

CALENDAR FOR MARCH, 1894.
 New Moon, 7th day, 10h 6.0m, a. m. n. b. h.
 First Quar 14th day, 2h 15.6 m. p. m. S. E.
 Full Moon, 21st day, 5h 58.7 a. m. N. W. l. h.
 Last Quar 27th day, 4h 15.1 m. a. m. S.

Day of Week	Sun rises	Sun sets	High water
Thursday	6 43	5 42	6 21
Friday	41	43	7 34
Saturday	39	44	8 28
Sunday	38	46	9 22
Monday	36	47	9 53
Tuesday	34	49	10 27
Wednesday	32	50	11 0
Thursday	30	52	11 31
Friday	28	51	12 0
Saturday	26	44	11 31
Sunday	24	56	0 37
Monday	22	57	1 16
Tuesday	20	59	2 1
Wednesday	18	6 0	3 3
Thursday	16	6 1	4 19
Friday	14	6 3	5 07
Saturday	13	4	7 26
Sunday	11	5	8 31
Monday	9	6	9 26
Tuesday	7	7	10 22
Wednesday	5	9	10 27
Thursday	3	11	11 11
Friday	1	12	11 45
Saturday	5 59	13	12 1
Sunday	5 57	15	0 53
Monday	5 57	14	1 19
Tuesday	5 53	17	2 29
Wednesday	5 51	19	2 12
Thursday	4 59	20	4 27
Friday	4 57	21	5 41
Saturday	5 45	6 22	6 51

THE DAILY EXAMINER.

