MR. AND MRS. JAMES WOODLEY

French Peau De Soie Gown Features Lace Panel Train

Hazel Jean Kays, RN became the bride of James Richard Woodley in a double ring ceremony performed by Archdeacon J. R. Davies at St. Peter's Cathedral, Charlottetown, on Sept 7 at 2.00 p.m.

The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Kays 89 Pownal Street, Charlottetown and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Woodley, East St. John, N.B.

The pews were marked with white gladioli. Baskets of white gladioli and red and white mums provided the setting for the wedding while the Cathedral Choir and organist, George Thompson supplied the wedding music, the choir singing "O Perfect Love" and Mr. Thompson playing "I'll Walk With God."

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore an original model floor-length sheath gown of imported French white peau de soie that featured a round neckline, long pointed sleeves and a lace edged panel that fell from the shoulders into a train. Her mother of pearl headdress which came down to the forehead held in place a tulle veil that fell to the floor over the train. She carried a cascade of yuletide roses and her only ornament was a gold wrist watch, gift of the bridegroom.

Maid of honor for her sister was Doreen Kays of Halifax while Diane Kays, Charlottetown, also sister of the bride, and Joan Woodley, Montreal, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. Flower girl was five - year - old Jennifer Manzer of Halifax and ring bearer was her brother Robert. They are cousins of the bridegroom.

The three attendants wore identical floor - length sheath gowns of soft gold brocade with waist - length jackets of champagne crystalette that featured elbow - length sleeves and covered back buttons. They wore gold satin shoes and carried cresents of orange and marigolds. Their headdresses were champagne tulle short circular veils that were centered with matching rose. Jennifer Manzer wore a floor - length full gown of soft gold silk with matching shoes, stocking and gloves. She wore a circlet of yellow roses in her hair that was styled in an up - sweep and she carried a basket of mixed roses. Robert Manzer was dressed in a navy blue blazer and grey flannels.

Best man for the wedding was Adrain Sturgeon of Halifax, with Brian Coon and Dick Jackson as ushers, also of Halifax.

For the reception that followed at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall, the bride's mother received wearing an original two-piece model gown of peacock blue crepe that consisted of a sheath dress with elbow - length sleeves and a flowing overdress that draped over one shoulder. Her original model turban-styled hat of peacock blue crepe and satin complimented her bag and shoes of peacock blue satin. She wore a white orchid and three - quarter length white kid gloves and carried a peacock blue crepe stole lined with peacock blue satin.

The bridegroom's mother was in a champagne gown of peau de-soie and she wore a chocolate mink stole. Her brown bag and shoes complimented her champagne feather hat. She wore a white orchid and three - quarter length fawn kid gloves. The head table was decorated with a three tier wedding cake and baskets of gladiolas and mums

Master of ceremonies for the reception was Paul Kays, Charlottetown, cousin of the bride. Mrs. Ralph Turner, Halifax, circulated the guest book.

The Rev. Canon E. M. Malone proposed the toast to the bride which was responded to by the bridegroom. Adrian Sturgen proposed the toast to the bridesmaids and read numerous telegrams from all parts of Canada and the U.S.A.

For their honeymoon to White Point Beach Lodge, N.S. the bride wore a camel hair suit of three - quarter length jacket; royal blue satten shoes and matching bag; and a royal blue print hat of long - hatred blended with wool. She wore a blue orchid

Mr. and Mrs. Woodley will reside at 6230 Windcrest Terrace, Halifax where Mrs. Woodley is on the staff of the Grace Maternity Hospital and Mr. Woodley with the laboratory staff of Stadacona Hospital.

Among the 250 guests attending the wedding were a great number from throughout the Maritimes and Ottawa.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Young Islanders Attend Their Rural Youth Fair

This was the day of the Rural Youth Fair. This gala event, a highlight of their year, brings together a great and interesting company, the 4-H members Island - over, to present for final judgement, the cream of the various projects undertaken during that period, as already selected from competitions on Achievement and Field Days held locally.

Due to increased studies, the one girl of this farm, was unable to complete her final year in the local Sewing Club as she had anticipated, but because it was more convenient for her, she found time to continue her interest in the Calf Club with Mack who is also a member.

