The owner of the Milwaukee Braves, Lou Perini has refused to confirm or deny that he was a participant in a recent secret meeting to discuss the chance of bringing another major league team to New York City and the expansion of both major leagues to ten clubs each.

A New York sports columnist, Red Smith, wrote that Perini had met with Parks commissioner Robert Moses, chairman William Shea of the mayor's baseball committee and two other unidentified persons.

Smith claimed that all except Perini were bound to silence but Lou might just as well have been because when asked for a statement he had no comment whatsoever.

The New York columnist claims that Perini arranged the meeting and held those present that the league would probably be ready to add extra teams in 1960 or 1961. He is supposed to have agreed with a suggestion that each current member sell three players to form a pool for the new clubs. Other players would come from the minors.

Smith maintains that Perini asked if there were sponsors in New York who would put up $3,500,000 for players if a $12,000,000 Flushing Meadows stadium was completed. Asked how he arrived at that figure, according to Smith, he said each player would cost close to $100,000.

Smith said Moses and his colleagues then began to figure that for four new clubs to buy 32 players each at $100,000 apiece would cost $12,800,000. Split up among 16 clubs this would give each present owner $800,000.

"This, Perini was told, was just another scheme to enrich unfairly the men who now control the game," Smith wrote.

When we did this column Pittsburgh was only 4 1/2 games behind the league leading world champion Milwaukee Braves. A combination of pretty fair pitching and some solid base hitting has kept the Pirates of Danny Murtaugh right in the thick of the National League race.

Danny has some better than average ball players and he is doing a fine job of getting the most out of them. He likes all his players and it seems that they all like Danny—a mighty helpful situation.

However Danny recently went overboard for his second baseman Bill Mazeroski. Here's how he expressed his feelings about one-half of his double play combination:

"Without knowing much about the other league I venture to say that Bill Mazeroski is a leadpipe cinch to become Mr. Second Base. I make this statement knowing full well that we have two or three more good ones in the National league, starting with Red Schoendienst. Remember that Mazeroski is only 21 and in his third year of professional baseball. He has baseball intelligence, tremendous desire and exemplary habits. Remember what I'm telling you, Mazeroski was molded to do the unusual. Like coming out of the army and starting off batting .314 without the benefit of spring training."

We have been beefing about the inability of the rest of the American League to cope with the New York Yankees. Yesterday we ran across an item that was doing just about the same thing. The author was supposedly a New York Yankee but his name was withheld.

He moaned in this fashion: "It's bad enough that we have all the players. What makes it worse for the other teams is that they press so bad against us. Take a game we played in Chicago recently. Jim Rivera gets to first base and Ron Jackson is up. We try to pick Rivera off first. He is three runs behind and he is taking big leads, well, Marv Throneberry at first drops the throw. The ball goes a couple of feet past him. What does Rivera do? He starts for second. Marv picks up the ball and throws him out. Then Jackson hits the wall in left but nobody was on base. They're three runs behind and they gamble to take one base. Truly spoken."

Philip K. Wrigley, owner of the Chicago Cubs and the man who still insists that baseball was never intended to be played under the lights, says he wouldn't be surprised if the National League expanded from eight to ten teams for next season. And he adds that the league doesn't need New York.

Wrigley admits that the fly in the ointment is where are the players going to come from. "Major league players always have been a select group," Wrigley states.

"This has discouraged many youngsters from taking up base ball as a profession. But if we expand it will mean there's more room at the top and it should make baseball more attractive to youngsters," he concludes.

Wrigley a little more than a year ago cleared the way for the Brooklyn Dodgers to switch to Los Angeles when he traded his Coast league club there for the Dodgers Fort Worth franchise in the Texas league. It was an even trade but in separate transactions the Dodgers bought Wrigley Field in Los Angeles for $2,000,000.

World Series fever in June. That's right and the spot where it is raging is in the west coast city of San Francisco, the home of the Giants.

Bill Rigney's charges are showing surprising strength and are having a game of "your turn-my turn" with Milwaukee as far as holding the National League lead is concerned.

As a result of this condition of affairs, pennant fever has gripped San Francisco Giants fans from Nob Hill to the waterfront.

"We're getting hundreds of letters a day asking about world series reservations and some even include cheques of $50 to $100 which we have had to return 'Giants' ticket manager said recently.

The Giants left the comforts of home for the first road trip of the season May 11. They were then one game off the pace and they managed to arrive back in San Francisco leading the parade by a single game. They lost that lead Monday night, however, when they were shaded by the World champion Braves.

Perhaps the Giants are really in earnest about this 1958 National League pennant race. Given reasonably good pitching they could go all the way.

Philadelphia Phillies received a tough blow when they lost Granny Hamner for the balance of the season. At least that's the way it looks now for the 31-year-old veteran infielder who had an operation last week to repair a torn ligament in his left knee. He will have to be laid up for 12 to 15 weeks. He'll be in a cast for four to six weeks and will spend the rest of the time getting a complete rest.

