Her husband then undertook to shoot the cow to put it out of its misery, but the gun burst and destroyed both of his eyes, and the wife then ran away with a lightning-rod peddler. THE TEMPERANCE GOVERNMENT, F. OROSHOU.

Sir.—By the Guardian's report of the King's County D. T. A., the presiding officer, the Rev. Wm. Pielan, is made, among many things, to commend the present Government for its Temperance administration. "He was glad the people supported the Government in the last election which gave the plebiscite and promised so much for the cause, etc."

He seemed pleased with the Stipendiary infliction also, although they would not work. Well, sir, was there any one short of a born innocent so gullible as to believe the Government intended anything short of bloodwinking the public with its temperance clap-net? Does the Rev. Mr. Pielan know the Hon. Mr. Peters? If he does know that honorable gentleman and several others who compose the Government, will he tell us honestly if he is now glad that the people supported the Government which gave the plebiscite? And is he now satisfied that Stipendiaries were appointed to further befool the people and make it more difficult to secure convictions? How long, anyhow, will people even those in high places, be humbugged by such tricksters as Fred. Peters & Co? Was there a single clergyman there at Montague who believed either Fred. Peters' sympathies or those of his Stipendiaries were for temperance? And what of the wonderful plebiscite? No wonder such arrant nonsense shocks and disgusts every friend of

SELECTION OF CANDIDATES.

Sir.—The duty of selecting candidates for election to the House of Commons devolves, at this juncture, upon both parties. This is a highly important matter. Perfect men cannot be obtained. But care ought to be taken by both parties to select the better men for the position from among those who are available. Some men ought not to be selected on any party account. How, for instance, can any party expect that the respectability and sobriety and honesty of the country will be fairly represented by one who drinks and winks at clubs and elsewhere, and scatters black duds broadcast, knowing that the law is violated? This is a point about which delegates from the country should be the more careful in view of the fact that the prohibition question will ere long be dealt with in the Parliament of Canada, to which it belongs. I speak, without regard to party, solely for the good of the country and subscribe myself
