

Art in Danbury.

Art promises to make an important advance. A Danbury lady who dabbles somewhat in sculpture, was preparing plaster for a cast the other evening when she was called away.

For Whoever it Fits.

There are as nearly as many bad wives as bad husbands. Many men who work hard and try to do well in life are neglected and abused by improvident women.

They are condemned to eat the poorest dinners, when they provide the best the market affords.

On heavy bread, soggy vegetables, muddy coffee and tough pie crust, how can a woman expect her husband to be pleasant and loving?

Such men often drink whiskey because their food distresses them—as it would annoy a man who had not a cast-iron stomach—and the habits of intemperance are sometimes in this way begun, through the fault of a wife.

It costs more to cook poorly than to make food good and palatable.

If a woman runs home from a neighbor's just in time to throw a pie together, bake it and bring it to the dinner table hot, she commits a great offence against the health of her family.

If a man has only an hour to go home, get his dinner and return to his business, it should be ready for him promptly on time or he will eat very hot food in the greatest haste, and start off for a rapid walk, all of which is very bad, and will show its effects upon the strongest man.

"Goods at half price," said the sign. "How much is that teapot?" asked the old lady who had been attracted by the announcement. "Fifty cents, mum." "I guess I'll take it then," she said, throwing down a quarter. The dealer let her have the teapot, but took in his sign before other customers could come in.

Yesterday, says the Galveston News, Colonel Gilhooly, accompanied by Major Spilkins, happened to be walking down Galveston avenue, when Gilhooly remembered that a few days previous he had left his walking stick at the shop of a Chinaman close by to be repaired, so they dropped into the establishment to get it.

The Chinaman was not present, so they had to wait a few minutes until he came in.

Says Gilhooly: "I can't understand why so many people have an unfounded prejudice against Chinamen. They attend closely to their own business. I don't see that anybody is ruined by cheap Chinese labor, and they have their rights under the law."

"—a Chinaman, anyhow!" said Spilkins. Gilhooly retorted, "You are prejudiced, Spilkins."

Just then Johnny Chinaman entered, all smiles. Gilhooly shook hands most cordially with the despised Mongolian and asked if his cane was ready.

"Half-dollor firstlee," said Johnny, holding out his itching palm. Gilhooly got red behind the ears, and said:—"You sallow-complected baboon, gimme that cane or I'll wear it out on your hide!"

"I can't understand why so many people have such an unfounded prejudice against Chinamen," observed Spilkins, gravely looking up at the ceiling; "you are certainly prejudiced, Gilhooly."

"—Chinamet, anyhow," remarked Gilhooly, glaring like a tiger at the Mongolian, who merely remarked:

"No half-dollor, no walky cane." "They attend closely to their own business, particularly in Galveston," observed Spilkins, rubbing the end of his chin and smiling faintly.

"Look here, John, I'll bring you in the half-dollar to-morrow morning when I am passing. Come, now, that's a good Mongolian," said Gilhooly, persuasively.

"Half-dollor firstlee," said the Chinaman. "I don't see that anybody is ruined by cheap Chinese labor," remarked Spilkins, turning his face on one side and smiling perceptibly.

Gilhooly was irritated at Spilkins for his unfeeling conduct, but had to apply to him for the temporary loan of half a dollar.

Remedy for Hard Times.

Stop spending so much on fine clothes, rich food and style. Buy good, healthy food, cheaper and better clothing; get more real and substantial things of life every way, and especially stop the foolish habit of running after expensive and quack doctors or using so much of the vile humbug medicine that does you only harm, and makes the proprietors rich, but put your trust in the greatest of all simple pure remedies, Hop Bitters that cures always at a trifling cost, and you will see better times and good health. Try it once. Read of it in another column.

LORNE HIGHLAND WHISKY.

ANALYTICAL SANITARY INSTITUTION, 54, Holborn-viaduct, E.C., London, Aug. 18, 1879. REPORT on the LORNE HIGHLAND WHISKY: "We have visited the bottling stores of Greenlees Brothers, and have selected from the vats, samples of their Lorne Highland Whisky, and have subjected them to careful examination and analysis. The samples were very fragrant, mellow, and of pleasant flavor, and possessed all the characteristics of pure and well-matured Scotch Whisky of the first quality."
