VERNON RIVER, Sept. 4, 1880.
To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR.—I would wish to call the attention of the Inspector of Fisheries to the fact that mill seeds, saw dust, &c., are every day floating down our mill streams, and were it not for this, we would be able to catch trout fully as large as that which Mr. L. C. Hayde caught on the 1st inst. I am sorry to say that this business has been carried on for quite a long time.

Hoping that there will be something done to remedy this evil, and thanking you for your valuable space.

I remain,
Yours respectfully,

POLITICAL NOTES.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 30, '80.

The latest full convert to Democracy, as shown in Saturday night's despatches, is General Benjamin F. Butler. The General is a man of great ability, of vast information, of a certain sort of popularity among the people, and with a record that don't suit any party. There are many Democrats who will rejoice at, and many who will regret, his return to the party he left twenty years ago, and in the like way Republicans will be divided in feeling as to his loss. I mention the case principally because the Governor is better known here than elsewhere,—better, perhaps, than in Massachusetts. He has a magnificent residence here, built of granite from his Eastern quarries. A good story is told of the manner in which this stone was brought here. A United States vessel had been ordered here from a part within easy reach of the quarries owned by the General. He kindly offered to furnish ballast, and did furnish it in the shape of the material of which his palace here is built. This palace is really three houses in a row, one of which Senator Jones has long occupied, one of which the Government rents—perhaps because of the friendly act of the General in supplying the ballast—and the other is the General's residence, when here. It is said that the two rented houses bring in enough every three years to pay for the whole structure.

It seems that Senator Conkling has authorized a member of the National Republican Committee to state that he will make four speeches in Indiana, and three in Ohio. General Grant, it is said, will preside at the first meetings in the West at which Senator Conkling speaks. It is now given out authoritatively that the National committee will send no money to the South, and that no republican speakers will go there under their auspices. This last is doubted by many, as it will be remembered, that at the recent Republican conference in New York a contrary decision was announced. Mr. Blaine after the election in Maine will stump the West, going as far as California. General Garfield has informed the National Committee that he considers it vitally important to carry Indiana in October, and beginning in a few days, the Committee will pour all their available cash into that State, and flood it from end to end with their best speakers.

At the headquarters of the two political committees here—the Congressional Committee—there is now more activity than before. Senator Wallace has arrived seeming to appreciate the propriety of actual work, and Secretary Walker is here also, this being their first meeting officially since the beginning of the campaign.

Mr. McPherson, who is Secretary of the Republican Committee, and has real control of it, is excellently qualified for the place, and is doing good work.

A Bombay despatch, under date of Aug. 27th, says: At a meeting under the presidency of Sir James Ferguson, Governor of Bombay, a subscription was opened for the relief of families who have fallen in the Afghan war, and 54,000 roubles collected. The meeting for the establishment of a military relief fund for the widows and children of European and native soldiers who have fallen in the Afghan war has been an immense success. The Governor was in the chair, and was supported by all the leading men of all religious nationalities. The Anglican and Roman Catholic bishops were on the platform, as well as leading Brahmins, Mussulmans and Parsees. Great enthusiasm was manifested, and fifty-four thousand rupees were subscribed on the spot. Of these the Governor contributed two thousand rupees, and the Rajahs of the Napore and Bownghur ten thousand each. This was a good beginning, and the list is likely to be largely increased.

Guy's, the greatest hospital in London, has of late been in the hubbub of a fierce contest between the nursing and medical authorities. Public opinion is largely on the side of the latter. The treasurer has been publicly hissed by the students in a body. Guy's was endowed, with property now worth $200,000 a year, by a bookseller who had speculated in South Sea stock. He was on the eve of matrimony with his servant girl, but the marriage is said to have been frustrated by the exhibition of a tendency on her part to "wear the breeches," by giving an order to a workman.

The Rising Star Restaurant.

