Atlantic Missionary Conference Scheduled

An international, interdenominational missionary conference is to be held at Acadia University in Wolfville, N.S. from August 5-8. Titled the Atlantic Seaboard Conference Education, it will involve delegates from the Maritime Provinces, Newfoundland and the New England States.

There will be two themes for the four-day conference. The overseas subject is to be "South East Asia", and will be led by Rt. Rev. Micheal Hollis, formerly first moderator of the United Church of South India, now Bishop of Halifax, England.

The second, more general theme of "The Changing City Challenges the Church" will include a series of symposiums, organized by church leaders in the New England States.

Also part of the program will be morning and afternoon seminars on the mission of the church, presenting mission to adults, education and social concerns, medical work, young people, the layman overseas, the church and growing towns, rural areas, broadcasting, the family in a mobile society, Christian literature, and Christian vocation. Each delegate is required to take two seminars throughout the conference.

The conference is one of 10 to be held this summer in North America. It is intended to provide a better understanding of what is being done by the church, and to help delegates understand and interpret their church's program as part of the whole "Mission of the Church".

Leaders from New York, Toronto, Halifax, N.S.; Halifax, England; Saint John, Boston and Nagpur, India will converge on Acadia University, for the first Atlantic Seaboard Conference on Missionary Education, Aug. 5-8.

AMONG LEADERS

Among the leaders will be Rev. William Walzer, of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., with offices in New York; from Toronto, Miss Frances Bonwick, Dr. M.C. MacDonald, Rev. William Blackmore, Rev. R.M. Bennett and others will take part, and from Halifax, members of the planning committee under Rev. H.M. DeWolfe. Rt. Rev. Michael Hollis will arrive from Halifax, England and Rt. Rev. John Sadiq from Nagpur, India. Rev. Paul E. Shanabrooke is scheduled to attend from Boston.

The conference, first of its kind in the Maritimes, intends to discuss the work of the church today, here and abroad, as essentially one picture. Delegates are expected to be better prepared to understand and interpret the church's work to their own congregations.

Alberton and West Prince County

2 The Guardian, Charlottetown, Wed., June 5, 1963.

Blood Donor Clinic Set For Alberton Thurs.

ALBERTON — More than 200 bottles of blood provided by the Red Cross blood transfusion service were used in the Western Hospital last year.

One patient received 21 bottles and a great many persons received lesser amounts in emergency situations. One of these cases was a 14-year-old boy who lost a great deal of blood when he was seriously injured in a tractor accident.

Another resident of the area received close to 70 bottles of blood during a long and critical illness. Part of this was given in the Alberton hospital and part in one in Charlottetown, but it was all provided free of charge through the Red Cross.

In times of illness residents of this province are saved thousands of dollars through this free service. In countries where such service is not provided the minimum cost of one bottle of blood would be at least $25.

Blood is supplied to the Red Cross for this outstanding service by residents of the province who recognize in it a great humanitarian service.

Opportunity will be given to the residents of Alberton and vicinity to make their contribution Thursday afternoon, June 6, when a Red Cross blood donor clinic will be held in Alberton Institute Hall from 2 to 4 p.m.

The clinic is being sponsored by the local branch of the Royal Canadian Legion under chairmanship of Arthur McRae. Other members of the Legion and other citizens will be assisting Mr. McRae. The co-operation of every individual is needed if the objective of 120 bottles of blood is to be obtained.

Particular responsibility rests upon those who have received blood transfusions and upon their families, it was stated. Their recovery from illness or accident has been hastened or maybe their lives saved by receiving blood and now they have a chance to provide this service for someone else, or perhaps for themselves on some future occasion.

three-mile limit. Mr. Pearson said he assured Mr. Kennedy that American rights and interests would be taken into account.

"Discussions will be held with the United States and other countries with a view to determining the nature and extent of rights and interests which may be affected by the action which Canada is taking," Mr. Pearson said.

Mr. Diefenbaker said that while his Conservative government was in office it had tried to bring about the 12-mile fishing limit by international agreement, along with a six-mile territorial limit.

The U.S. is the market for about 70 per cent of Canada's fisheries exports, and the government should assure Parliament that extending the fishers' les limit by unilateral action will not invite retaliation on such exports, Mr. Diefenbaker said.

Lloyd Crouse (PC—Queens-Lunenburg) asked whether the new regulation will be enforced by the coast guard or the defence department.

Mr. Pearson said enforcement would involve the "good faith" of other countries. It would be some time before arrangements were worked out.

The present three-mile limit is based on the 18th century range of cannon. Major maritime shipping nations and those with powerful navies oppose the extension of the territorial limit because it will mean their merchant vessels will have to travel farther to avoid trespassing, and their naval vessels cannot approach close enough to be effective in surveillance.

The three-mile limit has been a cause for complaint among Canadian fishermen, however, for many years. Some Canadian trawlers have to remain outside a 12-mile limit imposed by Canada as a conservation measure, while foreign trawlers fish up to the three-mile limit.

his slippered foot on Wednesday and Thursday. Then Thursday at twilight he will be placed in a crypt in St. Peter's in a private ceremony.

Romans had their first glimpse of his body as it was borne through the square in a procession that had all the ancient splendor and awesome solemnity of the church's great moments.

Men and women wept as the body was carried on an open bier through the square.

Beside the bier walked the three white-haired brothers of Pope John and his heavily-veiled sister, country folk from the north of Italy who journeyed to Rome to share their brother's last hours.

Islanders To See Partial Eclipse

An eclipse of the sun forecast for July 20 will renge up to 90 percent in Prince Edward Island, a statement by a Maritime weather observer indicates.

A strip of shadow running through Quebec and Maine will result from the total eclipse expected in that area. A portion of northern New Brunswick is expected to have 95 per cent blacked out by the intervening moon, and the 90 percent area will comprise the rest of New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, the observer states.

An emphatic warning is issued to children and others that it is really dangerous to look at the eclipse without proper protection for the eyes.

A bit of glass heavily coated with smoke from a candle flame is said to be safe, but the best thing is photographic film fully exposed and developed, and preferably two thicknesses, the observer explains.

heads for some of the weapons it acquired?

NOTES 'INTENTION'

Mr. Harkness replied that the acquisition of four weapons systems "indicated an intention on the part of the government to supply them with the ammunition which would make them effective."

Mr. Harkness, defence minister for nearly 2½ years, made no reference to his resignation from the cabinet, which he said at the time was because of irreconcileable differences on nuclear policy with then prime minister Diefenbaker.

He said Conservative defence policy involved acquiring four weapons systems which would be effective only with nuclear warheads. This final step was the only one which had not been taken.

He was referring to the CF-104 low-level jet bomber and Honest John artillery rocket for Canada's NATO forces in Europe, and the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile and Voodoo jet interceptors for NORAD in Canada.

Mr. Harkness criticized Mr. Hellyer—had been unable to get any defence information from the Conservative government.

That was "demonstrably not true."

Mr. Harkness expressed doubt that the committee could be effective in helping decide defence policy. The problem of security made it impossible to give a committee—even sitting in secret—enough information so that it could decide on policy.

But the committee would serve a useful purpose in informing the Commons and public about the organization, equipment and capabilities of the armed forces.