TERMS: Four Dollars a Year

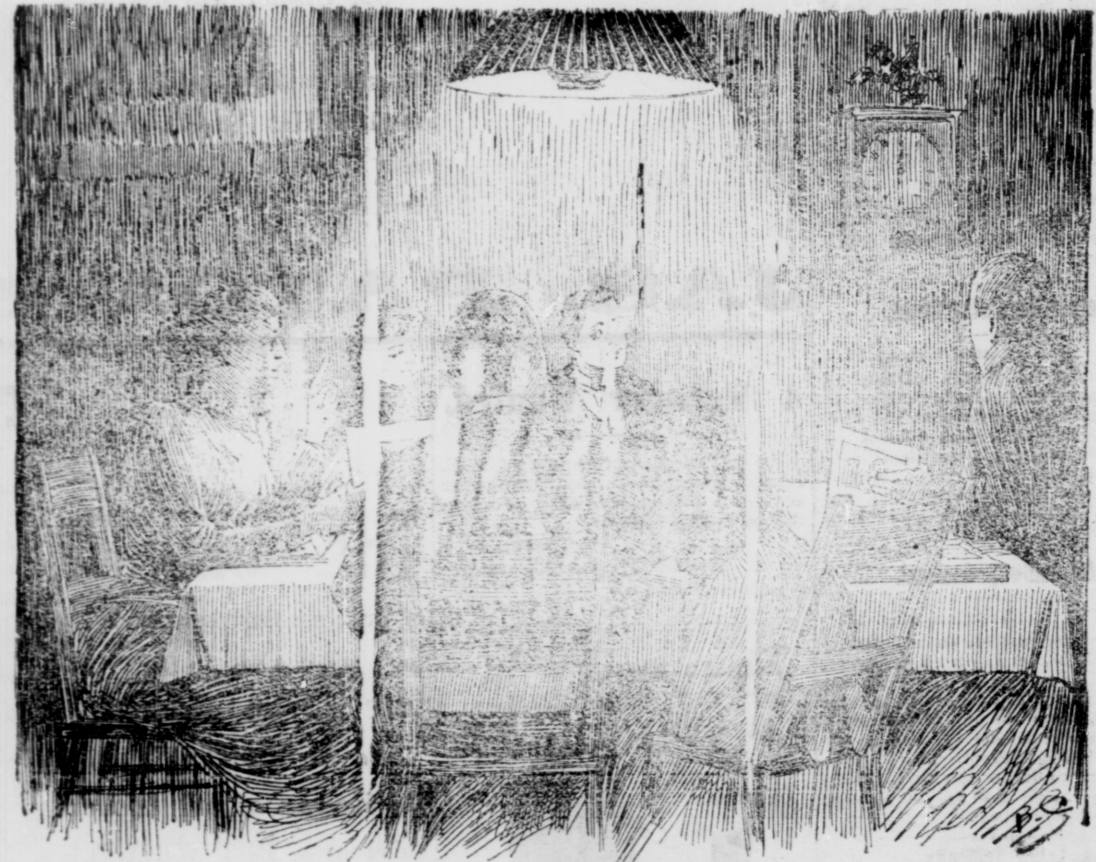

"This is true Liberty, when Free Born Men, having to advise the Public, may speak free."—Euripides.

Single Copies Two Cents

NEW SERIES! CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. ISLAND, SATURDAY, MARCH 24, 1894. VOL 33.—NO. 212

The Magic City

Have You seen Part 7?

Cut out Coupon on Page 1.

THE AMERICAN

$8.00 Typewriter.

This is a well-made, practical machine, writing capitals, small letters, figures, and punctuation marks (71 in all) on full width paper, just like a $100 instrument. It is the first of its kind ever offered at a popular price for which the above claim can be truthfully made. It is not a toy, but a typewriter built for and capable of REAL WORK. While not as rapid as the large machines sometimes become in expert hands, it is still at least as rapid as the pen, and has the advantage of such simplicity that it can be understood and mastered almost at a glance. We cordially commend it to helpful parents and teachers everywhere.

Writes capitals, small letters, figures and marks—71 in all.
 Writes just like a $100 machine.
 No Shift Keys. No Ribbon. Prints from the type direct.
 Prints on flat surface.
 Writing always in sight.
 Corrections and insertions easily made.
 Takes any width of paper or envelope up to 8 1/2 inches.

Easy to understand—learned in 5 minutes.
 Weighs only four pounds—most portable.
 Compact, takes up but little room.
 Built solid and simple; can't get out of order.
 Capital and lower case keyboard alike—easily mastered.
 More "margin play" for the small letters which do most of the work.
 Takes good letter-press copies.

Packed securely in handsome case and expressed to any address on receipt of price, $8.00, in registered letter, money order or certified check. We guarantee every machine, and are glad to answer all inquiries for further information as to this machine and also the "Yost."

IRA CORNWALL,
 General Agent for Maritime Provinces, dec20

FIRE INSURANCE.

Your patronage by the following great Fire Companies is respectfully solicited:
 The Royal Ins. Co. of Liverpool.
 The London & Lancashire Ins. Co. of Liverpool.
 The United Fire Ins. Co. of Manchester.
 The Phoenix Ins. Co. of Brooklyn.

These Companies command ENORMOUS MONETARY STRENGTH, and are noted for their prompt and liberal settlement of losses.

JOHN MACEACHERN,
 AGENT FOR P. E. ISLAND.

INSURANCE---FIRE, MARINE, LIFE.

The undersigned represents the following first-class British Companies—
FIRE.
 North British and Mercantile Insurance Company.
 Union Assurance Society (174).
 Manchester Fire Assurance Company.
MARINE.
 British and Foreign Marine Insurance Company.
 Reliance Marine Insurance Company.
LIFE.
 London and Lancashire Life Assurance Company.

Fire and Marine Policies all written here. Sterling Certificates, payable in any part of the world, issued on shipments.
 ALSO—The Nova Scotia Marine Insurance Company and the Dominion Burglary Guarantee Company of Canada.
 OFFICE—Stamper's Block, Charlottetown. Agencies in all Towns and Villages.

FRED. W. HYNDMAN.

Place a Cake

of B. B.'S OWN SOAP in your linen drawer, and it will impart to your clothes the delicate aroma of fine French Pot Pourri in a modified degree. The longer you keep the Soap before using it the better. Beware of imitations.
THE ALBERT TOILET SOAP CO., Montreal.
 SOLE MANUFACTURERS.

