

Planets in November.

Saturn is evening star and though a lesser light than the glowing Jupiter, surpasses him in interest during the month. He has passed his opposition or nearest point to the earth, but is still travelling toward his perihelion or nearest point to the sun, which he will not reach till 1884. Therefore he will appear brighter than he did this year at the next opposition of 1881, and still brighter at each succeeding one till 1884, when we will be a hundred million miles nearer the sun than at his most distant point, and put on his most glorious phase. The rings will continue to open until 1885, when they reach their widest extent, and the planet will also reach the point of greatest northern declination within the same period. The years 1881-1885 are the golden season for astronomers of the present to make a special study of Saturn.

Neptune is evening star after the 4th, when he is in opposition. Though too distant to be seen with the naked eye, he is in excellent position for telescopic observation, showing a decided disk, and a coloring of blushing white. He also is travelling towards perihelion, which he reaches in 1884.

Mercury is the evening star till the 23rd, when he is in inferior conjunction with the sun and passing to his western side joins the morning stars. His movements during the early part of the month demand special attention. He reaches his eastern elongation or most distant point from the sun on the 4th, and is more favorably situated for being seen as evening star than he will be for the rest of the year. The best time to look for him is on the evening of the 4th, soon after sunset.

Jupiter is evening star, and though shining with royal grace as he mounts gradually to the zenith, presents no new phase nor perceptible diminution. The great spot still lights his disk with its ruddy hue, and though he has passed perihelion, believers in the agency of the planets in producing solar commotion will see evidence of a recreating pull in the battalions of snowflakes that in mid-winter overwhelmed the West and blockaded the trains with snowdrifts ten feet high; in the terrific sea that raged on the western lakes; in the unreasonable severity of Canadian snowstorms; in the shocks of earthquake on the Spanish peninsula; and in the frightful warfare of the elements in Buenos Ayres that caused the death of more than a million of cattle in mid-September. Jupiter is more than an hour above the horizon at sunset, and sets shortly after 4 o'clock in the morning, at the end of the month about 2.

Venus is evening star and will be charming to behold in the southwest throughout November. Venus and Jupiter are so situated in regard to each other that they form the most attractive feature of the sky in the early evening.

Mars is morning star, but there is little to commend to notice during the month, as he rises and sets nearly at the same time with the sun. He rises now a little before half-past six, preceding the sun only a few minutes; at the close of the month about a quarter after six, almost an hour before the sun.

Uranus is a morning star and is coming toward us, but is still too far away to be of any account among planetary notabilities. He rises now about 2 o'clock; at the end of the month about midnight.

Thus it will be seen that the November nights will be full of interesting planetary incidents. The evening of the 4th will be specially noteworthy. A fascinating picture will be painted on the early evening sky. The two days old crescent moon, the radiant Venus and swift, footed Mercury may be all seen if the clouds do not conceal the celestial canvas. At the same time Mercury reaches his most distant point from the sun, and Neptune reaches his opposition when he is most favorably situated for telescopic observation. Jupiter and Venus will be delightful to watch, as one advances and the other recedes over the celestial road. The clear and crisp November nights are inspiring to stargazers, for besides the aspect of the planetary brotherhood, so personal in interest to the dwellers on this little planet, the sky as alive with clustering constellations, including some of the most radiant stars that twinkle in the northern concave.

A Fact Worth Knowing.

Are you suffering with Consumption, Coughs, Severe Colds settled on the Breast, Pneumonia, or any disease of the Throat and Lungs? If so, go to your Druggist and get a bottle of Boschee's German Syrup. This medicine has lately been introduced from Germany, and is selling on its own merits. The people are going wild over its success, and Druggists all over our country are writing us of its wonderful cures among their customers. 2,400,000 samples have been given away free charge. If you wish to try its superior virtue get a Sample Bottle for 10 cents. Large size bottle 75 cents. Three doses will relieve any case. Try it.

Remedy for Hard Times.

Stop spending so much on fine clothes, rich food and style. Buy good, healthy food, cheaper and better clothing; get more real and substantial things of life every way, and especially stop the foolish habit of running after expensive and quack doctors or using so much of the vile humbug medicine that does you only harm, and makes the proprietors rich, but put your trust in the greatest of all simple pure remedies, Hop Bitters that cures always at a trifling cost, and you will see better times and good health. Try it once. Read of it in another column.

A Good Account.

"To sum it up, six long years of bed-ridden sickness and suffering, costing $200 per year, total $1,200—all which was stopped by three bottles of Hop Bitters taken by my wife, who has done her own household work for a year since, without the loss of a day, and I want everybody to know it for their benefit."

DENTAL.

I TAKE this method of informing the public that I have decided to leave Charlottetown, and give up my practice. DR. GEO. HYDE, of Truro, N. S., a graduate of the first Dental College of the United States (at Philadelphia), will be my successor. I cheerfully recommend him to my patrons. He has had many years experience. I have carefully examined his work, and believe him to be one of the very best Dentists in Canada.

C. L. STRICKLAND.

Ch'town, Oct. 12, '80—pat ar ncr ne pres 2w

Referring to the above, I beg to notify the patrons of Dr. Strickland, and the general public, that I have taken the office recently occupied by him (Dr. Strickland) opposite the Roman Catholic Cathedral, Great George Street, where I may be consulted during the usual office hours. A share of public patronage is respectfully solicited.
