

ELLEN'S DIARY

Squirrels Also Harvest Good Crop This Year

"We won't run out of work, Ellen" James offered with a chuckle at breakfast, in reply to our question as to what the plans were in regard to the fieldwork today. "There's still plenty to do!"

Its crimson less accented than that of the maples, it now stands out prettily in the company of great old neighboring spruces. They too are attractive, their boughs adorned with a rare wealth of brownish cones. In this year's fullness, the thought came, the squirrels, like the farmwives, will have plenty in their winter cupboards! Crows in a dark pair flew along above the hilltop. (We counted, "one for sorrow, two for joy" and the whimsy-pleased us.)

MR. AND MRS. JOHN MASSEY

SEPTEMBER WEDDING

Central Lot 16 Church was the setting for an early Autumn wedding when Hazel Adele, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Hutchinson, Lot 16, was united in marriage with John Gordon Massey, son of Mr. and Mrs. William

Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Campbell, Breadalbane, have returned from a three week vacation trip to Newfoundland, making stopovers at Bayfield, Truro, and Halifax, N. S.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Donohue, Skinner's Pond celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary last week at their home.

MR. AND MRS. KENNETH HICKS

Hicks-Sutherland Wedding Solemnized In September

Zion Presbyterian Church, Charlottetown, was the setting for a double ring ceremony, when Rev. Donald A. Campbell united in marriage, Donna Leah, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Elmer Sutherland, Charlottetown, and Kenneth Murdoch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Murdoch Hicks of Moncton, N. B.

The Church organist, Royston F. Mugford, played the wedding music, and accompanied Vicki Robertson as she sang "The Wedding Prayer", during the ceremony, and "O Perfect Love while the register was being signed. Standards of red and white gladioli, lighted tapers in silver candelabra, and pots of bronze mums, decorated the church. Guest pews were marked with white satin bows.

The bride given in marriage by her father wore a floor length gown of white brocade satin, fashioned with scooped neckline, empire waistline, and long lily-point sleeves. A detachable train fell from the shoulders. Her shoulder length veil of tulle illusion held in place a flower headpiece of organza and satin trimmed with pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses, with stephanotis and ivy.

The matron of honor was Mrs. James Fletcher, sister of the bride, and bridesmaids were: Mrs. Barry Balderston, Beverly Hicks, sister of the groom, and Mrs. Allan Rogerson. They wore floor length gowns fashioned alike, with scooped neckline, empire waistline and short sleeves. The gowns were of velvet in autumn shades of red and green. Their headpieces were large roses of velvet, matching the gowns and were finished with short bouffant veils. They carried cascade bouquets of white carnations.

Nancy Wood was flower girl, in a floor length gown of velvet in apricot shade, with matching headpiece. She carried a basket of mixed flowers in bronze and white. Kenneth Fletcher, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer. The best man was James Fletcher, and ushers were John and Gordon MacDougall of Moncton, N. B.

Mrs. Sutherland chose for her daughter's wedding, a two piece dress of burgundy silk velvet, with a matching draped turban hat. Her corsage was of yellow roses. Mrs. Hicks, mother of the groom, wore a two piece dress of blue brocade satin, with matching picture hat and a corsage of white carnations. Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Confederation Centre for 115 guests. Reg MacNutt acted as master of ceremonies and proposed the toast to the bride. Mary Found was in charge of the guest book.

JAMES MCKENNA CECILIA ALLEN ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Devos, Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Cecilia Mary Allen, RN, to James Henry McKenna, son of Mr. James Henry McKenna and the late Mr. McKenna. The marriage is to take place on October 28th, 1966.

Speaking on "The Rights of Atheists," Dr. Davies said: "A theologian who is not intellectually an agnostic is a mirror of a fool. For what is theology? Theology is the attempt to give an orderly account of the unknown."

"The theologian, therefore, realizing that he knows nothing whatever of the subject matter that he is exploring, namely the nature and being of God, is bound to be an agnostic. He is, that is to say, if he is an honest man with an average grip on reality."