THE ALBERT TOILET SOAP CO., Montreal. SOLE MANUFACTURERS.

MAN AND LION FRIENDS

AMICABLE RELATIONS BETWEEN A FAMOUS ANIMAL AND HIS TRAINER.

How Leo Was Taught to Obey—Taken in Infancy, Treated Kindly and Made to Understand That Man Was His Master—The Lion's Intelligence.

"Why do I love Leo more than the rest of the animals under my care?" asked Professor Hagenbeck, of the arena. The professor, who, owing to his long association with the King of Beasts, has grown to resemble a lion himself, stroked his very beard meditatively as he put this question.

"Leo is more than my pupil," he continued. "He is my bosom friend and may yet become my protector should the other lions ever turn against me. Our affection dates from the day we first met in the bazaar at Suakin, in Egypt."

"The mention of that meeting brings before me the whole strange scene, as flashlight does a darkened picture.

"Overhead, ahead in the copper, yellow African sky, east and west stretched the long bazaar, gaudy with many colored cloths, rooking with a thousand odors, and crowded with all manner of men—black, brown and white. The few whites are soldiers of Queen Victoria, then in occupation of Suakin for war with the Mahdi had just been concluded and my own party.

"To the south lies a hazy waste of sand, broken by the crooked lines of palms which mark the track of the Nile. Suddenly I am called from the reverie into which I have fallen by the voice of Herr Kohn, Mr. Hagenbeck's South African agent. He apprises me of the arrival of the lion cub, I look southward and there comes through the crowd a camel, bobbing and swaying, as camels do, and bearing two wicker cages, availing from the ends of bamboo poles lashed across his back. Turban and fez give way before the advancing beast, and I can distinguish two fine baby lions hanging from the cage.

"I am on a mission to Africa to gather up the lion cubs for the arena. I am on the right of the camel. I am greeted by low growl. The occupant is the lion whom we now call 'Pasha,' the brother of Leo. Trying my luck at the other side, I am received with a growl that is not so low, but my hand into the cage. The lion cub rubs his soft back against it. We are friends from the start. Opening the cage, I take a little follow-up to my arms. He nestles near my breast, and near my heart he has remained ever since. That lion cub was Leo, and I shall never forget it to him, and his brother was sulky at our first introduction, he himself welcomed me as a friend from the first moment my eyes met his.

"Prof. Darling probably knows more about lions than any other living person other than a Nubian or a Kaffir. He went into the mercantile business as a pony trainer at the age of 18, but speedily saw that his training talents demanded more important objects. From teaching tricks to slugs, he followed the gravitation toward the section occupied by the lions. The lions took to him and he to them.

"In 1888 the idea of training lions to perform in large arenas, instead of in the streets, occurred to him, and he suggested it to Karl Hagenbeck. The latter at the time was a doctor, and he was anxious to obtain lions for his big experiment. Mr. Hagenbeck has agents all the world over. But in Kohn, his representative in the Sudan, he looked up as the greatest trader in wild beasts alive.

"A fortnight after Mr. Darling's arrival in Suakin, Mr. Kohn received news of the capture of the two young lions in the far south. He sent messengers for them, and they were brought down the Nile to him, languishing from lack of food. He was anxious to see them. They had been caught by Nubian hunters in the usual manner—namely, by shooting their darts and stealing them from her. We bought the two lions cheap," said Mr. Darling. "We gave their captors a few pieces of fancy patterned cloth, an old revolver for them. The value of the goods for which they were exchanged did not exceed $5. Now you could not buy 'Leo' alone for $500."

"Mr. Darling brought his lion gemini down the Nile, stopping at Sheppard's, in Cairo, for a few weeks, and finally reached Port Said, from whence he took ship for Trieste. To his surprise the cubs were not a bit seasick during their first voyage. He has, however, since learned that animals do not get sick at sea. "I never saw a lion seasick," he declared, "in my experience. Once a lion of mine was ill at sea, but his indisposition was caused by his air in his cabin and not by the motion of the vessel. Camels are pretty good training for seagoing people, anyhow. The man who can ride camels back with impunity can easily attempt the Dover-Calais trip, and 'Leo' and 'Pasha,' you may remember, had been carried by a camel all the way from Nubia."

