Modern Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

When one who is a house guest finds it necessary to make a long-distance telephone call, who should pay the charges?

A. The guest should immediately call the operator upon completion of the call and ask for the charges. This amount should then be given to the hostess.

Q. When, for any reason, the hostess of a dance cannot or does not dance, should the male guests ask her to dance anyway? A. It isn't necessary to ask her to dance, but each man should "sit out" at least one dance with her. Q. Is it proper for the train bearers in a wedding to carry flowers? A. This would be practically impossible, because it is their duty to hold up the trailing edge of the bride's train.

Islanders Exchange Vows In Toronto

Mr. and Mrs. John Burke with their attendants

On Saturday, September 5, at 9 a.m. St. Helen's Church, Toronto, Ont., was a picturesque setting for the marriage of Kaye Mary, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Collins, Newtown Cross, P. E. I., to John D. Burke, son of Mrs. Burke and the late Henry Burke, Mount Stewart, P. E. I. Rev. Gerard Brennan performed the ceremony and celebrated the Nuptial Mass. Traditional wedding music was rendered by Miss M. Rezza and Miss A. Brown was soloist. Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Arthur, the bride wore a floor-length gown of Spanish lace, styled with a fitted bodice and long pointed sleeves and a bouffant tiered nylon net skirt over satin and crinoline. A crown trimmed with seed pearls held her tulle illusion veil. She carried a bouquet of red and white roses.

Miss Alivena Burke, sister of the groom, was the bride's only attendant. She wore a floor-length gown of nylon net over coral taffeta with matching headress and carried a bouquet of white carnations. Mr. Frank McDonnell was best man. Ushers were Messrs. Antonia Gignac and Frank Grubb. The reception was held at the home of Mrs. Irene Emery, 365 St. Clarens Ave., Toronto. Receiving nearly 60 guests, the bride's mother chose a blue crepe and lace dress with red accessories and a corsage of blue carnations. The bride's table was centered with a tiered wedding cake, topped with a bride and groom ornament. Mr. Grubb proposed a toast to the bride and Mrs. Gignac proposed a toast to the groom. The groom responded appropriately to both. For a wedding trip to P. E. I., land, the bride chose a powder blue suit with navy accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. The couple will take up residence at 365 St. Clarens Ave., Toronto where the groom is employed by C. A. Fraser Limited. The bride is an employee of the Dominion Bank. Previous to her wedding the bride was tendered a surprise shower by her girl-friends of the Bank at the home of Miss Dorothy Crosby where she received many lovely gifts. A reception was also held at the home of the bride's parents on P. E. I. where many gifts were received. Out-of-town guests attending the wedding were the bride's mother, Mrs. Ralph Collins, Newtown Cross, P. E. I.; Mr. Weldon Dignan, Charlottetown, P. E. I.; Mrs. Laura McRae and son Bill, Hamilton, Ont.

Canadian Consumer News

Well our National President has come and gone! Mrs Vautelet of Montreal surely made Monday, Nov. 16, a day to be remembered by the consumers, men and women in our Province. What an uplift she gave the members of C. A. C. and all the people who heard her inspiring and startling address!

I use the word startling because she did startle us out of our smug complacency when she told us among other things that it is taking one acre of our forest to print the Saturday edition of the New York Times and two acres to print the comics. It is an alarming statement and one that should make us stop and think twice before we satisfy the whims of a nagging child by giving him a nickel to go and buy the funnies.

As she explained what our unnecessary buying was doing to the economy of our country, making it clear that we are forcing prices up against ourselves, we could not but realize how important it is that we women, who do 90% of the nation's buying, should learn to do a more intelligent job of it. Mrs. Vautelet as I found her, in the 12 hours I tried to keep up with her, is a veritable human dynamo of energy, brains and enthusiasm and although not in good health, is giving her best to the Canadian Association of Consumers.

It certainly speaks well for C. A. C. that women of the calibre of Mrs. Walton of Toronto, the former president, and Mrs. Vautelet who was elected at the annual meeting in September, believe so heartily in the importance of arousing the women to play their part, that they are willing and eager to work so hard to get the best view of the association across to the housewives and at the same time act as a liaison channel between the Government, trade and industry on behalf of the consumer.

It's a big job they've taken on at the National level and it is up to us at the local and provincial levels to support them and in helping them, help ourselves.

