Proceedings in the Provincial Legislature

April 26th—Afternoon Session
House met at 3:40 p.m.
Debate on the budget continued.
MR. BUTLER thought the Commissioner of Public Works would do well to have a set wage. A man hired should not be allowed to take it for nothing or almost nothing. Dumps should be protected or lighted, safety first should be considered. Places should not be left where persons driving cars often might drive into. The roads in Murray Harbor district and in many places, have been neglected and not kept in repair. This is particularly noticeable along the sides of the roads where trees and brush is growing. Care of these in proper time would be a great benefit.
We on this side of the House have been accused of gaining our election by false representations, said Mr. Butler. The Opposition will, no doubt, be surprised to hear me admit that we did. But it was because the Conservatives declared that they were going to make revenue and expenditure meet that we did so. He claimed that it was a gross injustice to this province for the late Government to force the automobiles on the people of the country by opening up the roads for traffic.
MR. J. D. STEWART: Did you close them up again?
MR. BUTLER: I am not objecting to the principle of the thing, but to the unfairness of their doing what was against the wishes of the people of this province.
MR. STEWART: Did you remedy this injustice by closing the roads when you came into power?
MR. BUTLER: We did not. It would not be fair to the larger number of people who had invested their money in autos and now had them on their hands, to close the roads to them and make all those autos useless.
A government's first duty to the children of the country is to give them a fair education, continued

At that time he had explained that he had no desire to attempt any interference in the fiscal policy of the United Kingdom, but on the other hand Canada strongly objected to a policy of throwing an undeserved stigma on the country's cattle industry.

Russia Obdurate at Genoa Conference

(Special to The Guardian)
GENOA, May 3.—Disarmament negotiations were brought up by Russia at the opening of the second plenary session of the Genoa conference today. Its delegates met at Sandriotti Palace. The first named report was approved but George Takhierin objecting on behalf of Russia declared nations can only balance their budgets by a policy of peace. Reconstruction depends upon disarmament and nations must put the world's interests before private interests or those of any one group. Russia will not agree to a number of questions before the finance commission. In emphasizing the Soviet objections, he recognized the League of Nations in the necessity of loans to needy nations and said it was possible to renounce control over exchange operations and be warned that international corporations must not be allowed to become monopolies. The Russian leader explained it was difficult for the Soviet government to cooperate internationally because there was no official Soviet representatives in many countries.

Ten Stowed in Airtight Vault

NEW YORK, May 3.—Imprisonment for not less than 30 years for more than 60 years was the sentence pronounced today by Judge Rosalsky Diasta and Maurice Bagnoli, two of the five robbers who invaded the home of Albert R. Shattuck, the banker, at No. 19 North Washington Square, April 2, locked him and Mrs. Shattuck and eight servants in an airtight vault and robbed the house of $100,000-worth of jewelry.
Mr. Shattuck, within a few hours of suffocation, managed to open the lock of the vault with a penknife and a coin. Had he not been able to do this, it is believed all would have perished.
So far caught, pleaded guilty to first degree burglary.
Police Lieut. Funston today stated that at the time of the burglary, before the Shattucks and the servants were locked in the vault, both Mr. and Mrs. Shattuck went on their knees to Diasta and Bagnoli pleading that they not carry out their threat to put them into the vault. This was a compartment 15 feet by 6 and 8 feet high and Mr. Shattuck told the men that all would be suffocated if they were imprisoned.
"But both Diasta and Bagnoli laughed in their faces," Funston added.
Diasta, formerly a sailor, and Bagnoli had been Apaches in Paris, it was stated, and both had served in the French army during the world war. Their attorney, Charles Hickey, submitted to the police full confession. Bagnoli claimed that Diasta had prevailed upon him to join the robber gang, telling him that there was $100,000 of booty to be taken and that it would be divided among the five thieves.
In imposing sentence, Judge Rosalsky first paid tribute to the police for their work in the case, and added:
"Such men as these two prisoners must be discouraged. They were willing to jeopardize the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Shattuck and the servants. The idea of locking them in an airtight vault is revolting. They knew what they were doing, and they would not have hesitated to take life. They were armed with automatic pistols. They must suffer a substantial sentence, one which will strike terror to evildoers, and this I shall impose."

Closing Session

Yesterday morning the House opened to the public at 11:35 o'clock. Mr. Speaker Duffy announced that prorogation would take place at 2 o'clock.
