

Gems of Thought.

We must learn to infuse sublimity into trifles; that is power. Always taking out and never putting in soon reaches the bottom. There is no sweeter repose than that which is purchased by labor. The art of life is to know how to enjoy a little, and to endure much. The angels find all their happiness in use, from use, and according to it. A wise man reflects before he speaks and reflects on what he has uttered. The head however strong it may be, can accomplish nothing against the heart. The wise man looks for happiness beyond the narrow ken of personal interest. Action may at times bring happiness, but there is no happiness without action. Virtue in society is like valor in an army; it depends greatly upon mutual reliance. All the scholastic scaffolding falls as a ruined edifice before one single word-faith. Riches are given to make life pass comfortably; but life is not given only to possess riches. Our possessions are not so wholly appreciated by ourselves as by those who have them not. By taking revenge a man is but even with his enemy; but in passing it over he is superior. The discovery of what is true, and the practice of what is good, and the two most important objects of life.

Current Notes.

Through some unaccountable mistake a worthy pair retired to rest without "barrin' the door," and in the darkness of "the stilly night" a large Newfoundland dog managed to effect an entrance to the room where the husband and wife were asleep. The dog set up a prolonged series of low, monotonous moans greatly terrifying the husband, who came to the conclusion that it must be Old Harry on a mission. The dog at last raised his paw on the front of the bed, when the goddess gave utterance to the following:- "O good devil don't take me. Take Betty; she's at the back of the bed!"

As illustrating the characteristics of the three nationalities, the following story is told: An Englishman, an Irishman and a Scotchman were represented as looking through a confectioner's window at the beautiful young woman serving in the shop. "Oh!" exclaimed Mr. Patrick, "do let us go to spending a half-crown with the dear creature, that we may look at her quite conveniently and have a bit of chat with her." "You extravagant dog!" said Mr. George; "I'm sure one-half the money would do just as well. But let us go in by all means; she is a charming girl." "Oh wait a wee?" interrupted Mr. Andrew "diana ye ken, it'll serve our purpose equally as well just to ask the bonny lassie to gie us twa sixpence for a shilling, and inquire where's Mr. Thompson's house, and sic like? We're no hungry, and may as well save the siller."

Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes thus charmingly describes the beneficial results of tree-planting: But I must not let my fancy run away with me. It is enough to know that when we plant a tree we are doing what we can to make our planet more wholesome and a happier dwelling-place for those who come after us, if not for ourselves. As you drop the seed, as you plant the sapling, your left hand hardly knows what your right hand is doing. But nature knows, and in due time the Power that sees and works in secret will reward you openly. You have been warned against hiding your talent in a napkin; but if your talent takes the shape of a maple-key or an acorn, and your napkin is a shroud of the apron that covers "the lap of Earth," you may hide it there unblamed, and when you render in your account you will find that your deposit has been drawing compound interest all the time.

The origin of the word Canada is curious enough. The Spaniards visited that country previous to the French and made partial searches for gold and silver, and finding none they often said among themselves, "A can nada" (there is nothing there). The Indians, who watched closely, learned the sentence and its meaning. After the departure of the Spaniards, the French arrived, and the Indians, who wanted none of their company, and supposed they also were Spaniards come on the same errand were anxious to inform them that their labor was lost by tarrying in that country, and frequently repeated to them the Spanish sentence, "A can nada." The French, who know as little of Spanish as the Indians, supposed the incessantly recurring sound was the name of the country, and gave it the name of Canada, which it has borne ever since.—Canadian American.
