P.E.I. Department of Agriculture

... SHUTDOWN

The annual Holiday Shutdown period for the P.E.I. Artificial Breeding Clubs will be from October 14th to the 28th inclusive. This means that breeding will cease on October 13th and commence again on October 29th.

The Inseminators will be attending the Annual Meeting of the New Brunswick and P.E.I. Inseminators held at the Central Bull Battery in Fredericton. Dr. R.J. MacDonald, Manager of the Oxford and District Artificial Breeding Unit at Woodstock, Ontario will be the guest speaker. This will also afford an opportunity for the Inseminators to review the bulls and discuss mutual problems.

LAMB DYSENTRY

The cause of dysentry and diarrohea in the first month of lamb's life may be Clostridium perfringens Type D infection. This can only be controlled with antitoxin, specific for the infection. Vaccination of pregnant ewes with bacterin is also helpful since it produces antibodies in the milk. Drugs, including antibotics and suffonamides, have no effect.

Experimental work, carried out in 1954 on a flock where only 9 out of 200 lambs had survived, proved the existance of this condition. The following year the bacterin was administered to the ewes and the lambs received antitoxin injections within 6 hours of birth. The result was that at 3 months of age, 180 out of 196 lambs were living and healthy. A few, left untreated as controls, developed dysentry which responded to antitoxin injections.

Although the Veterinary Services Division of the P.E.I. Department of Agriculture has received relatively few reports of lamb dysentry, sheep raisers should remain on the alert. Diarrohea in lambs may also result from a lack of vitamin A, parasites, paratyphoid infection, etc. Due to the complexity of lamb dysentry a veterinarian should be called or a sick lamb taken to him for examination to ensure an accurate diagnosis. Strict sanitation, both around the buildings and lambing quarters is important in prevention and control.

Clostridium perfringens Type D infection is the cause of pulpy kidney disease and enterotoxemia in sheep, losses in feeder cattle, and diarrohea in calves. In the latter Type C infection may also be a factor.

HARRVEST EXHIBITION

The quality of the fruit and especially the apples was outstanding according to the judges: G.C. Warren and D.C. Schurman. Mr. Warren stated that he felt that these apples could enter in competition anywhere in Canada. According to Bill Stern's Horticulturist P.E.I. Department of Agriculture, the quality of the exhibits in this year's Harvest Exhibition was the highest to date.

Harold Coffin, Cherry Hill was this year's seed potato champion with the reserve going to Raymond Vessey, York. The table stock champion went to Alton Rodd, North Milton and the reserve again went to Raymond Vessey. There is always keen competition in both the seed and table stock potatoes.

For the second year in a row Charles Jones, Pownal took the top placing in the table turnip section.

The quality of the vegetables on the most part was very good This year's class was divided into two sections one for market gardeners and the other for ordinary gardeners. It was a beautiful sight to see these fine displays of Island garden products.

1959 RURAL YOUTH FAIR

The Ninth Annual Rural Youth Fair is now history. This provincial 4-H Club event got under way officially in the Women's Institute building at the Exhibition Grounds, Charlottetown, on the evening of Sept. 24th, when Premier W.R. Shaw declared the event officially open. A welcome was also given to the group by Cecil Stewart, president of the Exhibition Association.

The chairman for the evening program was Mrs. Sterling MacRae, president of the Junior Farmers' Federation. At this evening program the 1959 4-H King and Queen were crowned. the Queen being Gail Carter of the North Milton Garment Club. and the King being Jerry Doyle of the Summerville Calf Club. A very interesting dress review was put on by members of the 4-H Garment Clubs with an accompanying commentary by Miss Manja Salome of the Middleton Garment Club. In the Public Speaking Competition the junio division was won by Norma Yeo of the Lot 16 Calf Club, and Mary Hynes of the Summerville Calf Club won first in the senior division. Entertainment was provide by the Hunter River Garment Club, Peter Lewis of the Freetown Calf Club, the Brooklyn Calf Club, the Summerville Garment Club, and David Jenkins of the Alexandra Calf Club.