ELLEN'S DIARY By An Island Farmer's Wife

Now the full tide of another week ebbs with certainly far beyond our ken. Back it goes out the great waters withdraw to meet the dim sky-line. What a miscellany it takes with it all the too few of our recent days and also the unsightly bits and pieces of our living: the mean thought, the murmuring and complaints, all of this unlovely burden. Away these are borne on the receding waves of the week to some point we do not know. However, gone they are, now irrevocably beyond any recall.

What pleasant days were ours! Fall ones, it is true, of sober colorings—pearl-gray of the mists on the hill, silver of rain-shafts, sombre shades of dark clouds. But against these, November sun filling gently this valley, brightening the stubble, touching with fresh green a haystack, a pasture jewelling the millstream, pointing the Island red of our furrows. Because now, with the winter threatening on occasion its close in an edged wind, in ice morning—puddles, our farmers their harvestings completed, give attention to the plowing. It is being hurried. Lampit! breakfasts speed them to it and now in the moonlight furrows are being turned. The regular beat of the tractor reaches us here and James moments ago caught the lights from the plowing in an old field at Alderlea. Will these husband-men in their zeal, we wonder, encroach on the young hours of their bath? And if they do, would the Lord still provide? It is a question we sometimes hear discussed. However in good time the two will, we know, house their "horses" and thus bring an end to their week.

We remember now that this week occasioned bereavement in more than one home in the district about. For those who mourn the passing of loved ones thoughts will linger on these new graves, in

Queen Frederika Wears Simple Ensembles In U. S.

(Montreal Star) The young and delightful Queen of Greece, petite and pretty like the one worn by Queen Elizabeth when she visited Canada last year, pale pink in a coat framed with nutria, and are all complete ensembles. Every dress has either a matching coat or brief little bolero jacket and the Queen, who doesn't like too narrow a skirt, at first claimed she didn't want her skirts shortened. However, after one week in Paris Queen Frederika decided that shorter skirts looked right and proper so all skirts were shortened one and a half inches.

King Paul has been tremendously interested in all her clothes and attended the fittings whenever he had time. They have been married fifteen years and have a very casual and democratic family life in Greece and this is one of the few occasions when young curly-headed Queen Frederika has really had a royal wardrobe. "My husband Paul" is the beginning of the Queen's utterance as she has great affection and love and pride in everything the King does. One of the thrilling moments for the young midwives who sewed on the royal wardrobe at King Paul requested them to be introduced and have their pictures taken with the royal pair.

Cook cheese at a low temperature. High temperature toughens proteins and therefore makes cheese less easily digested. When making cheese sauce, add cheese at the last and cook only until melted. Any uncooked mixture of cheese, eggs and milk to be cooked in the oven, should be oven-poached, that is, placed in a pan of hot water, in a moderate oven. Scalloped or other cheese dishes should be baked for only sufficient time to thoroughly heat the mixture.

DOROTHY DIX'S COLUMN

Her Singular Objection

Husband's Lone Saturday Nights In Restaurant Worry Wife

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband is a fine, industrious man. He has a day job and also works at night. He never fusses about anything, is devoted to his children, helps around the house and gives me everything he can. We've been married 16 years. He's a very quiet man. Well, here's the problem. On Saturday night, instead of coming directly home from work, he stays out three or four hours. He says there's no other woman. Friends have seen him in a neighborhood restaurant just sitting and drinking coffee. I'm so lonely I can't stand it; we never go out together and I worry so much over this Saturday night affair. W. M.

MODEL HUSBAND

ANSWER: You have a paragon of a husband, lady, and just don't realize it. His only fault is a need for occasional solitude, which you begrudge him. A man who holds two jobs, helps around the house and manages to keep a good disposition with it all surely is entitled to a few hours a week for himself. He couldn't spend the time more harmlessly. Of course, it would be more companionable if he asked you to join him during these hours. But there are folks who absolutely need a little meditating time now and then. Are you, perchance, the talkative type who must keep conversation going constantly? If you are, and your man is by nature quiet, your difficulty might be solved if you let him enjoy his seclusion at home. Don't nag him over his small defection; try to learn tactfully why he wants to be alone. Then, if possible, remedy the situation so that it will include you.

ANSWER: Males, like females, are unpredictable creatures on the whole. Some boys might find it amusing to make a conquest of a disinterested girl, but most young men prefer a bit of encouragement. Pretending one thing while you feel another is a form of deceit which is better avoided.
