RICH RULER REPROVED

Zacchaeus Hoped For New Life

Today's lesson involves two men seeking Jesus' counsel in order to arrive at decisions. Although the interview, one makes the right decision, the other the wrong one.

The interview of the rich young ruler with Jesus (Mark 10:17-22) is a comparatively well-known episode, recorded also in Matthew 19:16-22 and Luke 18:18-30. The young man involved apparently had everything anyone could possibly want: youth, wealth, position, and kept himself free of all the grave sins so young men are prone to. Yet, he felt something lacking, something all his assets and party could not bring him. That "something" was eternal life. He longed for it and was convinced it could be had by doing something about it. Not knowing exactly what to do, he asks Jesus.

Jesus reproves him for calling himself "good," reminding him that no one, except God, is truly "good." Then he cites those commandments which provide the simplest guides for a "good" life. In his assured reply that he has always obeyed these commandments, the rich young ruler sounds relieved, for if eternal life can be secured this easily, it is already his (vv. 17-20).

Our Mightiest Hour

Rockets have a certain thrust — and no more. Nuclear bombs have a certain explosive force — and no more. Every powerful device on which man depends for military defense or scientific advance is limited in its energy.

But FAITH has no limits. It turns with trusting eyes — to the Almighty, whose power is infinite, whose love is everlasting. It is constantly confident and courageous — because its resources cannot be exhausted.

In perilous times a great nation always finds its might in spiritual resources. And today, significantly, one of the essential elements of survival in which our stokopie dwarfs the Russians is FAITH. Khrushchev has no secret installation to match the thrust and force generated in the souls of our people by our hundreds of thousands of churches.

Think on these things as we worship together this Sunday morning . . . our mightiest hour!