We desire, in a very cordial and earnest manner, to call attention to this new establishment, which has just been opened in our city. Nothing of a material character was so urgently called for, nothing more suited to our wants; and the parties who have shouldered the responsibilities and anxieties involved in making it a success, have our hearty thanks, and we are sure of every well wisher of our community, also. A place of refreshment where a person can obtain a good cup of tea or coffee, etc., or a well prepared meal, in airy, neat and tidy rooms, at low rates, and at any time of the day, is in itself a great boon. But when all this can be obtained free from inducements to drink, to play cards and billiards, and safe from the temptations of other amusements and practices calculated to lead from the paths of good order to abandonment, from virtue to vice, we think we have gained a good long step in the right direction. Such an establishment as this should be hailed by all well wishers of society, and especially of the young of this city, as well as of the country, as a great boon. How many young men have acquired the habit of drinking just because they were compelled to do business in houses where liquor has been sold? They were too manly in their estimation not to pay for their use or temporary occupancy of the room, and to remunerate their host called for liquor—the first, and it may be, in many a case, the fatal glass! There, too, is constant exposure to come in contact with the habitual thirsty man, waiting an opportunity to give or get his glass; in a word, exposure to temptation in a thousand ways, all of which have been means of ruin to some. In the Rising Star Restaurant we have a retreat from all such danger; and men, young and old, from city or country, are not wise if they do not patronise it. We can assure the public of the Christian character of the parties who have this Restaurant in charge, of their knowledge of the wants of persons from the country, and their ability to meet their wants. All that is required is patronage to render the undertaking a success, and fathers and mothers in the country are not friends to their children if they do not encourage them to resort to this establishment for refreshment, whenever they visit the city. Coffee houses elsewhere have done immense benefit by arresting the tide of drunkenness and immorality, necessarily flowing therefrom. This Restaurant, now established on the strictest temperance principles, and opened to accommodate the public, may do much for us also. Surely the Young Men's Christian Association will help, and the various Temperance organizations will be drawn to it, and give it their patronage and blessing. If they do not do so, we must say that they are not true friends of Temperance or of the rising generation. —Com. by a Presbyterian Clergyman.

The Ottawa Citizen and other Exchanges publish the following London cable despatch:

"Another meeting of capitalists has taken place, a lengthy discussion of the proposed Pacific Railway enterprise ensuing. Two syndicates are offering for the entire road, the Government to complete that now under contract, the new company to construct about 2,000 miles, including 645 miles from Lake Nipissing to Thunder Bay, the company to work and maintain the entire road upon completion. It is stated that one offer is for $10,000 bonus per mile, and 50,000,000 acres of land. Competition arising has been the cause of delay. It is more than probable that the Ministers may succeed in securing certain provisos as to the upset price of land to settlers during a certain term of years whilst such lands are under control of a company. It is understood that several Canadian and American capitalists have signified a desire to become members of the syndicate; their agents are now here. It is understood that the boundary question has been submitted to the Imperial Privy Council for adjudication. Several gentlemen in high positions are about to visit Canada, while others will be represented by agents, for the purpose of visiting the Northwest, where they propose purchasing large estates. Much interest is manifested in Manitoba and the Northwest as a country for settlement, both as regards agriculture and stock raising."

A Niagara Falls hackman bargained with two young men to take them "all around" for a dollar, but at the end of the trip insisted upon having eight dollars, which was paid under protest. The young men, who were lawyers, instead of leaving town as they had intended, stopped over, had the fellow arrested, secured a trial after one day's delay, and obtained a verdict, not only for the eight dollars, but for their board bill, lost time and costs, amounting altogether to between $40 and 50. It was a good lesson for the Niagara sharks.

News comes from India that the famous car of Juggernaut was not as usual dragged the streets of Puri on the 7th of July, and it seems that by religious custom or law, if it be not drawn on the ninth day of the car festival, twelve years must elapse before it is drawn again. The fact of the car not being brought out this time is attributed by a correspondent to what he calls "an act of unpardonable negligence on the part of meddling Government officials," and that is all he has to say about it.

The German Government is making arrangements for buying up all the private railroads in the Empire.
