Pedestrians Do Spring Plowing

Mud and More Mud, It's Goey, Deep in Rapidly Building Suburban Sections

House-hungry people in a hurry to occupy a finished house in some suburban areas are having to put up with springtime swamp-like roads, few deliveries, no garbage collection. They were warned by both builders and municipalities that roads would not be built until the area development was finished. So, for the time being they are finding difficulty in reaching their new-built residences.

Florence Mitchell loses on a rubber crossing Knightsbridge Rd. in Scarboro One gallant rescuer, Roy Smith, gets mired himself until assisted by another Sir Walter Raleigh — Cliff Redgers.

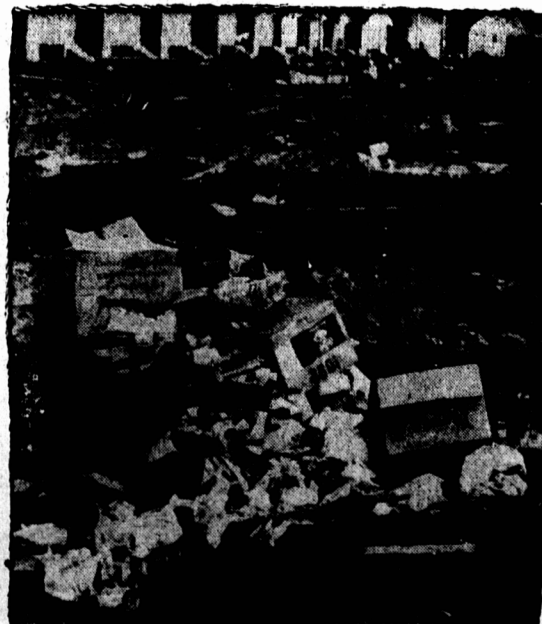

Delivery truck was mired two and a half hours on Stellarton Rd. Tow truck also got mired until four-wheel-drive truck with winch arrived to pull both of them out.

Delivery truck bogs down on St. Clair Ave. E.

Visiting the neighbors is a sticky problem.

In some sections, garbage has not been collected for three weeks