"The lion's love for the other affection besides that which he bears for Professor Darling. It is the feeling that binds him to his brother Pasha. The old saw that blood is thicker than water certainly holds good in this case. The two lions love each other, and show their love a great deal more than do human sons to a common mother. They help each other loyally against the attacks of the other lions who share their cage, and they lie down to sleep back to back, and are intensely unhappy even when separated for a brief time.

"Professor Darling has experimented upon this fraternal feeling by giving no food to Leo while he fed Pasha sumptuously. The result was that Pasha, seeing his brother's plight, actually pushed some of the raw food given him under the bars of the cage which the hungry Leo was confined. A few weeks later Leo attacked and defeated a third lion, named Tom, who had scratched Pasha's nose in one of the many quarrels that occur in the lions' quarters.

"Professor Darling recognizes fully the tremendous risk he incurs in his performance with the lions. "Very few lion trainers," he said, "leave the business sound in brain and limb. The great majority eventually get hurt in one way or another. It does not do, however, to lose one's confidence. Every lion tamer must look upon himself as certain to be one of the exceptions of the rule of suffering. This is the way I regard myself. Of course, they are dangerous, but I do not fear them as long as I have my nerve and a stout whip."

"The older a lion grows the less amenable to captivity he becomes. The lions now with Mr. Hagenbeck will soon be the following:

Wearing Low Shoes.

Wearing low shoes in the fall simply invites a cold. If you take cold, you take Hawker's Tonic and Wild Cherry Balsam; it is a sure cure for coughs, colds, Hoarseness, Bronchitis, etc. Sold everywhere, only 25 cents.

Now is the time to get your supply of crockery as we are selling off cheaper than ever to make room for new goods to arrive as soon as navigation opens. The cheap crockery store.—W. P. Colwell.

USE SKODA'S DISCOVERY, the great Blood and Nerve Remedy.

W. R. Watson, Druggist, Charlottetown, P. E. Island.

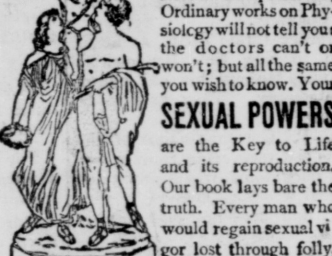

Unlike the Dutch Process

No Alkalies
 —or—
 Other Chemicals are used in the preparation of
W. BAKER & CO.'S
Breakfast Cocoa

It has more than three times the strength of Cocoa mixed with starch, Arrowroot or any other substance. It is economical, cooking less than one cent a cup. It is delicious, nourishing, and easily digested.
 Sold by Grocers everywhere.
W. BAKER & CO., Dorchester, Mass.

PERFECT MANHOOD!

How attained—how restored—how preserved. Ordinary works on Physiology will not tell you the doctor's can't, or won't; but all the same you wish to know. Your SEXUAL POWERS are the Key to Life and its reproduction. Our book lays bare the truth. Every man who would regain sexual vigor lost through folly, or develop members now wasted by disease, should write for our needed book, "Perfect Manhood." No charge. Address (in confidence),
ERIE MEDICAL CO., Buffalo, N. Y.

ERIE MEDICAL CO., Buffalo, N. Y.

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT

UNLIKE ANY OTHER.

Originated by an Old Family Physician. Think of it. In use for more than Eighty Years and still leads. Great relief in all cases of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Diphtheria, Croup, Catarrh, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Stomachic, Sore in Mouth or Throat, Sore on Strain, Sore on the Neck, Sore on the Face, Sore on the Arm, Sore on the Leg, Sore on the Hand, Sore on the Foot, Sore on the Head, Sore on the Neck, Sore on the Face, Sore on the Arm, Sore on the Leg, Sore on the Hand, Sore on the Foot, Sore on the Head.

