Opening lead—queen of hearts. It is hard for the average bridge player to stir up any great enthusiasm for the overtrick. To make five spades when the contract is four, or three clubs when the contract is two, is not generally regarded as a world-shaking event.

Only the inveterate duplicate player, to whom the extra trick is a shibboleth and a godsend, strives for it with undiminished zeal.

Yet, overtricks, though they lack the dramatic impact of games and slams bid and made, do mount up to a tidy sum in the course of time, and cannot be completely ignored.

The hand shown occurred in the Masters Pairs some years back.
