HOW IT WORKS.

Friends of the Ottawa Government are always telling us that Mr. Fielding cut down the tariff, thus reducing the taxation; but that he also collects more taxation than ever, thus producing a surplus. This, as the Mail and Empire remarks, sounds like a miracle; and when lists of articles upon which the duties have been lowered a trifle are given as a proof of reduced taxation the thing looks more miraculous than ever. Mr. Clancy, M.P., in his recent speech on the tariff, explained this pretended miracle. There have been tariff reductions and there have been tariff increases. The former amount to little; the latter are important. This is how the thing works, as established by Mr. Clancy: "The first thing the Minister did was to take $15 off seal beans and to put $17,322 on uncleaned rice." Some of Mr. Fielding's speeches dwell upon the enormous relief we have experienced by the reduction of the duty on "seal beans." Our five millions of people have saved $15 by the process. At the same time $17,322 extra has been taken out of us on rice alone. Mr. Clancy proceeds: "The next thing the hon. gentleman did was to take $19,304 off farming tools and to put $169,958 on cottons. Next he took $42,930 off iron and steel wire, and put $236,860 on woollen goods. Then he took $126,885 off barbed wire fencing and put $393,203 on sugar. The hon. gentleman took $102,300 off binder twine, and he put on the poor man's tobacco $1,051,446." The whole thing has been a disturbance of the incidence of taxation, with a small drop here and a huge increase there.

Rosebery's Prediction.

LONDON, May 12.—Addressing the company at the banquet of the Glasgow University Club given in London this evening Lord Rosebery said:

"We shall come out of the war with triumph for our arms and lustre for our national character; but we will lose the surest results of the struggle if we fail to utilize it to reform and rearrange our administration to meet the growing requirements of an enormously increasing empire."

A Scare in Toronto.

TORONTO, May 10.—Particular pains are being taken to guard the parliament building here, and several additional night watchmen have been placed on duty. All having keys to the buildings have been ordered to report. Ministers are reticent as to the reason for the extra precautions, but it is surmised that another Fenian scare is in the wind.

CULLED FROM THE PAPERS.

With Mr. Wise out of the way and Pineau supporting them, the Government have a majority of one, exclusive of Speaker Cumiskey.—Toronto Globe.

Most of the afternoon was spent on this motion, during the course of which McWilliams charged that the Conservatives had set Wise drunk. He was compelled to withdraw the statement, and stated that he did not wish to slander any member of the Opposition.—Halifax Chronicle (Liberal) May 11.

The constituencies are deliberately deprived of their voices in the affairs of the Island. The Government has secured a majority of one, but it has lost every vestige of respectability.—Montreal Gazette May 10.

We have had in Ontario the scandalous revelations concerning the operations of the "machine." In Manitoba the people have risen and hurled from power a shamefully corrupt government. In Prince Edward Island the spectacle is presented of a resort to methods utterly indefensible, to save a government which has lost the confidence of the people. In British Columbia the bulwark of liberalism is the unspeakable Joe Martin. In New Brunswick, liberalism bows the knee to Blair, Tweedie and Pagsley. The opportunist is enthroned, and the man of convictions finds himself a misfit in the ranks of the party whose battles he always fought.—St. John Sun.

It is time for sober men to ask if representative government is safe in Canada. West Elgin was stolen by the Machine. West Huron and Brockville were carried by means which Sir Wilfrid's majority in the House of Commons refuse to permit to be investigated. A Liberal Lieutenant-Governor in British Columbia dismisses in succession two Ministers which were not clearly without the confidence of the Legislature, and at last turns the executive power in the province over to a man with barely one follower on the floor of the House. And now a representative of the people, elected to oppose a Liberal Government in Prince Edward Island, is brought into the House to vote for that Government, thus giving it a majority of one. What may we expect from such a party when its grasp of power at Ottawa is threatened?—The Star, Montreal.

Granville Notes.

We are having a very backward spring and our farmers are anxiously waiting for the seed to dry sufficiently to enable them to commence seeding operations.

Captain Dan McLeod is busy fitting out his sloop Wide Awake for the season's fishing. He is having a complete set of sails made for her and is having her painted in first-class style. Judging from the captain's remarks Wide Awake will figure highly in the annual regatta in July.

