IN MEMORIAM

BENJAMIN C. SMITH
The community of North Win-sloe lost one of its oldest and most respected citizens on April 17, in the passing of Benjamin C. Smith, after a illness of several months.
The late Mr. Smith was born in North Winsloe 89 years ago, the son of the late Charles and Elizabeth (Mund) Smith. With the exception of a few years in Harrington, P. E. I., he lived continuously in North Winsloe.
Mr. Smith was well known. His cheerful and pleasing disposition caused him to be highly esteemed by all who knew him. In his home he was a devoted husband and father, in his community, a dependable neighbor, a supporter of every worthwhile project and a friend to young and old. He will be greatly missed by all and particularly by his immediate family who will "keep his memory green." He is survived by his widow, formerly Henrietta Ford of North Milton; two sons, Charles of North Milton; Albert of North Winsloe and one daughter, Ida died in infancy.
The largely attended funeral was held at MacLean's Funeral Home on April 19. The service was conducted by the Rev. A. E. Piercy of St. John's Anglican Church, Milton, assisted by Mr. Heber Hardy of the Winsloe Pastorate Church. The hymns sung were,
"The Lord's My Shepherd", "Jesus Keep Me Near The Cross" and "Abide With Me".
He was laid to rest in the Church of England Cemetery in Milton.
Fall bearers were Messrs. Bert Yonker, Oliver Nunn, Reagh
Ford, Charles Phillips, William Neill and Leith Carter.

Strange But True

By F. H. MacArthur

They say the garden of the gulf is unique. Certainly there is a special charm about the Million Acre Farm which singles it out from all other islands. This is not alone due to its dark red soil or crescent shape, nor to the fresh gulf breezes, pure and health-giving.

I think its charm lies in its quiet delicious languor, that seems to permeate all things, animate and inanimate alike. Under the clear blue sky of summer one can drink in the fragrant breath of the gulf stream, the wayside blossoms, and the dew-kissed meadows that run right down to the sea and dream of "casita in Spain." It is a place only to be reached by a steep voyage or by plane. Two ferries pass between it and the mainland. And never is the traveller out of sight of land unless visibility is poor.
It is difficult to believe that the voyage will be ended so quickly, and that less than an hour will pass by air before Mingoo can be reached. The approach by air is only some 25 minutes from Moncton, N.B. and gives the traveller the most picturesque view of the lively island discovered on that glorious June day, 420 years ago.
The island as seen from the air resembles on a major scale a beautiful garden, showing all those marvelous tints of green, peculiar to the land. Below the Northumberland Strait looks like a narrow ribbon in a nest of hair.

If you choose to wander about the old capital you will see all about the evidence of past glory and a life and activity which has grown up in recent years. In the old provincial building you may see the room and sit in the very seats where the Fathers of Confederation sat to discuss the union of Canada.

Summerside is rich in old associations and filled with places of interest. When illuminated by the great lamp of night the town and harbor are most beautiful. And into this harbor flows the famous Dunk River noted for its fine fish and the many celebrities who catch them year after year.

The docks around this western town are a paradise for kiddies.
Here they dig in the sand, fish from the wharf and bathe in water to their heart's content.
Every pleasant day finds the old wharf alive with them, and all sorts of fishing tackle, from a pin and a string to a strong drop line and sinker, are in constant use.

There are many other places in Canada's smallest province of interest to the traveller seeking historical data. Brudenell, the place where the MacLarens and the Gordons settled when they arrived from Scotland; Scotch-Fort, with its ancient French burying ground which has given rise to more than one hair-raising ghost story; Belfast, settled by Lord Selkirk boasts one of the most beautifully tended cemeteries in the province, and is rich in fact and tradition; the Ann of Green Gables country and so on—all of which must be visited to be properly appreciated. For the island is a place that grows upon one as it is more completely seen and understood. The tourist with only a day devoted to sightseeing, may find the island quaint and somewhat commonplace.

But the vacationist who has time to study the place more completely and to drink in its pastoral beauty never leaves its shores with a sense of disappointment. And he has a feeling in his breast that the parting is not forever. The crescentshaped island may sink from view
