U. E. C., had their reel arranged to represent a Greek chariot, with a Miss Muryhy (not Geraldine Lansdowne) enacting the role of a Grecian horse-woman. No. 4 steamer division (Salamander) also made a splendid showing They had a gigantic Salamander sitting in in the crater of a volcano in eruption. The immense animal was constructed of copper, brass and zinc, as was also the volcano crater, and the painting was well done. The Dartmouth hook and ladder company had on their ladder wagon an Indian encampment with real Micmacs seated in a grove of trees in front of their birch bark tent making baskets. The Windsor firemen's display consisted of a little girl seated on a mound of flowers representing Young Canada. In the rear was a picture of Windsor Castle in England, and in front a crown between the ends of half a circle of green maple leaves, under which was a beaver representing Canada. Over the head was a dome of natural flowers, on the apex of which was a splendid crown of the same.

No. 4 division, U. E. C., had their hose reel, the Resolute, decorated to represent the goddess of music, the goddess being a Miss Johnston, who was seated playing a harp under a a square-roofed cupola of transparencies and mirrors. No. 5 division, U. E. C., had their reel surmounted by a great crown which represented England, while under it two little girls represented the United States and Canada, the whole being meant to convey the idea of friendship and peace. Summer Time was the motto of No. 2 steamer's reel, and it certainly was well acted up to. Two beautiful swings were erected, with two little children on the seats, and all sorts of sporting gear were spread about in profusion, and everything was arranged, put together and finished in superb style. The Yarmouth team had their reel decorated to represent a huge moth, with dark-colored wings and yellow body, on which was seated a little girl dressed to resemble a butterfly. The little girl who represedted "love among the roses" on the U. P. C. team did indeed look loveable. A "luck" horseshoe surmounted by a pair of hearts pierced with a dart from cupid's bow was raised above her head, while all around her was a fairy scene of gorgeous decorations. Kentville's former nick-name, "the devil's half acre," formed the motto of the reel of that town's firemen's delegation, and it and "we strive to save," the motto of the company, formed the principal features of their turnout. An owl perched on the summit of an arch of green, and a cariboo's head in a background of green, were handsome specimens. The different other companies also made capital displays, but those referred to above were the more attractive.

Now for a little about the trades and manufacturers display, which was very good indeed. A. Stephen & Son had an immense van representing a furniture factory in full blast, with men at work at turning lathes, circular saws, boring machines, and putting furniture together. A second team contained a handsome parlor suite and upholstering department, while a parlor lamp hung from the centre and the whole was elegantly draped with curtains. The display of Messrs. Gordon & Keith was very well conceived. The first portion of it consisted of a badly made cradle in a rickety old wheelbarrow, with the sign, established 1822, driven by a man and supported by two boys. Following this about 10 boys, one of whom carried the transparency, "as the old cock crows the young ones learn." The next was a transparency showing the burning of their establishment in 1887, and the next the rebuilding of it the same year. Two other teams contained carpets and furniture and were elegantly hung with lanterns, flags and tapestry. George Thompson had a team containing a display of whisks, brushes, buckets, tubs, washboards, etc. of his own manufacture; and the Letteney Manufacturing Company, of Digby, had a car illustrating the results of using the Comet Stove polish. On the platform of the latter's car was a "Model Grand" stove, polished to perfection, while depending from the platform, painted on cotton, were the words, "Comet Stove Polish" in glaring letters. Over 10,000 packages of the polish were distributed along the route of the procession. Messrs. Simms & Co., of St. John, also had a place in the procession, showing specimens of the goods manufactured by them. The other displays in this portion of the procession were also capital, but I must forbear further mention.

The displays of the Manchester Unity, I. O. O. F., were splendid. One car represented Brittania presenting the charter of Oddfellowship to the world, the nations of which embracing the order were represented by children in the costumes of Canada, India Africa, Japan, etc. The second car represented the emblem of the order and coat of arms supported by Faith, Hope and Charity, in the persons of four little girls. There were about 200 members of the Order in the procession. The American Order of Oddfellows also made a capital turnout. They occupied in all some thirty barouches. One of the the teams contained the Prospect cornet band, of New Glasgow, drawn by two white and two dark horses, and another mockery of the initiatory services, while a band of 20 mounted brigands in all manner and descriptions of apparel looked exceedingly fiery and fierce.

The Red Cap Snow Shoe Club had three teams, 50 men and a dozen horses in the procession. The first team was a burlesque on the fisheries protection service. The new Germany band discoursed music in a praiseworthy manner, seated in the fishery protection boat Acadia, surrounded by the three mile limit. On the second team was an immense red toque, which formed a pyramid around which the members were seated. The third team contained another contingent of the members. All wore their blanket suits and red toques.

The most amusing part of the whole display, however, was the Preston delegation on business and pleasure. A dozen young men, covered with burnt cork and dressed in ridiculous attire, both male and female, danced and performed on squeeky instruments to the delectation of the multitude, while on their van were exhibited whitewash implements and specimens of the work they could perform on tree boxes, etc., and ludicrous legends around the base of the team afforded much amusement.

The Queertown Razzle Dazzle Club, consisting of about two dozen young men attired in grotesque costumes and with lots of paint on their faces, also took well with those inclined to enjoy the affair, and most everyone did.

The turnout made by the different other clubs, societies, etc., was also of a high order, showing considerable taste and a strong desire to make the most of their opportunity to show off to advantage.

This morning there were lots of baseball and cricket matches, and excursions innumerable.

This afternoon the firemens' tournament and professional sports came off at the Riding Grounds. There was a large attendance of spectators, and the competition was very keen.

The promenade concert in the Public Gardens and the citizens' ball in the Provincial Building are the leading events on the programme for this evening.

To-morrow will be the last day of the celebration. The programme consists of cricket and baseball matches and excursions on the harbor.

Many of the visitors talk of leaving to-morrow, but not a few have decided to remain over Sunday.

The weather continues fine and clear.
