Canadian Authors Gather at Coast
VANCOUVER, July 3.—(C.P.)—Prof. Pelham Edgar, the National President, and Sir Charles C. D. Roberts will be among the leading speakers at the annual convention of the Canadian Authors' Association to be held here July 14-16. Dr. Edgar will deliver his presidential address and Sir Charles will speak on the art of the short story, especially the nature story.
During the convention the members will be the Harbor Commissioners' guests for a voyage on the waters of Burrard Inlet. Tuesday evening, July 14, they will meet in the English Bay Pavilion of Stanley Park. There a conversation will be preceded by a talk from John Murray Gibbon on "Writing Words to Music" with illustrative assistance both from lantern slides and from the contralto voice of Amy Fleming.
Embarking again the next afternoon, the members will sail to Hopkins Landing, where they will be entertained by Mr. and Mrs. D. K. MacGregor. An informal program will be given by Mr. MacGregor, speaking on the celebrated Judge Beagle of the golden days; E. W. Luce, the cartoonist; and A. H. J. Moorehouse with a writer's craft talk.

CARLETON SCHOOL CLOSING
The teachers and pupils of Carleton School, with a good attendance of the parents, celebrated the completion of another year's work Tuesday by an enjoyable picnic at Mr. Nathan Bell's splendid shore. In spite of the cool weather a very pleasant time was spent in games, sports and bathing, and the children received a treat of assorted candy and nuts from their teachers. A delicious lunch was served on the veranda of the summer house. Beautiful and appropriate gifts were presented to the teachers and addresses were read expressing appreciation of their faithful work and regret that they were leaving. The address to the principal, Mr. Elmer Roberts, was read by Miriam MacDonald, and the presentation made by Jean Mutzart, while the address to the primary teacher, Miss Dorothy MacDonald, was read by Claude Bell and the presentation made by Dorothy Dumas. The teacher responded with well chosen words of thanks, Mr. Roberts giving a brief summary of the work accomplished during his five years as principal. Prizes were awarded to the pupils as follows:

Mr. Roberts' Department
Highest standing in Grade X Sr—Miriam MacDonald.
Highest standing in Grade X Jr—Marion Bell and Mary Quigley.
Highest standing in Grade IX—Ferre Bell.
Highest standing in Grade VIII—Joseph Noonan.
Highest standing in Grade VII—Fred Lowther.
Joseph Noonan also received this public School Certificate.
Miss MacDonald's Department
Highest average in Grade V—Eleanor MacDonald.
Highest average in Grade IV Sr—Louise MacDonald.
Highest average in Grade IV Jr—Beatrice Stewart.
Highest average in Grade IV Sr—Mary Conway.
Highest average in Grade III—Dorothy Dumas.
Highest average in Grade II Sr—Joseph Conway.
Highest average in Grade II Jr—Charles Howatt.
Highest average in Grade I Sr—Elmer Stewart.

SUSPECT HELD IN BRUTAL MURDER CASE

Night Club Master of Ceremonies Detained in Death Of Hostess.

(A. P. by Guardian's Special Wire)
CHICAGO, July 2.—A night club master of ceremonies who police said gave "shaky" answers to questions under the "lie detector" was held for investigation tonight in connection with the slaying of comely Mrs. Florence Thompson Casley, 24, night club hostess.
The young woman was beaten to death in bed early today by what police called a "blackface" assailant who talked in negro dialect to the seven-year-old son who lay beside her and unwittingly watched the tragedy before going back to sleep.
The master of ceremonies, a friend and one time fellow employee of Mrs. Casley, was Sid Schaps, father of two children. He was submitted to a "lie detector" test after police said he changed his story of his movements at the time of the crime.
Police Capt. William O'Brien reported after the test that Dr. Leonard Keeler "reported the subject was shaky on all his answers about his activities and about the story he had told."
The dead woman's mother, Mrs. Francis Polius, told police Schaps was "jealous" of her daughter and "threatened" her.
Detectives had said they were seeking a "jealous suitor" as the killer as the result of the account of the crime as related by the son, James. From his frightened story detectives built this theory of the crime.
A suitor of the woman, jealous because she took the boy for a Sunday boat ride on Lake Michigan with another man, decided on revenge.
He blackened his face and hands like a negro minstrel in preparation for the crime.
When he gained entry into the woman's room on the fourth floor of a north side hotel, he found her and the son sleeping side by side.
He hit her on the head with a brick he carried, fracturing her skull. Not knowing the blow had killed her, he knelt on the bed and choked her.
The son awoke, and protested the hands on his mother's throat.
Assuming negro dialect, the assailant said he was a doctor and was merely "treating" her.
"It was her boy friend who hurt her," he said. "Not me."
Still talking in the dialect, he declared his love for his "patient" and persisted in asking "who was she out with last night?"
The whole setting of the crime impressed police as a stage deliberately set to mislead investigators after the killer fled and the boy went back to sleep.
Scribbled on a mirror—with the dead woman's lipstick—were the words:
"Black Legion.
"Come, or 'frame."
Beneath the words were a skull and crossbones.
Police took two men into custody for questioning.
One was Sid Schaps, master of ceremonies in a dance hall where Mrs. Casley was once employed. The other was Robert Taylor, 30, jobless New York salesman who admitted taking Mrs. Casley on a boat ride yesterday.