Special guests introduced to the large crowd present included James D. Moore, manager of the Canadian Council on 4-H Clubs, Ottawa, who was visiting the province and attended the whole Rural Youth Fair; Mrs. Ione Wood, Tryon, who represented Prince Edward Island in the Canadian delegation which attended the National 4-H Club Conference held in Washington, D.C., U.S.A., in 1959; and the fourteen delegates from Prince Edward Island who will be attending National 4-H Club Week in Toronto this fall.

During the progam special prizes were presented to some of the winners in the P.E.I. Harvest Exhibition, and prizes were also presented to the county and provincial winners in the Provincial Pasture Improvement Competition which was held for the first time in 1959. The first and second placings in this competition in which almost 90 farmers took part were Sterling MacRae of Brookfield, and A.S. MacEwen of Stanley Bridge.

During the evening a sing song was conducted by Frank Gaudet, and at the close of the formal program square dancing under the direction of Dr. George Fisher was enjoyed by all.

ENTRIES JUDGED

On Friday, Sept. 25th, a very large entry of exhibits representing the agricultural 4-H clubs of the province was judged. In the project clubs there were eight entries, with York Point Club winning first place. In the livestock entries, which were judged by Herbert MacCharles of Moncton, N.B., and Harold Kellier of Fredericton, N.B., there was a total of 60 groups that competed in the various breeds.

In Guernseys the top placing group came from the Kingston club, and the Champion and Reserve individual calves were owned by Bert Palmer of the Kensington club and Clifford Green of the Kingston club respectively. In Jerseys the top placing group came from Cornwall and Reid Vickerson and Eddie Boswall showed the Champion and Reserve Champion respectively. Seven groups of Ayshires showed and the Royalty 4-H club came first with their group. The Champion Ayshire calf was owned by Barbara MacRae of the Royalty club, and the Reserve Champion was owned by Betty Lou Doyle of the Summerville club.

In the Dual Purpose Shorthorn breed the group from Mount Herbert placed first, with Bloyce Ramsay of Hamilton showing the Champion calf, and Ronald Hughes of Brackley Point club showing the Reserve Champion. There were six groups of Dual Purpose Shorthorns.

The 28 Holstein groups were divided into two sections. The Alexandra club came first in Section 1, and New Glasgow topped Section II. Janet Jones of the Alexandra club showed the Champion Holstein calf, and Norma Adams of the O'Leary club was the owner of the Reserve Champion.

In the beef entries where there were 14 groups showing, Earnscliffe won first place. The Champion Hereford was owned by Wayne Hayden of the Earnscliffe 4-H Club, and the Reserve Champion was owned by Heather Matheson of the New Glasgow club. The Champion Shorthorn was owned by Orville Smith of the New Glasgow club, and the Reserve Champion was owned by Preston Jewell of the North River club. The Champion Aberdeen Angus calf of the beef section was owned by Ann Walsh of the Summerville club, and the Reserve Champion was owned by Mary Boswall of the Dunstaffnage-Frenchfort club.

SPECIAL PRIZES

Special prizes were donated by the various breed associations to the Champion and Reserve Champion calves in their respective breeds. Special prizes were also awarded by Maurice Burgoyne, caterer to the Charlottetown Raceway, to the first four placings in the 4-H Project clubs. The P.E.I. Artificial Breeding Association awarded their Showmanship Trophy for the second time, and this was won by the Alexandra 4-H club with their group of Holstein calves owned by Janet, Paulette and Phyllis Jones.

Second placing in the Showmanship competition was won by the Holstein group from New Glasgow — Wayne Dickieson, Gloria Houston, and Carol Dickieson. The judges for this part of the show were Parker Newson, Kingston, Athol Roberts, Southport, and Edison Mutch, North River.

The Rural Youth Fair program closed with a very keenly contested sports program which ended with the presentation of the 4-H Club Sports Banner for the second year in a row to the North Rustico Project Club. The 1959 Rural Youth Fair was perhaps the most competitive from the standpoint of the participating clubs thathas been held to date. The large crowd that attended both the evening and the day programs would indicate that there is a tremendous interest among rural people in 4-H club work.
