NOTES AND COMMENTS.

While defending the Yukon railway contract, Sir Richard Cartwright said: "At the best, the whole matter was a huge gamble." This is no doubt the fact with regard to gold mining in general. But in this particular case the Government have loaded the dice for McKenzie, Mann and their friends, by handing over to their ownership hundreds of thousands of acres of mining territory. If mining is a gamble, it is the duty of the government to see to it that the gamblers have a fair field and no favor. But the Laurier government has done the reverse of this.

An idea of how the Liberals fight their election contests in Ontario may be obtained from the following reports:

"Kingston has a promise that the Federal Government will order three locomotives there. Mr. Blair has wired Mr. Harty to that effect.

"London is to have a Normal school. There are two in the province, and the teaching profession is notoriously overcrowded.

"North Oxford is to have a reformatory for boys.

"Cobourg is to have an asylum.

"Penetanguishene is to have the advantage of the expenditure of "hundreds of thousands on proposed new buildings." "Cornwall has a bonus for a bridge."

Sir Charles Tupper may well laugh at Sir Wilfrid Laurier with his mass of decorations. Said a gentleman at a public meeting during the last campaign:—"Sir Wilfrid, I want to ask a question?" "No sir, not Sir Wilfrid," shouted the then Mr. Laurier, "I am a plain Democrat and intend to remain so" (Loud and uproarious cheering.) "Mr. Laurier" observed the poor old Globe, "could not fail to greatly lower himself in the estimation of his party if he accepted a title, and the Liberals honour him not a little for his well-known evasion of it." After which the democrat went to Europe and roped in all the decorations he could get, not excepting the Golden medal, the organs pretending all the time that the "tin-pot titles" were literally forced upon him. By the way, it is understood that there was a tremendous rush for titles by the other democrats, and that Mr. Greenway was not a little disappointed when he discovered that he was not to be Sir Thomas of that ilk.

ONE ON MR. DINGLEY.

Some of the members of the ways and means committee are laughing heartily over a clever scheme which has been put into operation in Boston to evade the duties of the new Dingley tariff. It seems that just before the law was passed a syndicate of Boston gentlemen purchased a mineral spring near Toronto, intending to ship the water into this country under the low tariff of the then prevailing law. Mr. Dingley, however, placed a duty of 24 cents a gallon upon all imported waters, in order, probably, to nourish the infant industry of springs in the United States, and the Boston men were nonplussed. The tariff was practically prohibitive, and the mineral water investment seemed doomed. In their dilemma they went to an attorney and asked him if he could get them out of the fix.

"Perhaps so," replied the lawyer, after a few minutes thought. "Would it hurt to freeze your mineral water?"

The members of the syndicate wondered what was coming, but they replied that they did not know. "Well," said the attorney, "go and freeze some of the water, and then let me know whether its medicinal properties are injured." The water was frozen and the report was made that there was no apparent change. "Then," said the shrewd lawyer, "you need not trouble. Simply freeze the water in Canada, and import it into this country. There is no duty on ice."

It was a fact. Mr. Dingley had retained ice on the free list, and the Canadian mineral water now comes across the border in solid chunks. It pays less freight, and it does not require casks that are worth $4 a piece. The syndicate saves 24 cents on every gallon, and the lawyer is going to Europe on his fee.

Halifax Herald: Mr. Mann of McKenzie and Mann, who have made the Yukon railway deal with the government, delivered himself in a newspaper interview to the effect that they would put 1,000 men to work on the Teslin Lake road and build the whole road in 120 days. Taking Mr. Mann's own estimate as to the work of building this now noted bit of road, an estimate may be made as to its cost. Suppose his 1,000 men average $4 a day wages, that would be $400,000 for the job. For rails, etc., for this tranway $2,000 a mile would probably be a high estimate; that for 125 miles, which is said to be the correct length, would be $250,000. Now, allow half a million dollars for rolling stock, and the few requisite stations, and the whole total is only $1,250,000. To get the promoters to build that tramway for their own use and benefit, the government have given them a monopoly of traffic for a period of years during which they will, in all probability, pay their outlay five times over, and besides that have given them 3,750,000 acres of the public domain to be selected from the richest spots of probably the richest gold-bearing lands in the world. Nice government for some railway promoters!

LITTLE PIGS.

A good authority declares that a very considerable number of negroes in the South are better fitted for citizenship now than when the right of suffrage was given them. It is also true that so large a proportion of the negroes are still so ignorant and irresponsible that the ballot is a menace in their hands. This fact has long been recognized in the South, and the silence of the Northern press with reference to restrictions of the ballot is significant of the change in public sentiment that has come about at the North. A few years ago the proposition by a Southern Legislature to restrict the right of suffrage would have led to bitter denunciation and the urging of the necessity of force bills. The truth is that the North is beginning to realize something of the serious nature of the problem presented by a large contingent, possibly a majority, of illiterate voters. The North will never again force upon the South such fearful experiences as were common under carpet-bag C-governors and negro legislative menageries during the reconstruction regime. It is possible, also, that Northern Republicans are growing weary of the undue influence of the negro delegate in the national conventions of the party. At all events, it is certain that Mississippi and South Carolina already have suffrage systems which were deliberately designed to reduce the negro vote, and a movement now under way in Louisiana for a constitutional convention and the adoption of a similar system. In Mississippi and South Carolina the condition for voting is the ability to read and explain a passage from the constitution of the State. In South Carolina after this year, the possession of $300 worth of real estate is taken as an equivalent. Under the educational test, fairly applied, it is plain that illiterate negroes and whites would be excluded.

