

the two ports, which would increase greatly if the communication was certain and that more and more so, when the railroad shall have been finished between Pictou and Placentia. We fear it would be a long time before the commerce between Charlottetown and Tasmania would increase much more than it is at present. It is between the latter places and Truro. Mr. Mackenzie asks ten years' privilege, and by the 1st of July, 1856, the communication will be established in both places, Pictou and Tasmania, as well as Shediac, Richibucto and Miramichi.

We have also been informed, that an offer of a boring machine (complete), has been made to the proper quarter, for the price of £35 Halifax currency. We trust that this will be accepted. The sum is trifling compared with the advantages which may result from the use of it. So long as parties endeavoring have to find the instruments, so long will the price per fathom, or yard, or foot, appear excessive, but the machine once furnished, the first 100 or 200 feet will be comparatively easy and cheap, and after that, it will be a question, whether it will be worth while to go further. It is highly important to have at least the means of ascertaining, whether water is to be had by boring for it, because if so, this will be a material and important matter. We have large reservoirs, lakes or rivers, as in the neighboring countries, but we may have hidden resources in the bowels of the earth, that only require tapping to give abundant supplies.

John Murray, Taylor, an inhabitant of this place, left Charlottetown on Sunday last, on board the mail freighter, and is expected to arrive for Newfoundland. The vessel anchored for the night at the harbor's mouth, near the buoy when deceased went to bed. In the morning he was missing, at least some of the statements made by two men who landed at the blockhouse and desired the keeper's wife to make a report of the vessel's departure. The vessel was found by the Coroner's proceeding with the view, a severe contusion was discovered on the left side of the head. After a post mortem examination, Dr. Hogkirk gave it as his opinion to the Jury, that the wound was not likely by itself to have caused death, but that at the same time, he had no doubt that it had inflicted some contusion previous to death, and that the immediate cause of death was the state of mind induced by drowning. Under these circumstances, the Coroner very properly adjourned the inquest until the return of the vessel.