"This does not mean," Dr. Davies continues, "that nothing is known about religion, which is quite a different matter. A great deal is known, and quite genuinely known, but it belongs in the disciplines of ethics and psychology, history and cultural anthropology. Nor does it mean that there can be no belief or trust in God - or even that we can say nothing about what we think God is like."

"But this," he says, "is faith reaching out beyond the known to what it can seek where knowledge cannot guide it. It is perfectly competent, as I see it, for the theologian to report what has been thought and hoped and wished for in this most ultimate of quests. But he (the theologian) can not teach anything that has come to be known, in any ordinary meaning of the word 'known' as it applies to other disciplines. . . . Sincerely, C. P.

DEAR C. P.: In the introductory chapters of his latest book "God and the Human Mind" (Sheed and Ward, 1966), lay theologian Frank J. Sheed's remarks: "The divine mind is an ocean of infinite light. Only flashes and sparks of that light reach us, with darkness between. Infinite love has exploded into our universe: Theology is an effort to diagram the explosion. The diagram is indispensable, but it is not the reality and it must not obsess us. What matters is he love, and that cannot be diagrammed."

Elsewhere he notes: "It has been observed that the great proofs (offered) for the existence of God . . . seldom move an unbeliever to believe. . . . The reason is that (generally) the appeal is purely to reason. Will is sternly excluded, imagination and emotion are not even tempted to intervene."

"But intellect without will and the rest is thin; just as will and the rest without intellect are thick - thick-headed, so to speak it is in taking possession of truth by the whole man that the whole man lives." (Lives by faith, that is).

In a chapter titled "Coming to Know God" theologian Sheed suggests: "Where will, emotion imagination do not enter, but intellect goes it alone, what we have is not Theology, which is the most concrete way of uttering reality. What we have is Theometry, a kind of geometry of God, with God and man all formulated, labeled and indexed and even mystery only - items in the list, not the felt jariness wrapping everything. . . . Whether one construes Sheed's commentary as countering or amplifying Dr. Davies' conservative views concerning the validity of theology as a mirror of reality, at least there can be no doubt that these two proponents of truth, as they see it, are speaking their mind with "the glorious freedom" said, in Scriptures, to be characteristic of "the sons of God".

Mr. Sheed's book mentioned above is Vol. 1, just out, in a two-volume study of "God and the Human Condition." Vol. 2, now being edited, will treat of "God and the Human Race."

Abram's Village Altar Society Reports Heard

The monthly meeting of the Abram's Village Altar Society was held at the home of Mrs. Cyrus A. Gallant. 29 members attended. After opening prayers recited in unison the last meeting's minutes and financial report were read and adopted. The president gave reports concerning a supper held at the hall and a meeting which had been held the previous Sunday. A mass was offered for the sick of the parish. The visiting committee gave its report and a new one was named composed of Mrs. Alphonse Arseneault, Mrs. Herve Legere, Mrs. Tilmon Arseneault. Mrs. Cyrus Gallant spoke briefly about the organization of the supper at the Exhibition. This was followed by a report on the dental clinic and the swimming classes given by Mrs. Emmanuel Gallant.

A question box proved very interesting. Mrs. Cyrus Gallant and Mrs. Anthony Gallant will prepare questions for the next meeting, which will be held at the home of Mrs. Leo S. Arseneault. Mrs. Ida Gallant provided the reading and accepted the charge of reading again at the next meeting.

The recreation program will be prepared by Mrs. Andre Gallant and Mrs. Tilmon Arseneault. A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Cyrus Gallant for her hospitality. The meeting was adjourned and bingo was played, proceeds of which will go to the society.

SNAP THAT BABY BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) - Curiosity, expressiveness and co-operation are what makes babies ideal photographic subjects, a camera expert said in a speech here. Flashbulb light won't hurt a baby's eyes but the pictures will be better if the flashholder is covered by two thicknesses of white cloth to diffuse the light.
