

OCTOBER 20, 1880.

SCHOOLS OF COOKING are quite popular among the young ladies of England; and we learn that one of them is soon to be established in Montreal. An institution of the kind is said to be wanted in Charlottetown. Certainly knowledge of cooking is a necessary part of an accomplished young lady's education.

WE are becoming civilized. At the educational meeting, a few evenings ago, ladies were obliged to stand, while young gentlemen composedly sat; and during the marriage service at St. Paul's last evening, the young ladies kept up such a hum of conversation that it was quite impossible to hear the words of the officiating minister.

ARCHIBALD FORBES will lecture in Charlottetown on the evenings of Monday and Tuesday next. He has been in St. John; and the Sun of that city gives the following pen-and-ink sketch of the great war correspondent:

"Above rather than below the medium height, he has the compact, well-knit figure of a strong, well-preserved man, whose muscles and frame have been developed by active campaigning. His head is strongly placed on neck and shoulders, his hair close cropped. His forehead is broad, not high. He has a fine, frank, resolute face. There are strength and determination in every feature. His eye is sharp and critical—the eye of one not easily humbugged, and who takes the measure of his man at a glance. His manner is modest, yet withal the observer receives the impression of reserved power. Indeed, Mr. Forbes' appearance quite comes up to the ideal of the tireless, resolute, energetic war correspondent, who 'meant to see what is going on'—to whom millions of newspaper readers are indebted from time to time for those graphic pictures of battle scenes and that mastery of details of war movements which a Russell and a Forbes have risked their lives to lay prominently before the world."

A Warning to English Landlords.

PROFESSOR SHELDON, has been writing down his impressions of Manitoba; and, in conclusion, he says:

"I may venture to warn English farmers that transatlantic competition in wheat, as in beef and mutton, has at present advanced but little beyond the state of childhood. If English landlords will retain their tenantry, it will be expedient not only to give them greater liberty in cropping, but a reduction in rents. Already the eye of thousands are turned toward the West, and the reports of the farmers' delegates who have visited the Dominion will give the information which is only a prelude to emigration.

The Czar's Marriage.

THE St. Petersburg correspondent of the New York Herald, under date of October 14, writes:

"On the nineteenth (old style) the marriage with the Princess Dolgorouki was solemnized in the chapel of the Imperial Palace. The Czar's family disapproving, the Czar's wife went to Haasal, on the Esthonian coast. The Grand Dukes Constantine and Wladimir went abroad in order that they might not witness the ceremony. The marriage was very private. The Grand Duke Nicholas and the Minister of War were, however, present. The newly married pair are with the bride's family in Livadia. The Czar has purchased for his consort the palace of the Grand Duchess Catharina, paying two million roubles as the price of it."

Wheat in Canada.

REFERRING to Manitoba, Professor Sheldon says:

"There can be no doubt that this is one of the finest wheat-growing districts on the American continent, and consequently in the world. There is land in the vicinity of the city which has grown wheat in unbroken succession for over twenty years without any manure, the present crop being as good as could be wished—probably forty bushels an acre. With a vegetable loam of many feet in depth, so that fresh soil can be brought up by deeper ploughing as soon as the surface soil shows signs of diminished vigor, it is not possible to carry the exhausting process so far as to produce sterility; and in addition to a soil of surpassing richness, there is a climate which restores fertility to the earth in a manner to which we in England are strangers. Not English wheat growing farmers only, but also those of the Lower Provinces of Canada, will severely feel the growing competition of the new North-West; and when the Hudson's Bay route to Europe is opened up, wheat will be freighted to the Old Country at about half its present rate. By the present route the cost of carrying wheat from Manitoba to England is about 14s. a quarter, and it is bought here at 24s.; landing it at Liverpool at 38s. The crop of wheat is abundant throughout the States and Canada, a larger surplus than ever before being available for exportation, so that with an increased crop and a better harvest in England, we may reckon on bread being very cheap through the coming winter."

In spite of the great increase in the volume of business throughout the country the aggregate of business failures has been considerably less in the last three months than that of the corresponding quarter of last year. Volume of business is not always a true sign of prosperity, but safe business is.—New York Herald.

The past year has been a prosperous one for the Toronto & Nipissing Railway, the gross receipts being $17,000 in excess of the year previous. The total receipts were $192,307.16 and the expenditure $125,338.56.

Hymenial.

ONE of the greatest social events of the season was the marriage of Mr. H. James Palmer, Attorney-at-Law, son of Chief Justice Palmer, to Miss Ada M., second daughter of Charles Palmer, Esq., which took place in St. Paul's Church at 8 o'clock yesterday evening. The church, for an hour before the ceremony began, was crowded to excess by a congregation which included the elite of the city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. FitzGerald Rector assisted by Rev. A. Osborne. The bridesmaids were Misses Louisa and Mary Palmer, sisters of the bride, Miss Marguerite Palmer, sister of the groom, Misses Carey, Isabel Longworth, and Katie Dunn. The Groomsmen were Messrs. R. F. Quirk, A. B. Warburton, Edward Palmer, jr., Arthur Peters, William Lochhead, and William Palmer. The bride was given away by her father, Charles Palmer, Esq. At the conclusion of the ceremony, a host of friends extended their hearty congratulations to the young couple; and we now join in wishing them every success and happiness. The dresses worn by the bride, bridesmaid and those who assisted, were rich and beautiful.

The bride wore ivory cross-grain silk, richly trimmed with cream-colored brocade and wreaths of orange blossoms and jessamine, laid on foulleins of languedoe lace; Tulle veil, over wreath of orange blossoms and jessamine—ornaments, plain gold.

The bridesmaids wore pale pink Indian muslin dresses, Casquin bodices of ruby velvet, with cascades of coffee lace, Tam O'Shanter hats of ruby velvet, and carried each a basket of flowers—ornaments, gold.

Mrs. Charles Palmer, mother of the bride, wore heliotrope silk and brocade brooch lace cape and heliotrope bonnet with crimson flowers—ornaments, ruby.

Mrs. Edward Palmer, mother of the groom, purple silk, richly trimmed with velvet Brussels lace fichu, caught up with sprays of heliotrope; bonnet of heliotrope feathers and satin—ornaments, cameo.

Mrs. Pope, rich black silk, white lace fichu, bonnet of lavender feathers and white lace—ornaments, diamond and jet.

Mrs. Maxwell pale blue silk, trimmed with garnet velvet, bonnet en suite—ornaments—ruby.

Mrs. Malcolm McLeod, old gold satin, and brocade of old gold and brown, richly embroidered with steel beads; bonnet of white lace with shaded flame colored feathers—ornaments, diamond.

Mrs. Palmer, plum-colored satin and velvet elaborately trimmed with old point lace; bonnet, velvet and old gold satin—ornaments, amethyst.

Mrs. F. Brecken, black velvet princess dress, white satin tablier and cascades of lace; bonnet to match, with crimson roses—ornaments, gold.

Miss Hazard, saug de boeuf silk, trimmed with cream cashmere, exquisitely embroidered, with wreaths of wild roses; bonnet of saug de boeuf velvet and cream feathers.

The wedding presents were numerous and costly, and fitly illustrated the esteem in which the happy couple were held by their many friends. Mr. and Mrs. Palmer, left this morning en route for New York, on their bridal tour, we wish them bon voyage.
