United Fund Says 3 Ways To Donate

Contributors to the Prince Edward Island United Fund may make their contributions in three ways, United Fund officials have stated.

A lump sun contribution may be made in which the contributor makes his total annual gift to the 17 agencies in one payment.

Another way is by payroll deduction. Officials stated that Island employers almost without exception are co-operating by agreeding to deduct an employee's contribution from his salary whether it be on a weekly, monthly or other basis.

The third way a contribution may be made is by way of periodic payments to the United Fund office. These may be made to suit one's convenience.

Contributions may be designated to any one of the 17 charities participating.

Ben Champion To Head S'side Lobster Carnival

SUMMERSIDE — Ben Champion has accepted the position as president of the Summerside Lobster Carnival and Livestock Exhibition Limited it was revealed at last night's annual meeting presided over by retiring president, Arthur Johnstone.

Mr. Champion has been vice-president for the past year.

The meeting was held in the board room of the George R. Pearkes VC Branch, Royal Canadian Legion with executive members and directors present.

In his annual report, Charles Hogan, carnival manager put forth a number of recommendations after relating that the 7th annual carnival held in July was the most successfull to date, both financially and from all other points of view.

Mr. Hogan suggested the directors consider hiring a full time manager and secretary-treasurer within the next year or two; that changes be made in the by-laws so that other organizations could join the Lobster Carnival and Livestock Exhibition Limited.

The manager also suggested the stadium floor plan be changed in future to make more room for booths and other activities. This suggested plan would include holding the suppers under canvas and moving all games outside the stadium which is the headquarters for the event. Mr. Hogan also recommended the carnival be a six-day event starting next year as he felt the carnival, with next year's inclusion of Fishermen's Day, will provide plenty of entertainment for a full week's run.

TOO LARGE FOR ONE

The manager said that although parade chairmen have done an excellent job in the past he felt this aspect of the carnival may become too large for one club to handle. He suggested the parade committee chairmanship come under the direction of the board of directors with possibly the vice-president heading a committee of his own choosing.

Mr. Hogan said "something has to be done about the lobsters" if the price for lobster suppers remains the same ($1.75). Other recommendations contained in the, committee chairmen reports are to be studied by Mr. Hogan and a report on these made at the next meeting.

The retiring president stated in his report that a new barn, an aquarium and fluorescent lighting had been items of considerable expense but he felt the outlay was justified as indicated by the large number of favorable comments as a result of these additions to the carnival.

MISS P.E.I. CONTEST

Mr. Johnstone suggested that Robert Schurman be asked to take over the entire handling of the Miss P.E.I. contest in the future. Mr. Schurman has been master of ceremonies for this event each year. This recommendation was also put forth in the manager's report. The retiring president also suggested a different method of eliminating the contestants which would have more appeal to out-of-town entrants.

Gordon Simmons of the Y's Men's Club, said he had been instructed by the executive to inform the meeting the club wished to devote an entire meeting to discussion of the lobster carnival before accepting any responsibility for next year.

A.H. Hubley of the Board of Trade said he felt that many members of the various clubs don't realize the amount of work put in by those on the various committees, adding he thought it was an excellent idea to discuss the activities of the carnival in all the clubs within the organization.

The president and vice-president were empowered to choose a committee, headed by themselves, to negotiate for a manager and secretary-treasurer for the coming year and to bring in their recommendations to the new executive.

The next meeting of the organization is slated for Oct. 29

Potato Dealers Urged To Resist Price Cuts

By DON MacLeod
Guardian - Patriot Staff Writer

Some potato interests in the Montreal and Toronto market areas are reported to be pressuring Island dealers to lower potato prices.

Marketing Director Reid Sangster said yesterday that "after talks with several dealers and growers in this province, I find that pressure seems to be building up to lower our prices on sales of potatoes in the Montreal and Toronto areas."

According to Mr. Sangster, "dealers and growers here are being told they should look for potatoes at a lesser price than the existing market price."

Mr. Sangster said most Island dealers are not in favor of lower prices and "are anxious to see that prices do not slip below their present level."

"It is the feeling of Agriculture Minister Andrew MacRae and myself that this should not be done. Lower prices, in our opinion, will not add to the sale of potatoes; harvesting has not advanced to the point where we have to force our potatoes on the market.

SEED PRICES UP

"In addition, large seed sales are now being made, which will help to take large quantities of potatoes which might have reached the table stock market. It has been learned authoritatively that these seed potatoes will bring better prices than table stock.

"The department of agriculture is watching with great interest the large seed sales which will considerably affect the potato industry all to the good."

Mr. Sangster added that large sales of table stock are now being made in the West indies area. "Prices received here for these potatoes are not below the range of those offered in Toronto." He said the sales are being made to Puerto Rico, Barbados and Jamaica.

"The orders being filled for these places are larger than usual," he said.

"HOLD THE LINE"

"We feel," Mr. Sangster went on, "that dealers and growers should, at present, hold their position on prices. It is very easy to get prices down but 10 times as hard to get them back up again.

"There is no reason why growers should be talked into selling for less than the present level, which is $1.15 per 75-pound bag; of course this price applies when the grower supplies the bag."

The marketing director said that "with weather conditions as they are, it is no time to start underselling. Only a small percentage of this year's crop is out of the ground.

