LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

The Scott Act.

SIR,—There has been some discussion lately in the newspapers about the execution of the Scott Act in this city. I desire to broach one phase of the subject not heretofore touched. There are undoubtedly over one hundred "places" in Charlottetown in which intoxicating liquors are sold in violation of the Canada Temperance Act, 1878. How many persons Sir, are systematically prosecuted under the Act? Not a dozen! Of these nearly half are women. And, Sir, there are not another dozen liquor dealers even occasionally prosecuted. Now, of the great unpro-secuted majority, there are many who have made more money, and continue to sell more openly than some of those who are prosecuted. Why, I ask, is this leniency shown?
Have our temperance officers their favorites?
Their energies are valiantly exercised against defenceless females, while blatant publicans—old sinners—escape. I do not defend women engaged in the liquor traffic, or blame the officers for upholding the law they have transgressed. But what I do most emphatically condemn is the policy—or favoritism if you will—which allows the majority of law-breakers to go scathless while a few are systematically prosecuted.
The offence could be as easily proved against the former as it is against the latter. I could name off-hand a dozen unprosecuted large liquor dealers, and several witnesses against each. This information should be, and very likely is, within the knowledge of the Inspector and his assistants. An explanation would therefore be in order.
Yours, &c.,
W.

Charlottetown, July 7th, 1885.

An Interesting School Competition.

SIR,—A very interesting competition took place in North West Tryon School House on the afternoon of Friday, June 26.
The teachers of the schools at Mount Tryon, Augustine Cove, Albany, No Man's Land, Cape Traverse and North West Tryon each sent in three representatives to compete for a prize offered by the Inspector to the best reader and speller in the fourth class. The room was crowded with visitors, among whom were the Superintendent of Education, Inspector of Schools, and the teachers of the schools above named, and the parents of the pupils and competitors.
To fill in the time while the classes were assembling, Mr. Montgomery examined the English class, and Mr. Arbuckle the highest reading class of the school, both of whom expressed themselves well pleased with the way in which the pupils answered, thus reflecting great credit upon themselves and their teacher, Mr. Daniel Fraser.
The Inspector's prize—a handsomely bound book, "The Girls' Own Annual"— was carried off by Miss Ada J. Symonds, of Mount Tryon district, which speaks well both for herself and her instructor, Miss Georgina Morrison. After several of the parents had expressed their regret that Mr. Fraser was about to leave them, he was presented by the pupils with a valuable present and a flattering address, to which he replied in an extempore speech. Mr.
Arbuckle deserves great credit not only for going to the expense of purchasing such a valuable prize, but also for trying in such a judicious manner to raise the standard of education. Everywhere he goes through the country he is fast winning friends, and we think there is no man better qualified for the position of Inspector than himself.
We are glad to hear that next year there will be a competition between the same schools for a prize offered by Mr. John McRae, merchant, of Tryon, to the best speller in the fifth grade. No doubt this will have a great effect in improving the reading and spelling in these schools.
JUVENIS.

Open Air Preaching.

Judge Aldrich rendered his decision in the Superior Court, Boston, on the 3rd inst., in the case of Rev. W. F. Davis, arrested for preaching on the Common.
Judge Aldrich ordered the jury to find Mr.
Davis guilty on the ground that the question was one of law entirely. He declared that the question has nothing to do with the right of free speech or preaching the Gospel. Judge Aldrich could not doubt that the city had a perfect right to make such provision for the preservation of the Common as it might deem necessary. The provision was not made to prevent the freedom of speech or public worship, but to preserve order on the Common. Mr. Davis has appealed. The case of Rev. H. L.
Hastings was continued; that of Silas W.
Peckham was placed on file, the defendant pleading nolo contendere, and the case of Mr. Peterson was defaulted.

Revolution and Religion.

Pere Hyacinthe lectured in Paris on the 3rd, on the "Secularization of the Pantheon." He protested against the abolition of the cross and the attempt to create an-tagonism between the spirit of revolution and the spirit of religion. The building itself formed a cross, and it was useless to try to alter it by removing the cross from the summit. He advised the Government to follow the English example in regard to Westminster Abbey, not to enquire into the orthodoxy of the great men buried there. In spite of all efforts the Pantheon would remain the consecrated sanctuary of France's greatness. The address was a splendid oratorical effort. Pere Hyacinthe was continually interrupted by the wildly excited audience.

cents selling for 25 cents per pair at the

Tortured With Hot Iron.

HORRIBLE CRUELTY INFLICTED BY A NEGRO ON A DEFENCELESS WOMAN.

