THE months of November and December are always accompanied with loss of life and property on account of storms on the Atlantic. The closing months of '81 were unusually destructive in this respect. Among the vessels which are about being given up for lost is the brig "Dot," owned by John Lefurgy, of this town. This vessel sailed from Crapaud early in November, with a cargo of oats for Cardiff. She is now out seventy days, and it is unnecessary to say that the chances of her safe arrival are small indeed. Her captain (Grady) and one of the hands belong to this town, and, of course, their friends are very much interested as to their fate. - Weekly.

The "Northern Light" and the Express Train.

The "Northern Light" - a steamer stout - In Georgetown harbor lay, Waiting the coming of the train To take the mails away. The fires glowed red in her hold below, And her engines of polished steel, And the ponderous bars lay quiet and still, The master's hand to feel. The Captain bold, a fine Scotchman, And his pilot, steady and true; And all the rest - a gallant band - Were ready their duty to do. The train is speeding away to them, The driver holding the throttle, The brave sailors in charge of the whole, And the passengers passing the bottle. Over the country, tame and wild, And through the forests green, And past the cottages, tidy and white, The glare of the train is seen. The farmers honest, are reading the book, How young Jacob sat by the well, And when Rachel came up he kissed her - so, And cautioned her not to tell. And the farmers' muse of their own young days, And of their wives, fair and bright, And they don't bid Jacob at all, at all, But think he did what was right. And the farmers' daughters rise from their work, As they hear the train a running; And they look out keen in the frosty night, To see if their fellows are coming. Bless the fair maidens of our good land, And a Jacob for every one, That so a people great may rise For the work that's yet to be done. Fast Mount Stewart and Plinty Glea, And down by Carlisle Bay, The rushing train goes roaring on Till it safe in Georgetown lay. The mail bags many are put on board And safe y' scowled in their cells, And all made ready and ovals piled on To start with the morning bells. Be careful, Captain, of those mail bags, And drive off all your fears, For a thousand letters are there and more, Letters written in tears. Written from mothers and sisters dear, To their sons and sweethearts afar, At work in the mines of foreign lands, And to ask them how they are. On the streets and squares of the ancient town, Not a man or a boy was seen; And among the guns at range in her forts, No sentries marched between. The townspeople all were fast asleep - Tired out with a hard day's work; They have no fear of an enemy near, Nor of treacherous Spaniard or Turk. On board the steamer a feast was made In her cabin, spacious and wide. And the story of "Old Calamity" told By the champion of Summerside. A Senator great and fluent in speech, Good-hearted, strong and able, Bound to do well for the people at large, Presided over the table. Alongside of him sat a handsome young man - A native of this Isle - Who, twenty years ago, had gone, And now was back for a while. Had come to see his mother and friends, Had come with a share of his gold, And drank and made merry with all the boys Like Joseph and Simon of old. But now, with his wife, was returning back To his own mountain home away, Some three thousand miles far off in the hills And no longer could he stay. And soon the feasting came to a close, The whistle blew loud and fast, And the "Northern Light" stood out to sea, To icebergs and tempest and blast. Sail on "Northern Light," so staunch and strong, Sail on ye gallant crew, And ever remember the charge ye have, And keep the light in view. Sail on, good ship, and bring us the news, From our sons and brothers abroad. That they are well and raking in gold And, above all, fearing God. Sail on, and bring us a word of cheer, From the Isles, and from earth's ending - That "peace and good will" around the globe, From man to man is extending.

GOOD VENTILATION, And Good Health follows.

THE undersigned has purchased the exclusive right of the D. F. & L. VENTILATORS, manufactured by R. M. & T. ALLAN, Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, for this Province. This Ventilator recommends itself at sight, and is indispensable for Rooms, Kitchens, Cellars, Closets, Pansies, and all places where pure air is required. It does not interfere with the raising or lowering of the windows; it is simple in construction, durable, water-tight, absolutely noiseless, and ornamental. Physicians recommend it for sleeping and sick rooms. Scientific men declare it the best ventilator ever invented. It is equally adapted for dwellings and public buildings. Windows can be secured against drafts of cold air, and thus secured, from attempts of burglars. Can be equally adjusted to double or single windows, and easily regulated. It is peculiarly desirable for steam boats, railway cars, and street cars, being unaffected by situation or motion, frost, storms or rust.

The Ventilator has received numerous testimonials from medical doctors in Canada and the United States. Circulars giving full explanation of its working can be obtained from the undersigned, who is prepared to fill all orders for it. P. H. IRANOR, Ch'town, Jan. 7, 1882.
