MRS. GROUSE HEARS AND SEES

When danger threatens they are few who seem to know just what to do.

—Old Mother Nature.

This is nearly always true. It is also true that usually one of two do know what to do, and do it. Mrs. Grouse, well hidden where the could see without being seen, was watching Thunderer and another Grouse fighting. She knew why they were fighting. Yes, sir, they were fighting for her. Yes, sir, they were fighting for her. That in itself was exciting. Would Thunderer win, or would it be the handsome stranger? Which did she want to win? She wasn't sure. Sometimes she hoped Thunderer would win. Sometimes she hoped the handsome stranger would win. At least, she thought she hoped this.

Again Sammy Jay screamed "Thief! Thief! Thief!"

But excited though she was, she never once forgot to be on guard for danger. She had long ago learned the lesson that so my had done his best to give warning, but he might just as well have saved his breath for all the good his warning was doing. Those two big birds kept right on fighting just as if they were the only two people in all the Great World.

"I guess if Sammy had screamed right in their ears they would not have heard it," thought Mrs. Grouse. "It looks as if I will have to do something."

many people never do learn, that one can never afford to be careless once. So while she watched the fight she at the same time used her eyes and her ears to catch any hint of danger there might be. So it was she heard Sammy Jay screaming, "Thief! Thief! Thief!" from a nearby tree.

"When Sammy screams like that, it is a warning to be heeded," thought Mrs. Grouse. "He sees somebody whom he hates, and that probably means that it is someone whom the rest of us fear."

Again Sammy Jay screamed, "Thief! Thief! Thief!" This time the bright eyes of Mrs. Grouse saw Hooty the Owl alight in a tree near the one in which Sammy Jay was flitting about.

"So that's it! That fellow is over here after a dinner," thought Mrs. Grouse.

She looked over at the two fighters. They were paying no attention to anything but what they were doing. They appeared not to have heard Sammy at all. Sammy had done his best to give warning, but he might just as well have saved his breath for all the good his warning was doing. Those two big birds kept right on fighting just as if they were the only two people in all the Great World.

"I guess if Sammy had screamed right in their ears they would not have heard it," thought Mrs. Grouse. "It looks as if I will have to do something."

Then, as Hooty was about to lift his wings to swoop down on those fighters, Mrs. Grouse caught a glimpse of another feathered hunter coming in over the treetops: one she feared even more than Hooty the Owl. It was Terror the Goshawk, whose favorite dinner is Grouse. If there is any one hunter whom Thunderer and Mrs. Grouse fear more than another it is Terror the Goshawk. With three hungry enemies approaching, those silly birds continued to fight as if they had no enemies in all the Great World.

"I guess it is up to me now," thought Mrs. Grouse. "Yes sir,

DEFENSE AT ITS WORST

East-West in the deal below threw away at least three tricks (and more probably, four) in the defense.

North dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.
Both sides 60 on score.

♠ J 10 7 3	♥ J 10 9 5	♦ A 7 4	♣ A 8 3 2
♠ 2	♥ Q 6	♦ K 10 9 3	♣ K 10 9 8
♠ 6 2	♥ A 8 3 2	♦ Q 8	♣ J 7

The part-score situation naturally played a part in this bidding:

I guess it is up to me. Perhaps they won't pay any attention to me, but I've at least got to try."

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