Mr. D. A. Sharp, nurseryman, of Summerside, spent last week in Granville. While here he pruned and grafted quite a number of orchards.

Mrs. Wm. McKenzie and family leave today for Peperell, Mass., to join Mr. McKenzie, who has secured a lucrative position at that place. They are accompanied by Miss Georgina Corbett, who intends spending the summer in New Bedford, Mass.

The roads and bridges in this section are in "a most deplorable condition" and our government is doing little or nothing towards having them made passable. A few patch-work jobs are being let, evidently for the purpose of quieting a few of the many hangers on, and the materials used in these jobs are a fair sample of the government that let them, viz old poles and rotten planks.

A few of the "old faithfuls" met in Granville Hall on the evening of the 4th inst., and formed what the Patriot calls a "Liberal Association." But those who were the leading Liberals (Grits) a few years ago, were conspicuous by their absence, there being barely a quorum present and the majority of them not belonging to the poll, in fact there were so few present that a number, of absentees were appointed to office and not a single resolution commending the action of our Provincial Government was even spoken of, reminding one of the lines of the poet on "A Truthful Tongue,"

"And where it could not praise was chained."

PULL.

Heirlooms Sold.

LONDON, May 11.—The sale by auction of the Peel family heirlooms drew a fashionable crowd yesterday, among which Sir Robert Peel, mingled, gaily watching the heirlooms knocked down to curio dealers. Among the bidders were Lord Rosebery and the Rothschilds, but dealers predominated. The most valuable part of the collection will come under the hammer tomorrow. The sale was chiefly statuary and furniture and realized about £8,000. The chief item was Chantrey's bust of Sir Walter Scott, which brought £2,250. The pictures are expected to run much higher. There are rare Van Dycks and others on the list.

Women made nervous by the wasting diseases which drain their system find new life, new vigor, new energy, in Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food, the world's greatest blood and nerve builder.

FARMER FISHER'S FIFTY PER CENT.

The practical agriculturist at the head of our Department of Agriculture—the dapper farming representative in this business Administration has so bungled the securing of cold storage contracts from the steamship companies for this season and the next that our shippers must pay fifty per cent more for the privilege; than they did under the "extravagant and unbusiness-like" Conservative arrangement. Mr. Fisher's excuse is that he could not be expected to foresee the war. And this is a good excuse—for Mr. Fisher. He is not in the Ministry as a prophet, but as a farmer and a prohibitionist; and it is not his business to foresee anything but "the early and the later rains, and the best way of preventing the Temperance movement from colliding disastrously with the Government. No one will accuse him of failing in this latter respect. The man who managed "the plebiscite farce could give "David Harum" points in the horse-trading business. More than that, Mr. Fisher knows that the spring is the time to sow and the autumn is the time to reap; and that the gentle hen can not only be led to the chicken feed, but can be made to swallow it, whether it has an appetite or the dyspepsia. Now this is enough for one man to know; and it is unfair to ask that he keep tab of foreign politics as well.

Of course, most ordinary persons whose minds were not overloaded with kid-gloved farming information, might have thought that the time to renew those cold storage contracts was when the old ones expired, and might likewise have noticed that a war cloud hung over South Africa. But one man cannot do everything, and that is where Sir Wilfrid made a mistake. He should not try to overwork Mr. Fisher just because he is a farmer and accustomed to get up with the hired man and "do chores" after sundown. He ought to let some other member of his aggregation of talented business experts attend to any signing of papers which may technically belong to Mr. Fisher's department. The worthy Alva farmer probably thought that if he signed those contracts hastily, he would have a hay rake and a sewing machine delivered at his farm one of these days, together with a fat promissory note.

The consequence is that our shippers pay 50 per cent. more for their cold storage, to say nothing of the advance in freights. A little business method would have saved us this. But Farmer (?) Fisher probably figured it out that having reaped one set of contracts, the ground should lie fallow for a while. Sir Wilfrid should give him a clerk who understands book-keeping and has had experience in keeping a steady supply of canned goods on the shelves. He would have known that when a line of goods ran out, it was time to renew.—Star.