Every Member of the Family should have Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. It is a household necessity. It is a sure cure for all the above mentioned ailments. It is a household necessity. It is a sure cure for all the above mentioned ailments.

UP ALL NIGHT

Gray's Syrup or Red Spruce Gum

Gray's Syrup or Red Spruce Gum

Gray's Syrup or Red Spruce Gum

Gray's Syrup or Red Spruce Gum

Gray's Syrup or Red Spruce Gum

Gray's Syrup or Red Spruce Gum

Gray's Syrup or Red Spruce Gum

Gray's Syrup or Red Spruce Gum

Gray's Syrup or Red Spruce Gum

Gray's Syrup or Red Spruce Gum

MAN AND LION FRIENDS

AMICABLE RELATIONS BETWEEN A FAMOUS ANIMAL AND HIS TRAINER.

How Leo Was Taught to Obey—Taken in Infancy, Treated Kindly and Made to Understand That Man Was His Master—The Lion's Intelligence.

"Why do I love Leo more than the rest of the animals under my care?" asked Professor Hagenbeck, of the arena. The professor, who, owing to his long association with the King of Beasts, has grown to resemble a lion himself, stroked his very beard meditatively as he put this question.

"Leo is more than my pupil," he continued. "He is my bosom friend and may yet become my protector should the other lions ever turn against me. Our affection dates from the day we first met in the bazaar at Suakin, in Egypt."

"The mention of that meeting brings before me the whole strange scene, as flashlight does a darkened picture.

"Overhead, ahead in the copper, yellow African sky, east and west stretched the long bazaar, gaudy with many colored cloths, rooking with a thousand odors, and crowded with all manner of men—black, brown and white. The few whites are soldiers of Queen Victoria, then in occupation of Suakin for war with the Mahdi had just been concluded and my own party.

"To the south lies a hazy waste of sand, broken by the crooked lines of palms which mark the track of the Nile. Suddenly I am called from the reverie into which I have fallen by the voice of Herr Kohn, Mr. Hagenbeck's South African agent. He apprises me of the arrival of the lion cub, I look southward and there comes through the crowd a camel, bobbing and swaying, as camels do, and bearing two wicker cages, availing from the ends of bamboo poles lashed across his back. Turban and fez give way before the advancing beast, and I can distinguish two fine baby lions hanging from the cage.

"I am on a mission to Africa to gather up the lion cubs for the arena. I am on the right of the camel. I am greeted by low growl. The occupant is the lion whom we now call 'Pasha,' the brother of Leo. Trying my luck at the other side, I am received with a growl that is not so low, but my hand into the cage. The lion cub rubs his soft back against it. We are friends from the start. Opening the cage, I take a little follow-up to my arms. He nestles near my breast, and near my heart he has remained ever since. That lion cub was Leo, and I shall never forget it to him, and his brother was sulky at our first introduction, he himself welcomed me as a friend from the first moment my eyes met his.

"Prof. Darling probably knows more about lions than any other living person other than a Nubian or a Kaffir. He went into the mercantile business as a pony trainer at the age of 18, but speedily saw that his training talents demanded more important objects. From teaching tricks to slugs, he followed the gravitation toward the section occupied by the lions. The lions took to him and he to them.

"In 1888 the idea of training lions to perform in large arenas, instead of in the streets, occurred to him, and he suggested it to Karl Hagenbeck. The latter at the time was a doctor, and he was anxious to obtain lions for his big experiment. Mr. Hagenbeck has agents all the world over. But in Kohn, his representative in the Sudan, he looked up as the greatest trader in wild beasts alive.

"A fortnight after Mr. Darling's arrival in Suakin, Mr. Kohn received news of the capture of the two young lions in the far south. He sent messengers for them, and they were brought down the Nile to him, languishing from lack of food. He was anxious to see them. They had been caught by Nubian hunters in the usual manner—namely, by shooting their darts and stealing them from her. We bought the two lions cheap," said Mr. Darling. "We gave their captors a few pieces of fancy patterned cloth, an old revolver for them. The value of the goods for which they were exchanged did not exceed $5. Now you could not buy 'Leo' alone for $500."