Granny was hurt in a collision at second base on May 26 in a game with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Spahn Wins For Braves; Cubs Clobber Phillies

By THE CANADIAN PRESS Warren Spahn, the kink-balling lefty has won eight games for Milwaukee Braves so far this season with his pitching.

Wednesday he won one with his bat when he went in as a pinch-hitter and singled home the winning run in an 11-inning marathon the Braves took 10-9 from the San Francisco Giants.

Things weren't quite that close in the other National League day-time action — hot-hitting Ernie Banks slammed his 15th and 16th homers in Chicago as the Cubs rode an 18-hit attack to an 11-5 triumph over Philadelphia Phils.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mike Baxes rattled out four straight singles and drove in two runs to help the second-place Kansas City Athletics defeat Washington

Senators 5 to 4 before 3,808 spectators Wednesday night.

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Ken Boyer's inside-the-park home run and Stan Musial's three hits, including a home run, paced St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday night in a brisk extra-base attack that again defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-3.

Boyer's drive was high off the left-centrefield wall in the second inning. When Bill Virdon slipped starting a long relay, the fleet St. Louis third baseman followed Joe Cunningham across home plate.

B.Y.C. Wins In Thrilling Game

Junior B.Y.C. and R.C.A.F. Flyers participated in the most exciting softball game witnessed so far this year. This regular league fixture went eleven innings with the B. Y. C. squad coming out on top with a 3-2 verdict. This was the third victory by B.Y.C. over the Flyers in recent days. Last weekend they captured a twin bill in Summerside.

Mike O'Brien started off for B.Y.C. being relieved in the eighth by John Hughes. O'Brien gave up 9 hits, struck out four and walked none. Two of these hits were triples and one a double. Hughes on the other hand, gave up three hits and struck out nine. The local lads had only one error against them.

Marchand went the whole way on the mound for the Flyers. In all he gave up eleven hits and walked seven. The Flyers were tabbed for seven errors. There were no walks given up by pitchers of either team.

In the sixth Doyle of the Flyers was thrown out of the game for abusing the umpire. He was replaced by Robbie. Leblanc replaced Robbie in the eighth.

Dave MacLeod, recently home from Boston University, was called in to pinch hit for J. Blanchard of the B.Y.C. squad in the eighth.

Apps Arsenault was umpire for this fixture. Base judges were Lennie Arsenault and Jack Shepherd.

BALTIMORE (AP)—Baltimore Orioles defeated Detroit Tigers for the sixth straight time Wednesday night, coming from behind to win 6-4 on Gus Triandos' two-run homer in the seventh inning.

Rustico Flyers Are Winners

Rustico Flyers scored a double-header victory in the opener of the National Park Softball League. In the first game Rustico edged the National Park 10-9 and in the second coasted to an easy 17-9 victory.

On Wednesday Rustico staggered Dunstaffage for 17-5 win. A. Peters was the outstanding Rustico player in all three games. B. MacNeil was on the mound for Rustico in all the encounters.

WEST JORDAN, Utah (AP)—Poised Joe Miceli of New York caught young Jay Fullmer with a vicious left hook here Wednesday night and knocked him out in two minutes and nine seconds of the third round of their welter-weight fight.

Marchand went the whole way on the mound for the Flyers. In all he gave up eleven hits and walked seven. The Flyers were tabbed for seven errors. There were no walks given up by pitchers of either team.

"Tiger" Steele Scores Decision

Roy "Tiger" Steele won a unanimous decision over Summerside's Bud Ramsay last night in a 10-round main bout that was considered by many fans as the best fight ever seen at Civic Stadium in Summerside.

Steele floored Ramsay with a right to the head early in the second round, and Bud had difficulty fending off the Tiger for the rest of the 3-minute session.

Steele won the first three rounds by wide margins, but Ramsay, boxing cautiously and cleverly, fought to almost even terms by the end of the eighth round.

Steele settled the issue in the ninth, sending Ramsay down for another 8-count and he was in full charge for the remainder of the fight.

Walter "Peanuts" Arsenault won over Doug "Slugger" Turnbull of New Glasgow in the semi-final, but all three judges gave him the nod by the narrowest of margins.

Turnbull stalked his man around the ring for the greater part of the fight, but seemed reluctant to lead, and it was Arsenault who started most of the exchanges. The boys got away with some spinning and butting in the middle rounds, but all in all it was a good, crowd-pleasing 6-round fight.

Irving Rogers of Borden won another close decision from Wendell Oliver of Alberton, this time the judges splitting their decisions, and all with only one point between the two boys.

Rogers took the first round of the rousing scrap, but Oliver used a very effective jab to edge his rival in the next two rounds. Then Rogers fighting his way inside the superior reach of Oliver, scored heavily, especially in the fourth.

A little gamester from Tignish named Roger Chaisson won a split decision over Donnie Arsenault of Summerside in the curtain-raiser. The boys slugged it out toe to toe on occasion, with Chaisson usually getting in the most blows.

Emmett Trainor refereed the curtain-raiser and the semi-final. Wiff McCuskey was third man in the ring for the special Oliver-Rogers 6-round go and the final.
