THE ENGINEER'S BI-WEEKLY

Once again we begin a new year at the Engineering department writing articles for our column, "View From The Top". Throughout the year we will keep you informed with the latest Engineering news, humor, sports, or most likely bull—. The year began with a bang for us lucky ones, and by the end, you will all be aware of our presence which although you probably won't realize or certainly want to admit enhances and enriches uni-versity life. So, to all the spaced-out Artsies, the busy Business students, and slimy Biologists, welcome back and look out!

C.S.

On a much more entertaining note. The Engineering Society began the 82-83 Pub season last week in our usual fine style. Our boys entertained a lively horde of three to four hundred people, a crowd that would put many main events to shame. Ask anyone who was there, they'll tell you to make it to the next Engineering "Barn Stormer".

P.S. You can't get a pub like ours anywhere else. This of course, may be lucky.

Quote of the week:

Oh God when is the next time we have to drink?

Jokes:

Nurse— What an Engineer looks for when he wants an intense, fulfilling, satisfying relationship for twenty minutes.

WRITING

LAB

The Department of Social Services is happy once again to offer the services of a Writing Lab. The service this year will operate under a different arrangement, nevertheless, we are sure the same top quality service will be provided. With the assistance of the English Department, we have selected two English Majors in their Junior year, who will act as tutors and who will be paid by the students being referred. The student assistants names are Leslie MacLean and Scott Burke. The fee for their services is $2.00 a session. Students who will benefit most from the Writing lab are those who have trouble with spelling, verb tenses, noun-verb or noun-pronoun agreement, sentence structure, paragraphing, outlining, thesis statements, or organization. If you would like to have some help with your writing problems please drop into Student Services and arrange for an appointment.