"Mr. Darling brought his lion gemini down the Nile, stopping at Sheppard's, in Cairo, for a few weeks, and finally reached Port Said, from whence he took ship for Trieste. To his surprise the cubs were not a bit seasick during their first voyage. He has, however, since learned that animals do not get sick at sea. "I never saw a lion seasick," he declared, "in my experience. Once a lion of mine was ill at sea, but his indisposition was caused by his air in his cabin and not by the motion of the vessel. Camels are pretty good training for seagoing people, anyhow. The man who can ride camels back with impunity can easily attempt the Dover-Calais trip, and 'Leo' and 'Pasha,' you may remember, had been carried by a camel all the way from Nubia."

"The lion's love for the other affection besides that which he bears for Professor Darling. It is the feeling that binds him to his brother Pasha. The old saw that blood is thicker than water certainly holds good in this case. The two lions love each other, and show their love a great deal more than do human sons to a common mother. They help each other loyally against the attacks of the other lions who share their cage, and they lie down to sleep back to back, and are intensely unhappy even when separated for a brief time.

"Professor Darling has experimented upon this fraternal feeling by giving no food to Leo while he fed Pasha sumptuously. The result was that Pasha, seeing his brother's plight, actually pushed some of the raw food given him under the bars of the cage which the hungry Leo was confined. A few weeks later Leo attacked and defeated a third lion, named Tom, who had scratched Pasha's nose in one of the many quarrels that occur in the lions' quarters.

"Professor Darling recognizes fully the tremendous risk he incurs in his performance with the lions. "Very few lion trainers," he said, "leave the business sound in brain and limb. The great majority eventually get hurt in one way or another. It does not do, however, to lose one's confidence. Every lion tamer must look upon himself as certain to be one of the exceptions of the rule of suffering. This is the way I regard myself. Of course, they are dangerous, but I do not fear them as long as I have my nerve and a stout whip."

"The older a lion grows the less amenable to captivity he becomes. The lions now with Mr. Hagenbeck will soon be the following:

Wearing Low Shoes.

Wearing low shoes in the fall simply invites a cold. If you take cold, you take Hawker's Tonic and Wild Cherry Balsam; it is a sure cure for coughs, colds, Hoarseness, Bronchitis, etc. Sold everywhere, only 25 cents.

Now is the time to get your supply of crockery as we are selling off cheaper than ever to make room for new goods to arrive as soon as navigation opens. The cheap crockery store.—W. P. Colwell.

USE SKODA'S DISCOVERY, the great Blood and Nerve Remedy.

W. R. Watson, Druggist, Charlottetown, P. E. Island.

THE ART OF CONVERSATION

No longer understood in English Society.

Another thing which has gone out of fashion is the art of conversation, says the Pall Mall Gazette. The art of late years has been neglected that it is the rarest chance to meet with a young man who can converse intelligently in the real sense of the word. Among his own set he can talk about mutual acquaintances, the new singer, the next race or the latest scandal. But throw him among strangers and he is silent and dull, perhaps making short remarks in a jerry and confused manner, but certainly he is wanting in intelligent sympathy. A combination of cunning and remorse led him to be more than ordinarily pliable, and it will be weeks, probably, before he meditates further evil toward me."

HOW TO GET THESE PICTURES.

Send to THE EXAMINER OFFICE, and the photographs will be delivered to you. Orders from the country filled by return mail. No charge for postage.

The Examiner Pub. Co.
 March, 1894.

THE MAGIC CITY.

This series of World's Fair Photographs will be published in 16 parts. Single parts cost 10 cents each. Coupons must also be sent for each part wanted.

Send to THE EXAMINER OFFICE, and the photographs will be delivered to you. Orders from the country filled by return mail. No charge for postage.

The Examiner Pub. Co.
 March, 1894.

THE MAGIC CITY.

This series of World's Fair Photographs will be published in 16 parts. Single parts cost 10 cents each. Coupons must also be sent for each part wanted.

