

WONDER BLANKETS

$2.95

"Wonder" Blankets are well named. They are wonders. They're heavy, soft, warm, finely finished blankets. They're of good size. They're easily worth $4.00 the pair.

Don't take our "say so" on this point. Come in, see the blankets, feel them, try their weight, closely examine their texture, and you'll agree that nothing anywhere near the price can equal them.

ALARMING NEWS.

Cape Colony on the Verge of Revolt.

[SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER.]

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The Daily Mail publishes, this morning, the following alarmist despatch from Cape Town: "Anti-British feeling in Cape Colony is assuming dangerous proportions, owing to false stories spread abroad about British barbarism in the Orange River Colony and in the Transvaal.

The Loyalists fear that the meeting of the Dutch Congress, next week, will be the signal for a rising and they demand that martial law be proclaimed throughout the Colony.

The situation is declared to be graver than at any previous period during the war.

Referring, editorially, to its Cape Town advices, the Daily Mail adopts a most serious tone, asserting that the anti-British movement is accentuated by the withdrawal of the troops from Cape Colony, and calling for vigorous action by the British government.

Fourteen Men Perish for Want of Proper Life-Saving Apparatus

[SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER.]

AMHERSTBURG Ont., Nov. 28.—The tug Home Rule, which went to the rescue of a schooner, sunk on Pelee Island Point, returned tonight and reports all hands lost. The crew had been lashed in the rigging for three days, but finally they succumbed to the weather and exposure.

The tug's captain says that if the life-saving boat on Pelee Point had been in condition they could have taken the crew off safely on Sunday afternoon. The life-savers' boats are leaky and they filled with water as soon as they were launched.

The schooner is supposed to be the Marionee Valley, from Buffalo for Toledo, coal laden, and she carried a crew of fourteen persons.

HOWARD VINCENT.

Outlines a New Trade Policy For Great Britain.

"Wish to make American manufacturers contribute annually several millions sterling to our national exchequer," said Sir Howard Vincent, M.P., in London, a few evenings ago.

Sir Howard, who is the honorary secretary of the United Empire Trade League, and an influential member of Parliament, will bring forward in the coming session a scheme to impose upon imports into the United Kingdom other than those from the British colonies a certain ad valorem tariff. He explained his purpose further as follows:

"Our Empire should seek unity through unified commercial interest. Our colonies should certainly be reminded of their daughterhood by reciprocal preferential imports. Canada favors imports from the mother country to the extent of making the duty upon them one-third less than that upon imports from foreign countries. When the Australian commonwealth is well under way we hope that it will make a similar concession in favor of the manufacturers of England. Before a great while South Africa, federated under the British flag, will probably follow the lead of Canada and Australia. The mother country cannot, with good grace, accept these advantages while denying reciprocal preferences. Furthermore, this is a time when the central government has need for revenue. We have two ways upon our hands—one in China and one in South Africa. The latter has already cost us heavily, but I think it will prove to have been an excellent investment, even if it finally entails an outlay of £100,000,000 sterling ($500,000,000), for it has given a great and enduring impetus to imperial federation."

Still, such outlays require a full treasury, and we must find new sources of national revenue. Preferential duties would help us tremendously. They would make you Americans pay something for the use of our rich markets. You charge us about 40 per cent. ad valorem for the privilege of selling our goods in America, and we commit an egregious folly in admitting your goods free of duty. Americans are great competitors; their energy and skill cannot be surpassed. We should protect ourselves against their shrewd, sleepless, commercial aggressions by every legitimate means at our command. My plan, of course, contemplates harkening back to the times when the dominant statesmanship of England decreed that free trade was the proper fiscal policy for this country."