There is of course, a possibility that the test may not be equally applied in all cases, and the illiterate whites may not be so rigidly excluded as the negroes; this possibility only emphasizes what has been said with reference to the change in public sentiment in the North. There is reason to believe that Northerners quite generally feel that they would not themselves submit to negro domination, and that the white people in those states where the negroes are numerous are only hoping that they would themselves do under similar circumstances. At the same time there is a probability that the change will accomplish more for the negroes than all the Government coddling and petting in the world can do. The New York Times voices a general opinion, when, after admitting the probable purpose of the constitutional amendments, it says: "Nevertheless, we believe the change to be a sound one, and in the end to be for the benefit of the negroes themselves. It will give them a stronger inducement to educate themselves, and will make those who become voters better voters than the negroes have generally been in the past. It will tend to put an end to the corruption of which the race has been the victim at the hands of Republican politicians like Hanna. They will not be regarded as mere raw material for the manufacture of delegates at the lowest cost. Many negroes who have been debauched by the temptations of base politics will be driven to earn an honest living, and the more ignorant, who have been bought and sold like cattle in the market, will be forced to look upon the suffrage as something to work and study for, not a mere gift of the Government to be turned into cash or whisky. The motive for the change is not high, but the effect of it will, we are sure, be good for all concerned."

Health and strength carry us through dangers and make us safe in the presence of peril. A perfectly strong man with rich, pure blood has nothing to fear from germs. He may breathe in the bacilli of consumption with impunity. If there is a weak spot where the germs may find an entrance to the tissues, then the trouble begins. Disease germs propagate with lightning-like rapidity. Once in the blood the only way to get rid of them is to kill them. This is what Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is for. It purifies the blood. That means that it kills the germs, but that is only part of what it does. It assists digestion by stimulating the secretion of digestive fluids, so promoting assimilation and nutrition; purifies and enriches the blood and so supplies the tissues with the tissues they need. It builds up strong, healthy flesh and puts the whole body into a disease-resisting state.

The new battleship Implacable is to cost over $1,000,000.

Prince Francis of Teck, brother of the future Queen of England, who is a captain of Dragoons in the English army, and now is with Gen. Sir Herbert Kitchener in the Sudan, has filed an application to be permitted to join the Egyptian army. His relatives are anxious to keep him out of England for some time longer until people have time to forget his sensational experiences in connection with the turf, when he lost something like $50,000 in one bet alone, and that without the slightest likelihood of being able to pay. His friends and relatives ultimately were forced to come to his rescue. It is thought his application to join the limited number of British officers with the Egyptian native army will be granted.

THE NEGRO PROBLEM

Young pigs at this season do not thrive unless conditions of warmth and cleanliness are specially observed. It often happens that in seeking to secure warmth cleanliness is lost sight of, and the pigs are allowed to lie on dirty litter. As pig flesh is said to closely resemble human flesh in flavor, so it is liable to almost as many ills of the flesh as is man: the pig therefore cannot thrive satisfactorily unless the sanitary features of its surroundings are properly attended to: and this pertains particularly to young pigs. With reasonable chances the pig will do all in its power to secure a clean bed: if, however it is handicapped by too restricted accommodation, and the dung which it always deposits as far as possible from its bed is not removed it must, necessarily live in a foul sty. It is probably because of the unhealthiness arising from want of sufficient cleaning out of manure that some feeders and breeders use the wooden slatted floors without litter, as they say their pigs are healthier. There is, however, on floors of this kind a want of warmth, and if such floors are used a small quantity of litter, as a bed, is advantageous. The pig is more susceptible to injury from cold than any other domestic animal, and warmth decidedly tends to its better doing: therefore if they do better in spite of want of warmth merely because the sanitary conditions are more favourable, it shows how important it is to keep them under proper sanitary conditions. I am strongly in favour of a raised floor permitting ventilation, but prefer it in conjunction with some litter: more especially as the manure, one of the chief profits in pig breeding, is otherwise to a considerable extent wasted. It is not always that the pig breeder feels the warmest interest in his pigs, because sometimes they are not highly profitable; but in times when the number of pigs in the country, and world generally, is below requirements every one wishes he had more. The trade is always swinging up and down owing to under-supply and reaction to over-supply. The present high prices are a natural consequence of the glutted condition of the market a year or two since: and during this time I have repeatedly pointed out that the rise was bound to take place. The next thing to guard against will be being over-stocked when the market is glutted again, but there is no danger of this just yet.