Sourdough Wanted To Read Biography

SAINT JOHN, N.B., July 1.—(C.P.)—Dr. F. Buffington Vrooman, lecturer and writer now living here, has just learned how he was a factor in averting possibly fatal illness for venerable Archbishop H. A. Cody of Saint John when the latter was a young missionary in the Yukon. He heard the story here directly from the Archbishop at their first meeting since they became acquainted 30 year ago.
The "Pack Train Restaurant" at Skagway, Alaska, was crowded with rough men enroute to the gold fields and returning with yellow dust when the clergyman, journeying from Whitehorse to Vancouver for eye treatment, and the cultured traveller introduced themselves. Dr. Vrooman was gathering material for a thesis on the North.
During their boat trip to Vancouver they talked about Bishop Whipple of Minnesota, the great Indian bishop. That winter, back in the Yukon, the clergyman received from Dr. Vrooman a biography of Bishop Whipple entitled "Lights and Shadows of a Long Episcopate." He read the book and placed it with other volumes in the study of his makeshift rectory at Whitehorse.
Then duty took him away from the meagre comforts of Whitehorse, and with an Indian guide he went to remote Livingston Creek to work from there by dog team, suffering from privation, when he returned to Livingston Creek after a particularly hard trip he became afflicted with rheumatism. Medical treatment at Whitehorse was necessary but he could not make the long journey alone.
The next morning he was informed that the first freight team of the season would leave for Whitehorse in charge of Captain Peters, one of the famous sourdoughs of the northland. This was the only hope the invalid had of checking the affliction, because weeks might pass before another team left.
"I asked Captain Peters if he would take me," Archbishop Cody related, "and I was so cooly received that the room suddenly seemed like a refrigerator. The temperature in there was no worse than the temperature outside. Captain Peters had no use for paralytics and I got on of Livingston Creek, I knew, but I got no hope from that grim old timer. He answered my questions in gruff monosyllables—yes and no.
"I didn't want to retreat, and I didn't know what to do, so finally I asked him a question that was dangerous to ask in the northland in those days. I asked him where he came from.
"Minnesota," he barked at me. I thought, what did I know about Minnesota I could say to help my case? Then, in desperation, I asked him whether he ever heard of Bishop Whipple. He straightened up and became a different man. There was actually a friendly look in his eyes.
"He was my father's best friend," he answered.
"I told him a friend of mine had sent me the story of Bishop Whipple's life—that I had it at the rectory at Whitehorse. Well, that settled things. He wanted to read that book. Three days later Captain Peters had me in Whitehorse."
Months later Peters returned the book to the clergyman with a brief note that it was the best he had ever read. Archbishop Cody still has the biography, and thinks he might never have returned from the Yukon if a sourdough had not wanted to read it.
"I've been wondering where you were," Dr. Vrooman said at their meeting after a lapse of three decades. "I looked up a clergyman in Toronto called Cody, but he was the wrong Cody."
"There's plenty of time for Joan to think of getting married," said the husband. "Let her wait until the right man comes along."
"I don't see why she should wait that long," answered the wife sweetly. "I didn't."

Miscouche Convent Closing

The Miscouche Convent held their closing exercises last week with a good attendance of parents and friends. Rev. Dr. Monaghan presided and congratulated teachers pupils on their work.
Mr. John Small, trustee also spoke words of congratulations to the pupils.
Clifford MacArthur read the Valedictory. A Red Cross program by Grades 9 and 10 was skillfully carried out by the pupils.
A number of recitations were given by pupils of the lower grades. Among the prizes were those donated by the C. W. L. and Rev. Mother Superior, the children were treated to apples by Rev. Father Monaghan at the close of the exercises.

MAKE WORLD-WIDE WAR ON DISEASE
(By The Canadian Press)
LONDON, July 3.—London will shortly have a new type of medical clinic which will be the permanent international headquarters for a series of 1000 or more similar clinics in all the large centres of the world.
The plan is to make a world attack on disease. Every daughter clinic will co-operate with the London mother clinic by devoting their entire research simultaneously over a three year period to a single specific disease.
The first on the list is rheumatism. The second will probably be the common cold.