Send to THE EXAMINER OFFICE, and the photographs will be delivered to you. Orders from the country filled by return mail. No charge for postage.

The Examiner Pub. Co.
 March, 1894.

THE MAGIC CITY.

This series of World's Fair Photographs will be published in 16 parts. Single parts cost 10 cents each. Coupons must also be sent for each part wanted.

Send to THE EXAMINER OFFICE, and the photographs will be delivered to you. Orders from the country filled by return mail. No charge for postage.

The Examiner Pub. Co.
 March, 1894.

THE MAGIC CITY.

This series of World's Fair Photographs will be published in 16 parts. Single parts cost 10 cents each. Coupons must also be sent for each part wanted.

Send to THE EXAMINER OFFICE, and the photographs will be delivered to you. Orders from the country filled by return mail. No charge for postage.

The Examiner Pub. Co.
 March, 1894.

THE MAGIC CITY.

This series of World's Fair Photographs will be published in 16 parts. Single parts cost 10 cents each. Coupons must also be sent for each part wanted.

Send to THE EXAMINER OFFICE, and the photographs will be delivered to you. Orders from the country filled by return mail. No charge for postage.

MAN AND LION FRIENDS

AMICABLE RELATIONS BETWEEN A FAMOUS ANIMAL AND HIS TRAINER.

How Leo Was Taught to Obey—Taken in Infancy, Treated Kindly and Made to Understand That Man Was His Master—The Lion's Intelligence.

"Why do I love Leo more than the rest of the animals under my care?" asked Professor Hagenbeck, of the arena. The professor, who, owing to his long association with the King of Beasts, has grown to resemble a lion himself, stroked his very beard meditatively as he put this question.

"Leo is more than my pupil," he continued. "He is my bosom friend and may yet become my protector should the other lions ever turn against me. Our affection dates from the day we first met in the bazaar at Suakin, in Egypt."

"The mention of that meeting brings before me the whole strange scene, as flashlight does a darkened picture.

"Overhead, ahead in the copper, yellow African sky, east and west stretched the long bazaar, gaudy with many colored cloths, rooking with a thousand odors, and crowded with all manner of men—black, brown and white. The few whites are soldiers of Queen Victoria, then in occupation of Suakin for war with the Mahdi had just been concluded and my own party.

"To the south lies a hazy waste of sand, broken by the crooked lines of palms which mark the track of the Nile. Suddenly I am called from the reverie into which I have fallen by the voice of Herr Kohn, Mr. Hagenbeck's South African agent. He apprises me of the arrival of the lion cub, I look southward and there comes through the crowd a camel, bobbing and swaying, as camels do, and bearing two wicker cages, availing from the ends of bamboo poles lashed across his back. Turban and fez give way before the advancing beast, and I can distinguish two fine baby lions hanging from the cage.

"I am on a mission to Africa to gather up the lion cubs for the arena. I am on the right of the camel. I am greeted by low growl. The occupant is the lion whom we now call 'Pasha,' the brother of Leo. Trying my luck at the other side, I am received with a growl that is not so low, but my hand into the cage. The lion cub rubs his soft back against it. We are friends from the start. Opening the cage, I take a little follow-up to my arms. He nestles near my breast, and near my heart he has remained ever since. That lion cub was Leo, and I shall never forget it to him, and his brother was sulky at our first introduction, he himself welcomed me as a friend from the first moment my eyes met his.

"Prof. Darling probably knows more about lions than any other living person other than a Nubian or a Kaffir. He went into the mercantile business as a pony trainer at the age of 18, but speedily saw that his training talents demanded more important objects. From teaching tricks to slugs, he followed the gravitation toward the section occupied by the lions. The lions took to him and he to them.

"In 1888 the idea of training lions to perform in large arenas, instead of in the streets, occurred to him, and he suggested it to Karl Hagenbeck. The latter at the time was a doctor, and he was anxious to obtain lions for his big experiment. Mr. Hagenbeck has agents all the world over. But in Kohn, his representative in the Sudan, he looked up as the greatest trader in wild beasts alive.