Through the years we have seen the pair exercise and train their calves, now along summery paths, and again through drifts of snow. Alex and Peter come these times to watch, though usually it is from a distance, Scampie too is an interested onlooker, eyes following each move, obviously hoping to be called upon to nip a heel inclined to lag. We hear the clicking and the chuckles, see old times the tumbles and the 'ostrein, the dismay and laughter that attended it, if a calf is playful or unruly. And we know that in the after years, these will be among their cherished scenes of childhood that will ever remain.

"You will stay at home this morning, eh? We'll go after dinner to the Fair" we overheard James say to Peter this morning in the yard. Peter stopped in his tracks, obviously amazed at the suggestion He shook his head. "Oh no, I can't do that!" he said. "You see everybody's going. And didn't you know? The calves have to go in this morning!"

So the morning drew him from the house across the lane and the family with the exception of his sister, who must attend her classes, to the scene of the Fair, held at that site which to older folks is known as "the Exhibition Grounds" toward an edge of our Capital City. While this one lacks the noise and color of the former Fair of August's Old Home Week, it is nevertheless a pleasant and exciting event, not only for the children concerned, but also for their families and friends. It is a happy spirit, all in all, that prevails.

It was interesting for us to note that the chosen 4-H King and Queen: cousins, as it happens, are the great grandchildren of James' parents — of his father who passed away some years before "our time" at Alderlea, and his mother, who was in some directions a stern woman, but a good friend of the less fortunate, understanding and helpful to the wayward, a veritable rock in times of illness or troubles, and invariably kind to the one daughter-in - law that was here. We know that if she could have been spared to this day, she would have been justifiably proud of this talented and promising pair of youngsters, who will honor and grace the high position they now hold.

"There were some great calves at that Fair, Ellen" James recalls, coming in now at the close of the day.

"And great children" we nod.

"And great children!" he smiles.

And though it had been made especially for them and their event, this was a perfect Autumn day.

Until tomorrow — Diary — Good - night....

MARY HAWORTH

Husband Nude In House Is Canary Sans Feathers

Dear Mary Haworth: My problem is rather embarrassing to spell out, but an open discussion may help other marriages too.

I was brought up in a household where modesty was taught by precept and examples as a virtue essential to boys and men as well as girls and women. From an early age, we sisters and brothers were always careful in this respect, as were our parents too.

After my marriage I learned that my husband had other views. He thinks nothing of going from bedroom to living room with no clothes on. For several years I didn't make an issue of this, thinking it was an adjustment I had to make.

Then our children came along (two boys and a girl) to be considered. Now they are 10, 9 and 7. To my dismay, they prance through their bedrooms completely nude and barge, unclad and unannounced, into their dad's bedroom or bath. When I scold, they tell me, "Daddy says it's all right."

On a recent weekend the boys and their father went camping. Later they told me, when I remarked on the minimum laundry, that they wore practically nothing all weekend, at their cabin in the woods, with nobody else around.

I realize boys will be boys and psychologist seem to see no harm in this. But I can't help feeling that our family is carrying nudity to extremes. Am I being a prude, who doesn't understand the ways of boys and men? I would appreciate your comments. C.F.

Dear C.F.: Imagine the pet canary without its feathers, or the family cat, dog or horse standing around in a hairless state sans its furry coat) and you get the equivalent on the score of looks, of papa in the living room with no clothes on, giving his children a sort of nudist camp conditioning.

From the viewpoint of normal adult sensibilities, which takes considerate account of the inborn right to privacy of every individual, such as spectacle is essentially unseemly, an offense against natural human decency and moral propriety. (I mean the spectacle of papa lottering nude in the living room.)

'Tis said that nothing's either good or bad but thinking makes it so. Be that as it may, qualities of personal nobility, innate courtesy and instinctive psychical reserve (otherwise known as modesty) usually go hand-in-hand. to constitute first-rate character.

Conversely, a person who lacks physical modesty usually also is mentally coarse and morally insensitive when the chips are down.

As I see the picture, you aren't so much a prude as you are a poor soul who lacks conviction, courage and integrity in dealing with your husband's callous vulgarity as it hinders the children's development.