CHANGES LATER?

"Some changes in the thinking regarding present price levels may be necessary in the future but we can cross that bridge when we come to it. Prices may change if there are large holdings of potatoes that have no storage space, but that is not the case at present, because of the slowness of harvesting due mainly to weather conditions and a late season."

Keen Interest Shown In Handicraft Classes

"It will require a number of weeks to get organized before courses can be started in the province," Wendall MacKay, deputy minister of tourist development, said last night at the close of the two-day handicraft exhibition at Birchwood High School.

The number of persons who attended the exhibition was placed at between 4,000 and 5,000.

"We were hoping for a good turnout," said Mr. MacKay, "but the response was overwhelming. Persons came from all over the Island—from East Point to North Cape. The turnout indicates there is a great hunger for this type of program in the province."

Already a handicrafts director and two instructors have been appointed for the provincial program. Director is Mrs. Percy Lister, Hampton, N.B., and instructors are Mr. Lister, weaving, and Miss Jeannie Albert, Paquetville, N.B., textile painting.

FIRST STEP

First step in getting the program underway, according to Mr. MacKay, will be an evaluation of the questionnaires visitors to the exhibition filled out. The results will be tabulated to find where particular interests lie, then groups will be organized and instructors brought in to get the courses started. "All those who filled out a questionnaire will receive a letter notifying them when courses are organized," Mr. MacKay said.

RURAL ENDEAVOUR

"As much as possible," Mr. MacKay said, "courses will be held in the applicant's own community. I would like to point out that the handicraft program is to be mainly a rural endeavor. Our main interest in teaching these crafts is to provide people with a simple, inexpensive means of supplementing their income. Marketing of handicrafts will be no problem, provided they are of good quality and contain an original design."

Dr. Ivan Crowell, New Brunswick director of handicrafts, said he was "completely amazed at the number of people who turned out to see the exhibition. There were far more than I expected."

Equipment and instructors for the exhibition were furnished by the handicrafts division of the New Brunswick department of industry.

Dr. Crowell and the instructors will be returning to New Brunswick today.

Legion Golfers Will Stage First Tourney On Weekend

P 3 LEGION GOLFERS 2-24

The First Canadian Legion golf tournament in this province will be a feature this weekend at the Charlottetown Golf Club, on Saturday and Sunday.

Some 50 to 60 members of the Legion, from a number of Island centers, including Charlottetown Summerside, and Montague, are expected to take part in the venture, the first in an annual series.

'GOLFERS', ONLY

Rules governing the tournament stipulate that only 'golfing' members of the Legion are eligible; that is, members who have had some experience at the game. It is impossible, officials state, to accommodate beginners in a tourney of this kind.

Entries will be accepted at the pro shop at Belvedere by telephone or in person, and the draw will be compiled Friday evening.

There will be a Legion tournament dance at the golf club Saturday night, starting at nine o'clock.

Electoral Reform Has New Interest

By NEIL A. MATHESON
Provincial and Farm Editor

Tuesday's cabinet session on the problem of Electoral Reform, and the revelation that a Progressive Conservative party caucus will be called to deal further with the matter, have stirred new interest in the recommendations by the Desroches commission, which submitted its report in the provincial legislature here last March.

The most controversial recommendation was that the Georgetown district (5th Kings) be eliminated, and the territory divided among the second, third, and fourth districts. Sharp disapproval has already been registered by S.S. Hessian, QC, MLA, who represents the district, along with George Ferguson, MLA Murray River.

The present 5th Queens district, Charlottetown and the Royalties, would be split into two electoral districts. It would have the effect of increasing the present two members for the area to four.

Other recommendations would cut Lot 18 from Third Prince and add it to Fourth Prince, and reduce Fifth Prince to cover only Summerside and the airport there, known generally as Slemon Park.

The elimination of multiple voting — a husband and wife could poll 60 votes on election day merely by owning a minimum of $325 worth of property in each electoral district — was also recommended, and this is one recommendation that is almost certain to be adopted.

The commission stopped short, however, of recommending the elimination of the property vote, which gives the owner and his wife, or vice versa, the privilege of voting for the councillor and assemblyman candidate. Non-property owners vote only for the assemblyman.

The suggestion is that the property vote be retained but the owner can only vote in one district.

ELECTORAL OFFICER

The commission also recommended the appointment of a full or part-time electoral officer, who would be free from all party affiliation.

The commission recommended a salary, or indemnity, increase of $500 per member of the legislature. Also recommended were retention of the candidate's deposit of $100 and that advance polls be provided one for each county.

The commission also recommended that property owners should own at least $1,000 worth of property to qualify, instead of $325 as it is now.

County Court Hears Appeal

SUMMERSIDE — In County Court before Judge Darby in Summerside yesterday, an appeal case was heard in which Mrs. Lulu Ester MacNevin, Bras, against the valuation of $519.20 made by the minister of highways under the Provincial Highways Act. Mrs. MacNevin is claiming $2000.

The property in question is bounded by the old Brae Road and the old Milo road, and when the new Trans Canada Highway was constructed there, the new road crossed the property.

J. Watson MacNaught is acting for the appelant, while W. Chester S. Macdonald is acting for the department of highways.

The case was adjourned one week for a decision.