"A fortnight after Mr. Darling's arrival in Suakin, Mr. Kohn received news of the capture of the two young lions in the far south. He sent messengers for them, and they were brought down the Nile to him, languishing from lack of food. He was anxious to see them. They had been caught by Nubian hunters in the usual manner—namely, by shooting their darts and stealing them from her. We bought the two lions cheap," said Mr. Darling. "We gave their captors a few pieces of fancy patterned cloth, an old revolver for them. The value of the goods for which they were exchanged did not exceed $5. Now you could not buy 'Leo' alone for $500."

"Mr. Darling brought his lion gemini down the Nile, stopping at Sheppard's, in Cairo, for a few weeks, and finally reached Port Said, from whence he took ship for Trieste. To his surprise the cubs were not a bit seasick during their first voyage. He has, however, since learned that animals do not get sick at sea. "I never saw a lion seasick," he declared, "in my experience. Once a lion of mine was ill at sea, but his indisposition was caused by his air in his cabin and not by the motion of the vessel. Camels are pretty good training for seagoing people, anyhow. The man who can ride camels back with impunity can easily attempt the Dover-Calais trip, and 'Leo' and 'Pasha,' you may remember, had been carried by a camel all the way from Nubia."

"The lion's love for the other affection besides that which he bears for Professor Darling. It is the feeling that binds him to his brother Pasha. The old saw that blood is thicker than water certainly holds good in this case. The two lions love each other, and show their love a great deal more than do human sons to a common mother. They help each other loyally against the attacks of the other lions who share their cage, and they lie down to sleep back to back, and are intensely unhappy even when separated for a brief time.

"Professor Darling has experimented upon this fraternal feeling by giving no food to Leo while he fed Pasha sumptuously. The result was that Pasha, seeing his brother's plight, actually pushed some of the raw food given him under the bars of the cage which the hungry Leo was confined. A few weeks later Leo attacked and defeated a third lion, named Tom, who had scratched Pasha's nose in one of the many quarrels that occur in the lions' quarters.

"Professor Darling recognizes fully the tremendous risk he incurs in his performance with the lions. "Very few lion trainers," he said, "leave the business sound in brain and limb. The great majority eventually get hurt in one way or another. It does not do, however, to lose one's confidence. Every lion tamer must look upon himself as certain to be one of the exceptions of the rule of suffering. This is the way I regard myself. Of course, they are dangerous, but I do not fear them as long as I have my nerve and a stout whip."

"The older a lion grows the less amenable to captivity he becomes. The lions now with Mr. Hagenbeck will soon be the following:

Wearing Low Shoes.

Wearing low shoes in the fall simply invites a cold. If you take cold, you take Hawker's Tonic and Wild Cherry Balsam; it is a sure cure for coughs, colds, Hoarseness, Bronchitis, etc. Sold everywhere, only 25 cents.

Now is the time to get your supply of crockery as we are selling off cheaper than ever to make room for new goods to arrive as soon as navigation opens. The cheap crockery store.—W. P. Colwell.

USE SKODA'S DISCOVERY, the great Blood and Nerve Remedy.

W. R. Watson, Druggist, Charlottetown, P. E. Island.

THE ART OF CONVERSATION

No longer understood in English Society.

Another thing which has gone out of fashion is the art of conversation, says the Pall Mall Gazette. The art of late years has been neglected that it is the rarest chance to meet with a young man who can converse intelligently in the real sense of the word. Among his own set he can talk about mutual acquaintances, the new singer, the next race or the latest scandal. But throw him among strangers and he is silent and dull, perhaps making short remarks in a jerry and confused manner, but certainly he is wanting in intelligent sympathy. A combination of cunning and remorse led him to be more than ordinarily pliable, and it will be weeks, probably, before he meditates further evil toward me."

HOW TO GET THESE PICTURES.

Send to THE EXAMINER OFFICE, and the photographs will be delivered to you. Orders from the country filled by return mail. No charge for postage.

The Examiner Pub. Co.
 March, 1894.