As your husband hasn't the delicacy or the kindness, to conform to your preference, out of respect for your modest nature, I don't suppose you can boss or frown him into line.

The best you can do, in the circumstances described, is to set a blameless personal example for the children to observe; and to continue, always, to instruct them calmly (despite what daddy says) in the generally approved patterns of physical privacy honored in civilized family life. M.H.

MR. AND MRS. GERALD CHAISSON

Double Ring Ceremony Unites Couple At Souris

Baskets and vases of mixed flowers decorated the altar of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, Souris on August 8, 1964 when Rev. J.J. Dunphy united in a double ring ceremony Alena Mary, youngest daughter of Mrs. Mary Pierce of Souris and the late Emmet Pierce, to Gerald Doran, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Chaisson, Rollo Bay.

Knights of the altar were Robert Pierce and Richard Chaisson, brothers of the bride and groom Appropriate hymns were rendered by William Chaisson, uncle of the groom, who was accompanied by Clifford Peters, organist. Following the nuptial mass the papal blessing was bestowed on the bride and groom.

Entering the church on the arm of her brother, William Pierce, the bride wore a floor length gown of imported European brocade fashioned on princess lines featuring a fitted bodice with sweetheart neckline and lily point sleeves. The bustled back of the bouffant skirt was accentuated by rosettes of the same material and fell to a short train. Her shoulder length veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a double tiara of mother of pearl. She carried a cascade of yellow roses.

Attending their sister were Jane Pierce, as maid of honour and Margaret Pierce and Elizabeth Chaisson, sister of the groom, as bridesmaids. They were identically dressed in street-length sheath dresses of blue embroidered taffeta featuring original necklines and elbow-length sleeves. The simple lines were broken at the waistline by bows of the same material the theme of which was carried out in their headpieces. Cascades of white and yellow daisies formed their bouquets.

Acting as best man was Merril Smith, Parkdale. Ushering the guests to pews marked with silver doilies and mixed flowers were Joseph Pierce and David Chaisson, brothers of the bride and groom.

Following the ceremony, breakfast for 85 guests was served at the Wheel of Fortune. The mother of the bride received wearing a two piece dress of beige English brocade with coffee-coloured accessories and a corsage of yellow feathered carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore a two piece dress of cerise imported silk shantung with white accessories and a capelet of Kalinsky mink Her corsage was of white feathered carnations.

Master of ceremonies was Ben McInnis, uncle of the bride, who called upon Leonard McCormack to say grace. The toast to the bride was proposed by the master of ceremonies and was responded to by the groom. The toast to the bridesmaids was proposed by the best man.

Telegrams were read by the best man. Following the breakfast a reception was held at the Souris Legion Home where music was supplied by Clifford Peters, John J. Chaisson, and Joseph Peters.

Reesie Gillis and Catherine Ann Lewis, cousins of the bride, circulated the guestbook.

For a honeymoon trip through the Maritimes and the New England States, the bride chose a two piece ensemble of printed English cotton with a matching linen coat and white accessories. A corsage of white and coral-tinted feathered carnations completed her ensemble.

On their return the happy young couple took up residence at 86 Sydney Street, Charlottetown. The groom is employed as a registered technologist with the Division of Laboratories and the bride is on the laboratory staff of the Charlottetown Hospital.

Out-of-province guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Dan Pierce; Trail, B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. Pat Holland, Kimberly, B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. William Edkins, Timmy and David, Dunnville, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Cheverie, James Chaisson, Hamilton, Ont. Douglas White and Sharon Heffernan, Halifax, N.S.; Mr. and Mrs. William Gillis and Betty, Rothesay, N.B.; Mr. and Mrs. Ben McInnis, Mrs. Richard Desault, Reesie Gillis, Margaret Pierce, all of Mass., U.S.A.

CAMPAIGN ON DRUNKS

WARSAW (AP)—A campaign in four Polish provinces against drunks in traffic brought 811 arrests last week but only 78 persons were automobile drivers. The rest were pedestrians, bicyclists, motorcyclists and wagon drivers, the Polish press agency reported Tuesday.
