IMAGINARY INTERVIEWS.

A Little Talk With a Rather Well Known South African.

"These are my jewels," said Cecil Rhodes as he pointed to three ash barrels and a piano box all labeled "Carats."

"And how do you propose to get them away?" inquired your correspondent of the great destiny shaper.

The diamond king carelessly picked up a handful of the larger stones and juggled with them playfully.

"Make a handsome tiara, wouldn't they?" he asked as he let a big sparkler slip through his fingers and slide down a rat hole.

"A regular tiara-boom-de-aye," I enthusiastically replied.

"Good!" he chuckled. "Here, catch this yellow sparkler, with my compliments. Isn't it caroty?" And he tossed me a diamond as big as a campaign button.

"It can't be beat, you know," I answered, with a smile. I wanted to humor his mood.

"Well," he chuckled, "I guess it's equal to quite a bunch of celery."

He pronounced "celery" as if it were "salary," and of course I laughed with great appreciation.

"Notice the rays of light," he added. "I expect a light raise myself," I remarked, "when I return to New York."

He laughed again.

"Here," he said; "that's worthy of something better than a mere ha-ha. I'll trade you a white stone for the yellow one."

I handed him the glittering gem; but, alas, he appeared to forget all about the transfer.

"And how did you say you propose to get your diamonds away?" I inquired in a gentle attempt to lead him back to the main question.

"Oh, yes, of course," he said, with a sly wink. "But I don't mind telling you. They go with me in the balloon. As ballast. See? Dazzling idea, isn't it? After dark, of course. If I need any light, I take the cover off an ash barrel. Simple, isn't it? Then I toss a double handful of these big pebbles in the air, and the Boers down below will think it's meteors. If I want to startle them still more, I'll take the bark off this uncut 20 carat fellow, hoist it to the balloon peak, and they'll all yell 'Comet.' Oh, your Uncle Cecil is cute!"

"And where do you propose to land?" The great financier's right eye almost closed. Then it slowly opened.

"I'll let you know next day," he politely replied.

This ended the interview, and it grieves me to add that he let me go without any further reference to the white stone he had so cheerfully promised me.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Only One More Month

Our celery will only hold out about one month. Some of the wise ones are ordering a quantity to be kept in reserve for them. We have held out to the best for the last (the famous English Red Celery.) In this respect we resemble children who keep the most dainty part of their lunch to the last and at the rate it is going the time will soon come when there will not even be a last. The moral to the above is quite plain; no need to read between the lines it is enjoy it while it lasts.

We also have Hubbard Squash, Cape Cod and Island Cranberries, Spanish & Canadian onions, Brussella sprouts, red & white cabbage, carrots, beets, parsnips, turnips, beans, peas, parsley, etc.

Outward Signs.
"They call me a grass widow, I suppose," said the still young and handsome woman bitterly, "because I don't wear weeds!"

"No," replied the envious neighbor, looking around the cheerful apartment, "it's because you seem to be in clover."
—Chicago Tribune.

Deceitful Woman.
"Women is deceivin'," said the man. "What's the matter with you?" asked the friend.

"I was thinkin' of the number of times my wife has told me she never would speak to me again."
—Indianapolis Journal.

A Tame Lover.
"She refused me point blank."
"Did she give any reason?"
"Yes; she said I didn't look half as eager and interesting when I proposed as I did when making a rush at football."
—Detroit Free Press.

The Very Thing.

She—I want a necktie. It's a present—or (blushes)—for a young man.

He—Quite so. Might I suggest the shape I have on at present? Specially applicable. You see, each one has to be slipped through a ring.

She (eagerly)—Give me half a dozen.