A story of fiendish cruelty, the details of which are almost beyond belief, was revealed on the afternoon of the 3rd, in Camden, N. J., and has excited feelings of the utmost horror, among the residents of that city. For over a year Thomas Demond, a powerful negro, of about thirty-five years of age, has lived in a shanty on the outskirts of Camden, with Ida Monroe, a handsome young mulatto woman, who passed for his wife among the colored people that reside in that vicinity. Demond's business was that of a policy writer and he acted as agent for the heavy policy backers of Philadelphia, bringing them considerable business from the negroes of Camden. He was known as a man of strong temper, and was greatly dreaded by his neighbors, when under the influence of liquor. On the night of Thursday, June 25, he came home in a quarrelsome humor and demanded of his mistress the name of another man, who was also writing policy among the Camden negroes. This business rival is thought to be a cousin of the woman's, and refused to disclose his name. The man then knocked her down and bound her hand and foot, in which condition she remained all night. On the following morning he loosened the bands and left the house, but on returning at night and being again refused the information he wished, beat the woman cruelly, and, tying her up as before, threw her into the corner, where she lay in an unconscious condition all night. On Saturday morning, the 27th, the fiend threatened the woman with death, unless she disclosed the name of his rival, but she was obstinate and dared him to do his worst.

TORTURED WITH HOT IRON.

This seemed to infuriate the man to the verge of madness, and, hurling her to the floor, he bound her with ropes and then forced a gag formed of a stick which almost tore her jaw asunder into her mouth, and, while she lay moaning in agony, heated a flatiron, with which he scorched her flesh in twenty places. Not satisfied with this sickening revenge, the wretch procured a quantity of oil of vitriol and poured it over the woman's already cruelly tortured body, which had been denuded of clothing. In this terrible condition he left her and hurried away, it is believed to New York where the police are searching for him.

SUFFERING GREAT AGONY.

The unfortunate victim lay on the floor of the shanty all day unable to move hand or foot and suffering indescribable agony. At five o'clock in the afternoon a female cousin named Mrs. Rice, who also lives in Camden, called to see her and was horrified to find the woman in a state which Dr. J. W. Douglas, who was at once called in, says was too terrible to bear a detailed description. She was utterly unable to speak, and it was several days before she could tell the story of her paramour's brutality. On being found she was removed to her cousin's house, and the matter kept quiet in the hopes that Demond would return and fall into the hands of the police, who were on the lookout for him.
He has not been seen, however, and is supposed to be hiding somewhere in New York.
On Wednesday last the doctor permitted the woman to be removed to the house of her sister in New York, where she now lies in a precarious condition. Had she not been a woman of great bodily strength and the most robust constitution she would have died before being found on the afternoon of June 27.

The Earl of Aylesford.

A short time ago Edith, Countess of Aylesford, the widow of Henrice Finch, the seventh Earl of Aylesford, made application to the Lords' Committee for Privileges for and on behalf of Guy Bertrand, claiming to be eighth Earl of Aylesford and Baron Guernsey. The Countess in her petition asked their lordships that she might be allowed to appear as "guardian and next friend" to her infant son, Guy Bertrand, and in opposition to the claim of Hon. Charles Wightwick Finch to the titles, honors and dignities of Earl of Aylesford and Guernsey. The hearing in the case took place on the 2nd inst., and the House of Lords gave their decision. It is in favor of the claim of Mr. Finch, a brother of the late Earl. The Countess, it is held, failed to prove the legitimacy of her infant son, Guy Bertrand.

A Sad Accident.

A very sad and fatal accident occurred at Cross Creek, on the Miramichie valley railway, twenty-five miles from Fredericton, on the 6th inst., by which Conductor George Robinson lost his life. In coupling cars he fell between them, and two wheels passed over the lower part of his body, inflicting terrible wounds. The injured man, in charge of George S. Miller, was put on board the train to be brought to his home at Gibson, but when sixteen miles from the city he died.

Accommodating.

The London, Ont., Free Press tells of a well-known commission merchant, living in the northern part of that city, who, before leaving for a trip with his family, posted up in the hallway the following notice:—"To burglars—There are no valuables in the house, and nothing locked up. There are good liquors in the cellar and crackers and cheese in the kitchen."

POTATO BUG.—The real live Colorado Beetle has made his appearance. Mr.
Miles Geldert brought us a dozen or more yesterday, and says his potato patch is swarming with them. Farmers throughout the country should keep a sharp lookout for those destructive visitors, and give them a warm reception.—Picton News.
